COLEMAN'S ORIGINATIONS HAVE MADE GOOD.

Coleman won the silver medal at A. G. S. exhibition, Detroit, 1919; silver medal at A. G. S. exhibition, St. Thomas, Canada, 1921. Mr. Chas. E. F. Gersdorff, the eminent authority, in his series of articles in The Flower Grower, places a valuation on varieties from all sources: "F" stands for fair; "X" still better; "XX" "XXX" and "XXXX" the best. Mr. Gersdorff informs me the following Coleman originations merited "XXXX":

Juno, XXXX; Sweet Lavender, XXXX; Sheila, XXXX; Leota, XXXX; Night Wings, XXXX; Nymph, XXXX; Nautilus, XXXX.

Catherine Coleman, Silver medal winner, not tested. Will be glad to send literature describing above and other varieties.

GRAPES

WHY PAY A BIG PRICE

For No. 3 Grape plants, when you can get my No. 1, from 3 to 6 cuttings, for 1 cent, and one good strong cutting will grow a very superior plant to the No. 3 stunted, feeble growth vine? See the point?

The No. 3 plant is a cull from the nursery row, and was grown from a weak cutting that lacked life and vitality enough to make a vigorous, strong, "full of life" and vigor plant. Send for list and prices of good, strong cuttings of Agawan, Campbell's Early, Catawba, Concord, Delaware, Moore's Diamond, Moore's Early, Niagara, Worden, etc. NASH NURSERY, THREE RIVERS, MICH.

GRAPE VINES.

Strong, vigorous, No. 1 Concord, $7.50 per 100, $60.00 per 1000. F. o. b. Packing free.

Concord, the standard grape for eating and for wine, thrives and yields heavily where other varieties will not.

HYBRIDIZED DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. Our rainless California summers make it possible to get seed even from the very double varieties, a result extremely difficult in States where it is rainy during the time when the seed should set.

The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Walden, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1921.

Richard Diener, Co., Kentfield, Cal.

Gentlemen: The Dahlia Seed received from you last year turned out fine. Could not think Dahlias could be grown from seed in such short time. Had some very fine blooms. One yellow Peony flowered that was extra fine, some 8 inches and a clear canary-yellow. Everyone who saw it was amazed at the size grown from seed. Had a clear flesh-pink; beautiful under lamp light. Respectfully, Wm. McBrier.

Yes, that's Mr. Moss himself by that stone pillar.
Wish we had a "close up" of him to show you.

How Moss Keeps the Moss Off the Mossbacks

If you know Moss I don't need to tell you how he does it.
But if you are not so fortunate, then what he tells will interest you.

"Thirty years ago I was working for the other fellow, but all the time I was working for him, I was working for myself. Working for myself, by doing my work just the best I knew how. Every once in a while my boss would even find me working overtime.

Finding that he was not offended, I started in mornings earlier than we had agreed upon.

Then one night when my old corn cob had gone out, I says to myself, says I: Ike, you're a mossback if you are going to be content to stay on and on, working for the other fellow, when you are the fellow to work for.

So I went to Dad and told him I wanted to build a great big greenhouse in his yard—a lean-to 15x50.

For some unknown reason he said, 'Go to it, Ike, wish you luck.'

Now, I never believed much in luck.

Some folks fall into 'soft things' as they call them, but I call such chaps unlucky. The lucky fellow is the one who has found out that accomplishment of his own is one of the biggest things in life.

My recipe for accomplishment is hard work and keep on the job.

Starting with that little lean-to house, we now have quite a flock of them to kind of keep us from jazzing too much.

This curved-eave one across the drive is not a greenhouse at all, but just a big glass show-case which folks see into going by, and go into when they stop.

See those two entrances to make it convenient for them?

Fine house that. It's a Hitchings'. The first on my place. But let me tell you, it won't be my last. As Postum says: 'There's a Reason.'

To which let us add our sincere appreciation to you, Mr. Moss, for the privilege of building for such a straight thinking, success-making man as yourself.

Lily of the Valley

A POT PLANT "PAR-EXCELLENCE"

For Easter Sales . . . . . April 16

Our "Supreme" Quality Berlin Pips Make Production Easy

The advertisement which appeared in last week's Review has resulted in a hearty response, up-to-date florists evidently appreciating the value of this important profit-making suggestion.

Lily of the Valley is always in great favor with the flower-buying public and when offered in pots or pans containing 25 or more blooms, invariably finds a ready and quite profitable sale, especially at such times as Easter and Mothers' Day (one Chicago grower having disposed of over 2000 pots last year in a wholesale and retail way). Berlin-grown Pips, of which our "Supreme" Quality is a selected strain, can be flowered inside of 25 DAYS FROM TIME OF PLANTING, and are of the easiest culture. Book your order now for a liberal supply of these high grade Berlin Pips, and we will express them to you in good season, so that you can produce blooms for sale on two of the most active Florists' Merchandising dates of the year.

Last Call for Easter Blooming. Telegraph order at our expense and we will ship promptly.

| PRICE     | 250 for $10.00   |
| "SUPREME" | 500 for 15.00     |

| BERLIN    | Case of 2500,     |
| PIPS      | per 1000, $26.00 |

Do not miss this grand opportunity to have a supply of these real "profit-makers" on hand for the two live flower-selling dates of the year—especially Mothers' Day, when pot plants are usually at a premium.

NOTE—When ordering, please state number of Pips desired for both Easter and Mothers' Day, as same will be forwarded on different dates in order that growers may bring them into flower in time for the respective occasions.

To Increase Your Profit On Flowers—

First—stop needless expense and waste. Start with your refrigerator—why buy tons of ice every month, only to see your profits melt away? You can't depend on the variable temperature of an ice-cooled refrigerator—expensive blossoms wilt and become unsalable.

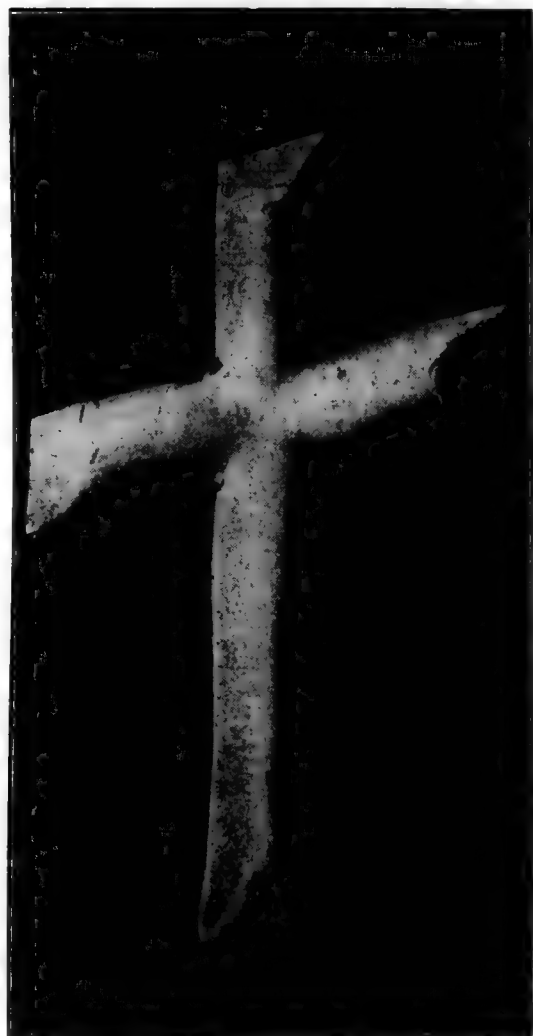

But—with Lipman Automatic Refrigeration a flood of crisp-cold air circulates through your refrigerator. Any desired temperature the year 'round with no attention from you! Flowers stay fresh weeks longer. You stop paying huge ice bills—and the Lipman is soon paid for out of the saving. You will easily make 50% profit on your investment!

Don't Be Caught Short

Without our patented cardboard Wreath Forms

Experience has shown us that most of our trade has paid too much for their Wreath Forms because they held back their orders until shipment had to be made by express. This increased the cost of the merchandise from 25 to 35 per cent. Besides, our customers lost business because they did not have the goods on hand—their customers would not wait when delivery could not be made at once. The profit on such specialties comes through having the goods on hand when wanted. It does not pay to approach the Christmas holidays with little goods on hand.

Therefore we suggest to you that you place your orders now for fall requirements in Christmas Wreath Forms.

Send for our line of samples of cardboard Wreath Forms as illustrated in this advertisement. Do it now. Prices and samples will be sent gratis on request. We make the following sizes:

Wreath Forms—4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 16-inch.

Star Forms—4, 6, 7, 9 and 12-inch.

Heart Forms—5, 6 and 7-inch.

Cross Forms—14x21-inch and 18x30-inch.

Write us today about your requirements.

BEST PERENNIALS FOR CUT FLOWERS

Though each year has seen a greater number of herbaceous perennials grown by florists for cut flowers, their use is by no means as extensive as it should be. The best kinds for this purpose were pointed out by Prof. Dorner at the Illinois florists' meeting this week.

AMONG the plants producing flowers suitable for cutting, the herbaceous perennials have not received the attention they deserve. They should be more commonly grown, as they add variety at a time when good flowers are invariably scarce.

One should not advocate growing them on the basis on which they are often advertised. An advertisement recently received states "that these plants cost you nothing after they are once planted and that they give you an abundance of cut flowers every year."

Cannot Be Neglected.

This statement is not true; the garden of herbaceous perennials is one of the most expensive to maintain. What may be said about the perennial garden may also be said about these same plants when grown for cut flowers. The peony is perhaps the perennial which requires the least attention after planting, but even it cannot be neglected if it is to be a paying crop. If one goes into the growing of herbaceous perennials he should do so with the intention of giving them the same attention he would his roses or carnations.

For convenience, herbaceous perennials may be placed in two groups; (a) those which do not want to be disturbed for a number of years, and (b), those which must be divided and replanted every two to four years. The former group includes those forms having large, fleshy roots, such as the peony and poppy. The latter group includes those which form large, heavy crowns or which multiply rapidly, forming dense masses or mats. The achilleas and sunflowers represent this group.

The second group of plants is, without doubt, the most costly to maintain, because they must be lifted, divided and replanted every two to four years. If this is not done, the crop will deteriorate. It is also a known fact that in this group the best crop of flowers is produced the second year. Before the second year the plants have not sufficiently recovered, and after it they begin to deteriorate.

Even though the first planting was all that was necessary, the upkeep must be considered. Under upkeep will come fertilizing, cultivating, weeding and mulching. Herbaceous perennials that remain in one place for any length of time deplete the soil; so fertilizer must be added. Cultivating is just as necessary as for an annual crop. Weeding is more difficult, because the perennial weeds get mixed up with the clumps and are hard to remove. In parts of the country where there is much thawing and freezing the plants must be mulched for protection.

Proper Planting.

Success in the growing of perennials demands a soil as well prepared as for the growing of a good crop of vegetables. The soil should be prepared deeply and manure and other fertilizer added as required, for the plants are not to be moved for two or three years.

The plantation should also be so situated that it may be watered when necessary. Water is just as important for a crop of herbaceous perennials as for annuals.

Planting is best done in rows sufficiently far apart for full development of the plant and for ease in cultivating. The distance between the plants in the rows will be from one to three feet, depending upon the variety. Keeping the soil cultivated will keep the weeds in check and will conserve the moisture.

The majority of herbaceous perennials are easily propagated by division. The plants are lifted, split into the desired number of parts, all grass and weeds removed, and then planted. Perennials may be divided either in the fall or spring. If done in the fall, it should be early enough so that the plants may become established before cold weather sets in. Spring planting should be done before much growth has taken place.

Some varieties are grown from top or root cuttings. Oriental poppies, Phlox paniculata, anchusas and gailardias are good examples.

Grown from Seed.

Where the plant is a true species or a variety has been fixed, it may be grown from seed. Some varieties, as the hybrid larkspurs and columbines, are grown from seed even though not fixed, because practically all the seedlings are better than the true species.

Seeds may be sown out of doors any time from spring until late summer. The seedlings should have time to become well established before cold weather. Seeds may also be sown in flats in March and April and pricked off into flats or pots and planted out later.

Few of the herbaceous perennials force readily during the winter months. They may, however, be brought into flower in the spring.

In growing perennials for cut flowers, plant only those that will thrive under ordinary conditions. Those forms requiring special care are usually neglected, due to the press of other work at the time. For guidance, an attempt will be made to discuss briefly some of the best varieties of herbaceous perennials for florists' use.

Achilleas Invaluable.

Of Achillea Ptarmica flore-pleno there are two varieties that are of especial interest, The Pearl and Perry's White. The latter is the newer variety and differs from the former in its larger and whiter flowers. Boule de Neige is a dwarfier form. These achilleas are invaluable, both for vase and funeral work. They continue in bloom about six weeks during midsummer and are easily propagated by division. New plantings should be made each year, as they deteriorate rapidly after the second season.

Achillea filipendulina, a yellow form, with tansy-like foliage, about four feet high and with large, flat clusters of yellow flowers, is also highly decorative. The flowers, if cut when mature, may be dried for winter bouquets. This species does not mat like Ptarmica, and so the clumps need not be disturbed for five or six years. It is easily propagated by division. It flowers in June and July.

Anemone japonica and its varieties make good cut flowers for late summer, as they do not begin flowering until August. Growing from two to three feet high, they may be cut with good stems. The colors vary from white through the light to dark pinks. Propagation is usually by root cuttings.

While aquilegias, or columbines, have a tendency to shatter after a day or two, the odd shape of the flowers and the beautiful colors make them useful as cut flowers. When well grown the flower stalks are from two to three feet in height. When well established the plants should be left undisturbed until they begin to deteriorate, when they should be replaced by seedling stock. The Rocky mountain columbine, A. cærulea, in its blue and white colors, is the finest of all. A. chrysantha, yellow, is a good long-spurred form. Outside these two, select the long-spurred hybrids, which will give a range of color through white, blue, yellow, red and pink.

Artemisia lactiflora is the only artemisia grown for its flowers. This plant, coming to us from China, produces large panicles of creamy white spiræa-like flowers. Its light and graceful appearance makes it valuable to use among larger and heavier flowers. It blooms from August to September.

For Forcing and Outdoors.

The herbaceous spiræas, or astilbes, may easily be grown outdoors if planted in a partly shaded location and given plenty of water. Both the pink and white forms used for forcing are valuable for cutting. Outdoors they flower in June and July. They are propagated by division of the clumps.

Campanula glomerata is one of the few campanulas that make good cut flowers. This species has the advantage over the other forms of the genus in having the dark blue or purple flowers in a large terminal cluster. It flowers in early May and June. Both it and its varieties are easily grown from seed. It forms large, compact clumps, requiring division every three or four years.

Both the Shasta daisy and the varieties of Chrysanthemum maximum, with their large, long-stemmed flowers, are far superior to the field daisy. All the forms are best grown from seed. Of the maximum varieties, King Edward VII and Mrs. Lothian Bell are good.

Some new stock should be grown each year to replace any loss through disease or freezing. They bloom in June and July.

If Chrysanthemum Leucanthemum is grown, select the newer varieties. The disadvantage of this species is its tendency to spread, but this may be overcome by not allowing it to go to seed. The variety White Lady has double flowers, somewhat resembling an anemone chrysanthemum. It is propagated from seed.

New Introduction.

Clematis recta mandshurica was sent out a few years ago by the Department of Agriculture, through its bureau of foreign plant and seed introduction. It is a large-flowering form of Clematis recta. The plant grows from two to three feet high and produces large masses of white flowers of the size and appearance of C. paniculata. These clusters make a beautiful combination with larger flowers for baskets and wedding bouquets. It is probably propagated by seeds, which are freely produced, and flowers in June and July.

Coreopsis lanceolata grandiflora is perhaps the best yellow of the summer cut flowers. It is best grown as a biennial, as it has a tendency to die out after it produces a heavy crop of flowers. It is easily grown from seed.

Delphiniums, or perennial larkspurs, should be more commonly grown as cut flowers. The pure blue flowers make beautiful combinations with pink carnations and roses and also with yellow. The open clusters of Belladonna, light blue, and Bellamosum, dark blue, are the most easily worked up. While D. formosum is a good dark variety with compact spikes, many of the hybrids are far superior. These hybrids also give a considerable range of color and may be single or double. If not allowed to go to seed, they will produce a second crop of flowers late in the season. They are easily propagated from seed.

Dianthus plumarius flore-pleno, the double grass pinks, are valuable, especially on account of their fragrance. The named varieties may be grown from cuttings or by layers. When grown from seed there is always a certain percentage of singles.

Euphorbia corollata, a native spurge, produces a wealth of white bloom in late summer. The gypsophila-like flowers last well and may be used in the same way as the annual baby's breath. It is propagated by seed or division.

Eryngium amethystinum is mentioned here because its amethyst-tinted, silvery heads may be dried for winter bouquets. It is grown from seed.

Flowers Through Summer.

Gaillardia aristata is similar to the annual blanket flower, but is much larger and brighter. Its red and yellow flowers last well in water and are good for cemetery use. This is one of the few herbaceous perennials that flower throughout the summer. It is easily propagated by seeds, division, or root cuttings.

Gypsophila paniculata flore-pleno, the double form of baby's breath, is so superior to the single that the latter will not be included. This airy, graceful flower works in beautifully with other flowers in bouquets, vases or designs. It is perhaps one of the best of the herbaceous perennials. It dries beautifully and may be used with the strawflowers. It is propagated by division, cuttings or grafting. It may also be grown from seed, but only a small portion come double.

Single Gaillardia.

Helianthus multiflorus flore-pleno is a double hardy sunflower with a flower like a large zinnia. It needs some protection to prevent it from freezing. It is propagated by division. Several of the single forms may be used, but the annual form, cucumerifolius and its varieties, is superior for cutting. It blooms in July and August.

Heliopsis scabra zinniflora should be grown for its bright, orange-yellow, zinnia-like flowers. It is not so stiff looking as the double sunflower and is perfectly hardy. It should be propagated by division. H. Pitcheriana semiplena is a semi-double variety. It flowers in July and August.

Heuchera sanguinea varieties may well be grown for their graceful clusters of small, bell-like flowers. The varieties vary from white to deep crimson. The named varieties are best propagated by division. They flower in July and August.

Many Varieties of Iris.

Where they can be used locally, many varieties of iris may be grown. Those most common are of the so-called germanica group, which includes the pallida and florentina varieties. They are propagated by division and should be replanted every four or five years. If transplanted three or four weeks after blooming they will flower the next year.

Lychnis chalcedonica is perhaps the brightest of the few scarlet perennials. Its small, brilliant, dianthus-like flowers are arranged in flat, compact heads. It grows from two to three feet high. It is easily grown from seed.

Pæonia albiflora varieties give one of the most valuable outdoor cut flower crops. This plant is so commonly grown that it will be passed over here with the mere statement that it is propagated by division and should be transplanted in the fall. Peonies should not be disturbed until the plants get too large and crowd one another.

Phloxes Are Favored.

Phlox paniculata decussata gives many beautiful varieties that may be useful, but the white and light pinks are in greatest demand. The white forms were formerly much used in funeral work. These form the latest of all the phlox. They are propagated by division or by stem or root cuttings.

Phlox suffruticosa precedes the paniculata type and differs from it mainly in the shape of the inflorescence. Miss Lingard, a white with a pink eye, is the favorite. There are also several pink forms. It is propagated like paniculata.

Physostegia virginica, another native plant, is also often used for cutting. The flowers are of a delicate, soft pink. There is also a white variety. It grows four to five feet high and is propagated easily by division.

Pyrethrum roseum, with its aster-like flowers, from light pink to crimson, should be more commonly grown. The flowers may be cut with 12-inch to 18-inch stems. It is easily grown from seed.

Rudbeckia laciniata Golden Glow is too well known to need description. It is so easily propagated and so easily grown that it has spread over the country in a short time. May be serviceable in large decorative work. It flowers in August.

Rudbeckia Newmanii is one of the black-eyed Susans. It grows about twenty-four to thirty inches high. It is propagated by seed or division.

Solidago Virgaurea, or its variety nana, is a goldenrod that should be in every perennial collection. It is the earliest to flower, coming into bloom in May and June, with Delphinium Belladonna. It should have a ready use at this time, as the native goldenrods are not yet in flower. It is best propagated by division.

Viola cornuta G. Wermig is one of the tufted violas. The flowers are small and of the size and color of a Princess of Wales violet. In England it is bunched like violets and has a ready sale. It is propagated by cuttings and division, and prefers a moist, somewhat shaded situation.

Other herbaceous perennials that may be of use to the florist growing his own stock are the various species of hemerocallis, oriental poppies, Scabiosa caucasica, veronicas, aconitum, or monk's hood, Eupatorium urticæfolium and pentstemons.

HIGH DUTY ON FOLIAGE.

The Senate finance committee has agreed upon a rate of sixty-five per cent ad valorem, foreign valuation plan, for assessment on imported prepared foliage. This would include cypress, hemlock and oak leaves, and similar commodities used by florists in the making of funeral designs and for general decorative purposes when it is impossible to get the natural leaves. An extensive domestic industry producing foliage of this kind was brought into being during the war period, when it was found impossible to bring in imports from France, Belgium, Germany and other European countries and Japan. Domestic manufacturers informed Congress that it would not be possible for them to stay in business and face the competition, especially that of Japan, where labor costs are extremely small, unless afforded adequate tariff protection. They found Congress in a receptive mood and the rate of sixty-five per cent has accordingly been granted them. It is quite probable that the House will agree to the Senate proposal. A. E. G.

FERN SPORES.

We have several flats of fern spores saved from our own pteris in pots (not the tremula). The result from sowing shows only Pteris tremula. The same thing is true with the adiantum. What is the cause? F. P. H.—Can.

You probably have a number of Pteris tremula flowering among your other ferns and, in this case, spores from them have undoubtedly blown onto the pans or flats containing your other pteris and adiantum spores. P. tremula is an easy doer and comes up earlier than other sorts. Either move the tremulas to another house, or better still, dispense with them; then you are fairly certain to have more encouraging results. You should sterilize your soil for fern spore sowing, preferably with steam, and also sterilize the water to be used, by boiling, until the seedlings are large enough to transplant, as water contains many substances destructive to the spores. Adiantums take at least three months longer than such pteris as tremula and cretica to reach a size for transplanting. C. W.

ST. LOUIS PREPARING.

To make up for the national flower show which was not held at St. Louis, the florists of that city are planning to make the show in connection with the exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, November 7 to 12, an event that will surpass all the horticultural displays which have been made there. It is planned to hold this big fall show at the Coliseum. An organization has been formed, called the St. Louis Flower Show Association, Inc. The officers of the executive committee are: Chairman, J. Fred Ammann; vice-chairman, H. G. Berning; treasurer, W. A. Rowe; executive secretary, J. J. Beneke. The chairmen of the committees are as follows:

COLLEGE FLORISTS TO MEET.

The college florists' section of the S. A. F. is to meet in Indianapolis during the national flower show. The meetings will include reports by committees on various subjects of importance to the growth and development of the educational and experimental side of floriculture.

The subjects and the committees are as follows:

Teaching Work in Floriculture—Prof. E. A. White, of Cornell University, chairman; Prof. E. I. Wilde, of Pennsylvania State College, and Prof. A. C. Hottes, of Ohio State University.

Research and Experimental Work in Floriculture—Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, of University of Illinois, chairman; Dr. A. C. Beal, of Cornell University, and Prof. R. H. Patch, of Connecticut Agricultural College.

Relationship with the Trade—Prof. A. H. Nehrling, of Cornell University, chairman; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, and J. Fred Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.

Floriculture, Its Relation to Agriculture in Colleges—Prof. A. S. Thurston, Maryland University, chairman; Prof. E. C. Vois, Iowa State College, and Prof. Victor Ries, of Purdue University.

Future Policies—Prof. C. L. Thayer, Massachusetts Agricultural College, chairman; H. A. Pratt, of Cornell University, and S. W. Hall, of University of Illinois.

If any members of the trade have constructive suggestions or ideas about any of these subjects, they should feel free to communicate them to the chairman or some other member of that committee. It is only through the coöperation of the trade that educational and experimental work can develop to be of greatest value to the trade.

NUTTING NOT EMBARRASSED.

An unfortunate juxtaposition of type placed an item regarding the withdrawal of Ellis G. Carswell from the firm of Nutting & Carswell, Macon, Ga., under the heading "Business Embarrassments" in the March 2 issue of The Review. It was not meant to be there. The withdrawal of Mr. Carswell affects the firm not one whit, for George G. Nutting has held the sole financial interest in the firm, which is now known as the Nutting Floral Co., and is paying his bills with the same promptness as ever.

STUDENT FLORIST

FUTURE OF COLLEGE GRADUATE.

In Floriculture.

The floriculture student while at college has certain ideals. He wishes to secure direct knowledge of floriculture, to broaden his vision, and learn to become a better citizen. Then it can be stated, in outline form, that the aims and objects of a curriculum in floriculture are threefold: (1) To enable the student to secure and accumulate the basic principles of floriculture; (2) to know how to use them; (3) to become a better citizen.

After the student graduates, what? True, he is not a florist; that is, not a finished one. No, but he has his scientific training and basic principles upon which to build. He expects to overtake the fellow who has received his training through practical experience, and he expects to pass him. While engaged in practical work, the graduate can make a study of the methods of various greenhouse practices; by his training he can understand the reasons for these practices, and thus help to solve the problems of the florist. To this extent he is superior to the man who has had only practical training. This training enables the graduate, through his broadened vision, to reason and to solve correctly the problems as they arise.

Then comes that old argument, that some of the graduates think they know it all. Indeed, we are sorry for this. But that know-it-all type of young man is everywhere. Then, we have the other extreme, the student who cannot even tie roses. But such a man never graduated from Illinois.

Graduate's Attitude.

What does the graduate expect from the commercial florist? He does not want his business or even the management of it. What he does want is a job, an opportunity to learn, to study the problems as they come up in a commercial establishment, as well as to do manual labor. Further, he hopes that in time his services will be worth more than a mere 10-hour day to his employer. However, he cannot entertain this hope if he is not given the opportunity. The florist can expect, besides manual labor, help upon the business end of the establishment, help on the methods of various practices and improvement of these methods, and help in the control and prevention of diseases and insect pests, plus the various everyday concerns of the establishment. In return, the student expects proper reimbursement, not the largest salary in the beginning, but a livable wage and one commensurate with the merit of his services.

Employer's Attitude.

Some florists object to employing a student or a graduate, on the basis that he soon leaves and goes into business for himself. This is a poor reason. Can you blame him for leaving, especially when he has no opportunity to advance; when he has spent four years in scientific training preparing for the business, and when he receives only nominal wages? Can you expect him to stick for a lifetime under these conditions? Most of the students who have completed the work in floriculture at present are in business for themselves, or, to be exact, fifty per cent are in business for themselves, thirty-three per cent are working for others in the business, and seventeen per cent have gone into other lines.

Do you not believe that these young men, who are making a systematic and scientific study of floriculture, who are vitally interested in the success of floriculture, and who are training themselves for better citizenship, can attain a success as great as yours, or the average among you? Do you not believe that some day these young men are to be the leaders in floriculture? I can assure you that they will, if you give them the opportunity.

It is upon these facts and this reasoning that the student of floriculture makes his plea and his appeal to you, the florists of Illinois and of the world, for a place in the sun. Give us the opportunity; that is all we ask.

ILLINOIS STATE MEETING

ILLINOIS FLORISTS MEET.

At State University.

Urbana, Ill., attracted a large number of florists to the seventeenth annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, which took place at the floriculture building of the University of Illinois March 14 and 15. The university, with its excellent experimental station and its staff of able faculties, formed no small part of the attraction.

The executive committee, Joseph Kohout, A. T. Hey, W. J. Hembreiker and F. L. Washburn, had drawn up the following recommendations, in a letter addressed to Prof. J. C. Blair, head of the department of floriculture there, which were subsequently adopted by the association, and which reflect the progressive spirit of the Illinois florists:

We, the advisory committee of the Illinois State Florists' Experimental Station, in session here assembled, at Urbana, March 14, 1922, after thoroughly going over the work accomplished and the necessary work to be done at the station, which is so forcibly presented to us and demanded by the floricultural interests of the state for experimental and instructional work, would, therefore,

Recommend that two more houses, in addition to those already asked for last year, be erected; that the laboratory asked for last year, and which we deem vitally necessary in the experimental work, be taken care of; and we also strongly recommend that the palm house, as planned, should be completed.

We would also recommend that there be at least one competent assistant appointed to assist Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer in his laboratory work; and that a field worker be employed to visit the florists of the state in an advisory capacity, similar to the county advisors in the farming interests.

We would also call your attention to the important matter of the outdoor work, which we deem as an important and necessary adjunct to the educational and instructional work of the station, and as a means of educating the public in the interests of the advancement of the art of floriculture in general.

Addresses and Business.

The officers who served during the last year were reelected, as follows: President, Joseph Kohout, Libertyville; secretary, Albert T. Hey, Maywood, and treasurer, Frank L. Washburn, Bloomington.

In his report the secretary presented the following summary:

Balance on hand March 1, 1921.....$590.34
Paid to treasurer..... 242.00
Interest ..... 10.54

Total .....$842.88
Disbursements ..... 270.60
Balance in treasury ..... 572.28

The membership consists of the following: Annual members, 64; life members, 89; total, 153.

In a stirring talk Professor J. C. Blair emphasized the fact that the experimental station is the florists', and that it is the greatest in the world. Illinois, he said, leads in floriculture and is the possessor of the largest agricultural institution in the world.

Directly following his talk, Professor Blair introduced Dean of Agriculture Eugene Davenport, who made a cheering address of welcome. Among other facts, he emphasized the importance of funds for maintaining a station such as that at the university.

President Kohout then made his official address. This speech is printed on another page of this issue.

Honor E. G. Hill.

E. G. Hill talked of his work with roses for a few minutes and paid tribute to such men as Pernet, Montgomery and Cook. During the program Mr. Hill was presented with a heartfelt tribute by the Illinoisans, a hand-lettered testimonial, which is shown on page 30. The words read as follows:

When through painstaking work and study a man accomplishes something that is of great value to the people, he is worthy of special recognition by his fellow men. By your wonderful work in the development of the modern rose, you, E. G. Hill, have not only added to the pleasure of the people, but have added to the prosperity of your brother florists. The members of the Illinois State Florists' Association, in meeting assembled on the fourteenth day of March, 1922, take this means of expressing their appreciation of your great achievements.

To the above Mr. Hill responded with much feeling.

During the business session the association adopted an amendment to the constitution which provides that the association shall meet on the second Tuesday of March annually at Urbana.

The matter of certificates of merit to amateurs and that concerning the fall flower show were referred to the executive committee.

Evening Program.

The evening program, left wholly in the hands of the students through the Floriculture Club, was a great success and filled Morrow hall, where the "doings" were held, to satiety. First of all the president of the club, R. C. Hodgkin, welcomed the visitors to the home of the club. Then Carl Grunnevelde "Laughed It with Flowers" in a humorous presentation of "Say It with Flowers" in clever portrayal. Mrs. H. B. Dorner delighted everyone with a vocal selection. She was encored repeatedly. Then R. C. Hodgkin reappeared with a fine paper on "What Is the Future of the College Graduate?" This appears on another page of this issue. Jane Kohout rendered interpretations of dances. After this came a skit, "After the Meeting," in which the following characters appeared: Fred J. Gammage, George W. Morgan, A. L. Glacier, Mr. Nehrman and U. H. Johnson. This program was received with great applause.

formed Congress that it would not be possible for them to stay in business and face the competition, especially that of Japan, where labor costs are extremely small, unless afforded adequate tariff protection. They found Congress in a receptive mood and the rate of sixty-five per cent has accordingly been granted them. It is quite probable that the House will agree to the Senate proposal. A. E. G.

FERN SPORES.

We have several flats of fern spores saved from our own pteris in pots (not the tremula). The result from sowing shows only Pteris tremula. The same thing is true with the adiantum. What is the cause? F. P. H.—Can.

You probably have a number of Pteris tremula flowering among your other ferns and, in this case, spores from them have undoubtedly blown onto the pans or flats containing your other pteris and adiantum spores. P. tremula is an easy doer and comes up earlier than other sorts. Either move the tremulas to another house, or better still, dispense with them; then you are fairly certain to have more encouraging results. You should sterilize your soil for fern spore sowing, preferably with steam, and also sterilize the water to be used, by boiling, until the seedlings are large enough to transplant, as water contains many substances destructive to the spores. Adiantums take at least three months longer than such pteris as tremula and cretica to reach a size for transplanting. C. W.

ST. LOUIS PREPARING.

To make up for the national flower show which was not held at St. Louis, the florists of that city are planning to make the show in connection with the exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, November 7 to 12, an event that will surpass all the horticultural displays which have been made there. It is planned to hold this big fall show at the Coliseum. An organization has been formed, called the St. Louis Flower Show Association, Inc. The officers of the executive committee are: Chairman, J. Fred Ammann; vice-chairman, H. G. Berning; treasurer, W. A. Rowe; executive secretary, J. J. Beneke. The chairmen of the committees are as follows:

Finance—H. B. Berning
Premium—W. A. Rowe
Publicity—Frank A. Windler
Guarantee fund—A. H. Hummert
Special premiums—David S. Goddis

COLLEGE FLORISTS TO MEET.

The college florists' section of the S. A. F. is to meet in Indianapolis during the national flower show. The meetings will include reports by committees on various subjects of importance to the growth and development of the educational and experimental side of floriculture.

The subjects and the committees are as follows:

Teaching Work in Floriculture—Prof. E. A. White, of Cornell University, chairman; Prof. E. I. Wilde, of Pennsylvania State College, and Prof. A. C. Hottes, of Ohio State University.

Research and Experimental Work in Floriculture—Dr. P. A. Lehenbauer, of University of Illinois, chairman; Dr. A. C. Beal, of Cornell University, and Prof. R. H. Patch, of Connecticut Agricultural College.

Relationship with the Trade—Prof. A. H. Nehrling, of Cornell University, chairman; S. S. Pennoek, Philadelphia, and J. Fred Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.

Floriculture, Its Relation to Agriculture in Colleges—Prof. A. S. Thurston, Maryland University, chairman; Prof. E. C. Volz, Iowa State College, and Prof. Victor Ries, of Purdue University.

Future Policies—Prof. C. L. Thayer, Massachusetts Agricultural College, chairman; H. A. Pratt, of Cornell University, and S. W. Hall, of University of Illinois.

If any members of the trade have constructive suggestions or ideas about any of these subjects, they should feel free to communicate them to the chairman or some other member of that committee.

tee. It is only through the coöperation of the trade that the educational and experimental work can develop to be of greatest value to the trade.

A. S. Thurston, Sec'y.

NUTTING NOT EMBARRASSED.

An unfortunate juxtaposition of type placed an item regarding the withdrawal of Ellis G. Carswell from the firm of Nutting & Carswell, Macon, Ga., under the heading "Business Embarrassments" in the March 2 issue of The Review. It was not meant to be there. The withdrawal of Mr. Carswell affects the firm not one whit, for George G. Nutting has held the sole financial interest in the firm, which is now known as the Nutting Floral Co., and is paying his bills with the same promptness as ever.

STUDENT FLORIST

In Floriculture.

The floriculture student while at college has certain ideals. He wishes to secure direct knowledge of floriculture, to broaden his vision, and learn to become a better citizen. Then it can be stated, in outline form, that the aims and objects of a curriculum in floriculture are threefold: (1) To enable the student to secure and accumulate the basic principles of floriculture; (2) to know how to use them; (3) to become a better citizen.

After the student graduates, what? True, he is not a florist; that is, not a finished one. No, but he has his scientific training and basic principles upon which to build. He expects to overtake the fellow who has received his training through practical experience, and he expects to pass him. #### ORGANIZATION NECESSARY.

Looking to the Future.

At the present time we all know of great powers that the trade unions of our day are exerting over industry. What could the workingmen have done against the mighty business combinations that exist today, if they had not organized into the strong economic bodies that the unions are today? Nothing.

So, too, with us florists. If we go on, each one by himself, trying to better our condition, raise the standard of our business, find new and better ways of producing, selling and increasing the demand for our product, we shall accomplish comparatively nothing. Organization, gentlemen, is the only way we can do these things.

Organization also furthers experimentation. Columbus' wonderful experiment would not have been possible if Spain had not, shortly before, organized herself as a state, and our experimental station here would not have been a reality if we had not been organized. Organized feeling created it, and organized interest is necessary to keep it an important institution.

On the other hand, we have those who believe that we are having too many organizations. It has been said that this is a sign of weakness. Can this be true when organizations, because of their nature, are embodiments of strength?

Solving the Problem.

But suppose we grant that there are too many organizations, then there is a need for a strong central organization. Very well. That brings me to a matter which I wish to emphasize. All florists' organizations of Illinois should unite themselves into a strong central body—just as there is a need for centralization of organizations now existing. If we can have all of the organizations now working as a unit, we can have more efficiency. Matters of importance to the florists' trade can be handled more easily, and with greater benefit to the members. Every question that arises, whether it be a question of growing, distributing or retailing of flowers and plants, is of vital importance to all of the members of the florists' trade. Every problem will ultimately affect the florists' trade and, therefore, every member of the trade should have a voice in the solution of the problem.

The state experimental station was created through the organization of the florists. Apparently the florists do not realize the importance of this institution. We are indeed fortunate to have an institution of this kind. It takes years to make successful experiments in floriculture, and this experimental station is the best place to carry on these experiments. Here we have men who are devoting their whole time to these experiments. This manner of experimenting is necessarily more efficient than individual experiments would be.

I would strongly recommend that you men bring your sons with you to see the results that the experiment station has accomplished. It takes years to accomplish anything in an undertaking like this and the younger generation should profit by the present experiments.

Educating the Son.

This will profit the younger generation in two ways: It will give them a modern basis on which to start their business. Secondly, they can get a fairly good conception of the general important matters of our profession, and they can mold their future study or work to correspond with the things they learn here. This will also benefit you, because your sons, in gradually learning the fundamental advances made in floriculture, can build up a knowledge that will stand you in good stead in case of an emergency.

Above all, I should like to impress upon you the importance of sending your sons here to study the fundamentals of our profession. They will have to compete against many college-trained men, and they will be distinctly at a disadvantage if they have not had that training. Not only in actually learning the bare facts of their profession do they profit, but also in the associations with the people they meet there.

We are in an age of keen competition, and it will take trained men to meet it squarely. I do not mean to say that competition is entirely within the florists' industry. We must compete against other industries that are attempting to have their products replace flowers.

KILLING SNAILS.

Snails seem to be more than usually troublesome, to judge from the inquiries asking how to rid greenhouses of these pests.

Sprinkling air-slaked lime or black soot around their haunts and about the plants is a sure preventive of attacks from snails. The lime will destroy all that it touches. As it is the habit of snails to do most of their work in the evening, at night or on dark days, select such times to sprinkle lime on the floors or benches. This is the simplest and most effective remedy. Give your house a dusting of lime before planting, and a large proportion of the snails will be destroyed.

They will not cross a line of cork dust, sawdust or bran. Lines of salt will not be passed by them, for contact with salt means sure death to them. A line of any of these materials, cutting off the beds where plants are, or a ring around the plants will protect the plants.

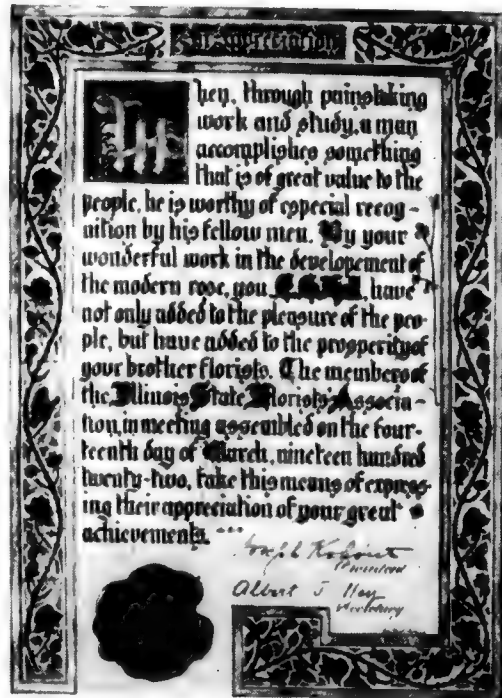

A reader recently stated that the most positive way to kill snails is to use tobacco dust. "The snail appears to dry up the moment it comes in contact with the dust," stated this reader. "The tobacco dust is sure death. The slime on the snail absorbs the tobacco and the effect is immediate. This remedy can be used freely, because it will not destroy plant life."

EXTERMINATING MEALY BUG.

Kindly let me know what I can use to get rid of mealy bugs.

G. R.—Ark.

A stiff spray of cold water is the usual method of holding mealy bugs in check. Nicoteneolate is effective where the cold water spray is insufficient. Your state entomologist will advise you how to make it.

SCIENTIFIC INFORMATION

WHAT FLORISTS SHOULD KNOW.

Controlling Soil Diseases.

In attempting to discuss a big and more or less indefinite subject such as the title of my paper suggests, I do not wish to have you think that the writer knows more about the practice of growing greenhouse crops than do his listeners. The writer is fully aware that growing plants for the production of flowers of high quality is an art based, in a large measure, upon experience.

But aside from the knowledge acquired by experience, there is a mass of knowledge, more or less systematized, which has been acquired by careful and painstaking experiments. Scientific facts, however, are not always easy of application and often, unfortunately, it is difficult to harmonize them with our experiences.

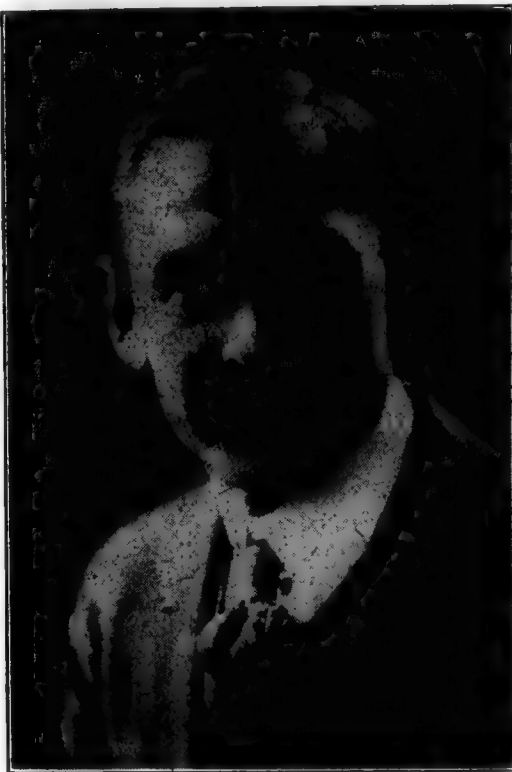

One of the important problems of the florist at the present time is the control of soil diseases. By soil diseases I mean not a lack of fertility of soil, due to an insufficiency of plant nutrients, but diseases caused by fungi which inhabit the soil. The aster is killed by a wilt, the sweet pea by a root rot, the carnation by stem rot, the violet by a root rot, the cyclamen by a rot at the base of the leaves.

Futility of Sterilizing Soil.

We have not yet learned how to control these diseases in every case. The fact that the causal fungi live in the soil and attack the plant at the root or at the base of the stem, makes the common practices of spraying and fumigating useless. Soil sterilization by means of heat is not always practical and, in the case of some diseases, it is also ineffective. Stem rot of carnations is most destructive early in fall, during August, September and October; the root rot of the sweet pea is noticeably destructive if the crop is planted early. In a similar way with other crops, the temperature of soil and air is a determining factor. We may conclude from this that a method of control of such diseases lies in the time of planting the crops. Soil sterilization by means of heat is not always practical and, in the case of some of these diseases, not effective.

Formalin has been tried extensively by several experiment stations for the control of root rot and damping off of seedlings, and is definitely recommended. Sodium cyanide in solution has been recommended for the control of eelworm, with the suggestion that this substance may prove efficient against soil fungous diseases as well. Acid phosphate has been found useful in the control of the root rot of some plants. Bleaching powder gave good results in England in some experimental plots of vegetable crops.

We must realize, however, that soil disinfectants, although they have proven successful in particular cases, have certain limitations and shortcomings. Fungi often are in a stage in which they are resistant and, like seeds of higher plants, may be subjected to drying, freezing, high degrees of temperature, and poisons without being killed. A fungus is killed readily, however, when in the growing stage. It is imperative, therefore, that when a disinfectant is applied to a soil, conditions have been favorable for the growth of the fungus. Such conditions imply a favorable temperature and adequate moisture. But it is more important to keep in mind that any additions of soil, manures or other organic matter will inoculate the treated soil with the fungus and thus influence the effectiveness of the disinfectant. The soil in the bench may be disinfected and the parasitic fungus thus destroyed, but when seedling plants are set into this soil, the fungus may readily be reintroduced by means of the soil clinging to the roots of the plants. Adding natural manures to the soil after disinfection may bring about similar results.

Analyzing Fertilizers.

From the standpoint of fertility there are three essential food elements with which the grower is concerned; namely, nitrogen, potassium and phosphorus. As to the form in which fertilizers occur, we may classify them in a general way into two groups: Those which are readily available to the plant, and those which become available only slowly. The florist expects a relatively rapid growth of his plants and, in order to obtain this, a fertilizer which is readily available is desirable. It is for this reason that we recommend such fertilizers as sodium nitrate, dried blood, acid phosphate and treated bone. Soluble nitrogen compounds are more or less pronounced in their effects on plants by the resulting type of growth. The effects of phosphorus and potassium compounds are less evident, but, on the other hand, overfeeding with them is also less likely.

The application of proper fertilizers to soils does not necessarily insure the best growth of plants; the use of phosphorus, and potassium and nitrogen will not result in high-grade plants if other conditions are unfavorable to growth. The plant has certain soil requirements, aside from those of chemical composition of soil. The physical state of the soil is no less important. Therefore, growth of the root system requires conditions within the soil which permit a ready diffusion of air in order that the cells of the roots may be supplied with oxygen and, at the same time, conditions which permit them to dispose of the useless waste products. In addition, a circulation of air in the soil is essential for the various chemical processes which are going on in our soils, whereby the soil materials are made soluble and changed into forms usable by the plant.

These physical conditions of the soil often are the limiting conditions of growth; that is, they are the factors which determine the amount and quality of growth rather than the quantities of fertilizers present in the soil. As I have pointed out to you on previous occasions, these physical conditions of the soil may be provided in our greenhouse soils by means of organic matter, such as manures, and by regulating the moisture conditions of the soil. Natural manures supply food materials to the plant, but in addition they furnish, what is equally important, a favorable environment for the roots of the plants. The organic matter of soils, which may be provided by means of manures, furnishes not only food materials for both plants and bacteria, but by means of it the soil is provided with proper conditions of air and moisture for the growth of the roots. If the soil is heavy and compact, it is made more open and porous, so that water and air penetrate more freely; if the soil is light and sandy, it is made more compact.

Regulating Growing Conditions.

The florist grows his plants under intensified conditions; that is, under conditions stimulating rapid growth. The factors involved in this forcing process are a relatively high temperature, increased moisture and an abundant food supply. Under these intensified conditions, the plant reaches a high state of perfection. So long as the external conditions, as well as the internal conditions of the plant, remain uniform the plant responds ideally, but with each and every change in the growing factors there occurs a critical period in which its health, if not its very life, hangs in the balance. In its natural state the plant is adjusted to the variable and even severe changes and it responds readily without effect. But in our greenhouses, where conditions of intensive culture prevail, at any rate during its early period of growth, the plant in its tense state is but little adapted to any change in its environment and when such changes come, be it a cloudy period or be it sudden change in temperature or moisture, the plant responds by a change in color of leaves, by defoliation or perhaps by a loss of many buds.

Such cases, of course, cannot be cured after they have happened. In course of time the plant will adjust itself to the new conditions and grow again to the highest perfection possible. The only remedy lies in prevention, and this consists in following either one of two courses. One is the regulation and the control of all growing conditions in such a way that the highly sensitive plant is not severely checked in its physiological processes; the other lies in methods of growing plants so that they are less sensitive; that is, more highly resistant to any or all changes of the environment when they occur. The first method is the more difficult and often not possible; the latter, although difficult, is possible. It depends for its success upon supplying the plant, during its early growth, with conditions of food, soil, water and air which will make it desirable in every respect, yet hardy enough to withstand all influences to which it may become exposed. I receive letters in which the writers tell me that their plants grew nicely and then suddenly the leaves stopped growing and are now falling off; or possibly the writer encloses some leaves, saying that the leaves are turning yellow. In answer to such an inquiry I can only say that the plants grew nicely because there was no disturbing factor, but when the disturbing factor came the leaves turned yellow. Possibly you watered too much; possibly the plants, under the conditions of your houses, needed a different degree of temperature; possibly there was a lack of light, for all of these things may produce yellow leaves; or possibly your plant was overforced, so that when the critical time came it was not strong enough, not resistant enough to stand up under adversity.

It is not a question of fertilizer, but it is a question of growing the plants under a set of conditions which makes for perfection of growth, yet hardy enough to resist the changed conditions of a cloudy spell.

MOVE VENICE TO ST. LOUIS.

Grimm & Gorly Perform Feat.

It was to be a coming-out ball for one of the fairest debutantes in St. Louis. And it was to be a "night in Venice." But the entire assemblage could not go to old Venice for the scene of action. Instead, the mother of the debutante went to Grimm & Gorly, of St. Louis, and they, in a magically short time, brought Venice to St. Louis in a plan of decoration that was at once unique and admirable. This they did all for $16,000. In fact, they managed everything from style of invitations to the making of gondolas, and when it was all over, the mother of the debutante said complimentarily, "It was done without a hitch and on time." Night-time Venice was brought right to the home of the debutante, where a frame structure, 100x118 feet, covered with canvas, had been erected alongside the palatial residence.

A panorama of what was done is shown in the illustration on this page. Everything was there—lagoons, bridges, balconies, gondolas, gondoliers, the quaint period lights of various colored shades, the Doges' palace and prison, St. Mark's cathedral, a large area for dancing and a raised dais for the musicians.

The ceiling was covered to an entirety with southern smilax. Round about the lagoons, walls, etc., distinction was added by the use of 500 palms, woodwardia sprays, moss and more than 1,000 American Beauties. These aided also in beautifying the walks, ingeniously made of canvas, which circled about the entire circumference of the dance floor.

Realistic.

The lagoon, spanned by four 10-foot bridges, was seven feet wide and made of galvanized iron, painted white. In the waters were gold and silver fish and many water lilies. The bridges were made of wood and painted white to resemble stonework.

Remarkable among the features was an exact reproduction of the entrance to St. Mark's, the Venetian palaces, the prison walls, etc. Not even the doves and pigeons were missing.

The dance floor, to which entrance was made over the bridges, was a marvel of decoration, with plastic work at every corner. At each corner was a large urn containing 100 American Beauties. The designs were truly Venetian.

Lights glittered on all sides. They were made of parchment especially for the occasion and were painted various colors to resemble Venetian glass. Along the walks, however, all the lights were white.

Each gondola, in which gondoliers sang and rowed all night, was equipped with silken and lace cushions, two lanterns, spangles and draperies. The balconies alongside the lagoon were draped in silks also. Richness pervaded the entire scene.

NORTH AND SOUTH.

Advertisers on the Atlantic coast and on the Pacific slope have found The Review a most effective advertising medium. That their experience is not different from that of advertisers in the north and in the south is here shown:

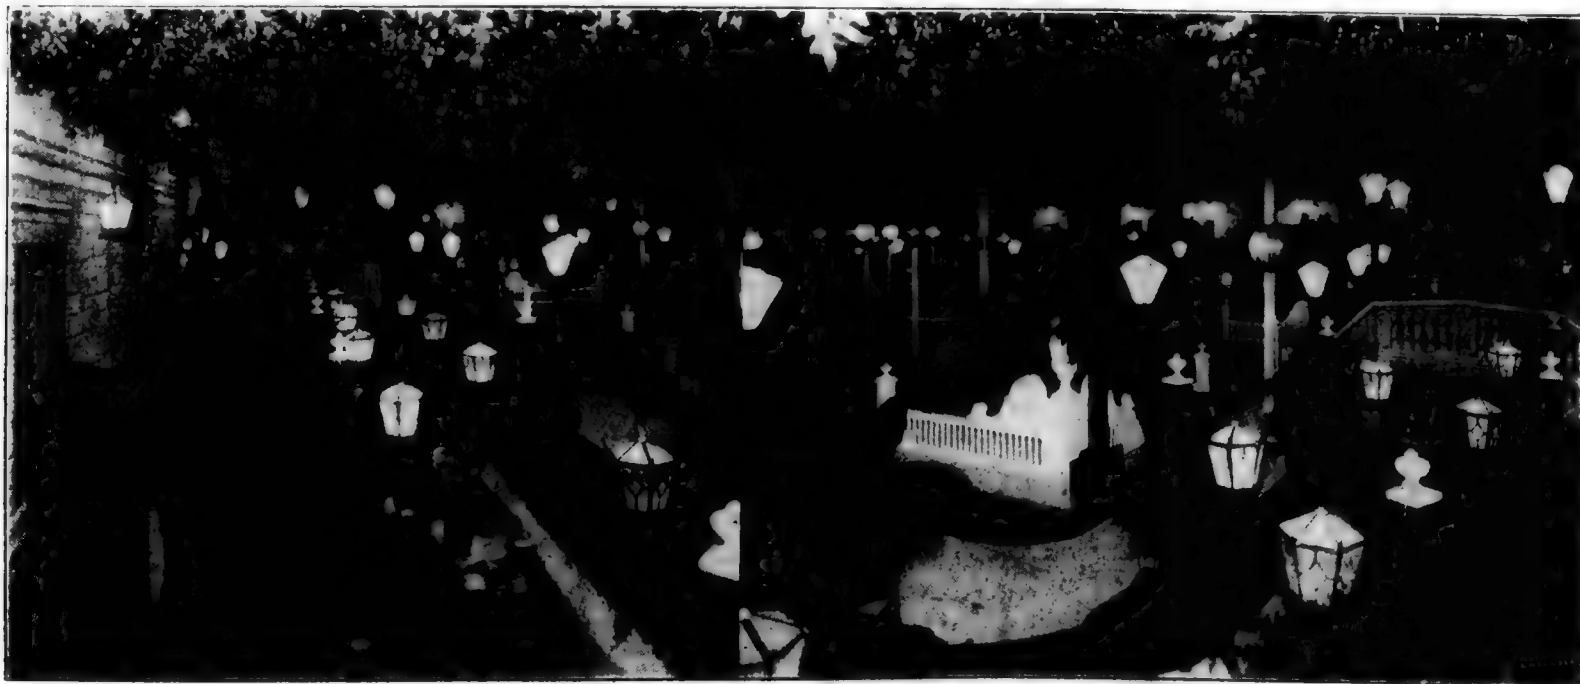

That ad sure worked quick; could have sold a great many more plants and I hope to have something else to offer soon.—William Rayner, Oconomowoc, Wis., March 11, 1922.

If our tuberose ad has not expired, please discontinue same at once, as we are sold out "lock, stock and barrel." Good advertising backed by good stock is the best business builder there is. Good stock at fair prices is the cheapest in the long run. You are at liberty to state I said so, if you wish.—W. L. Heller, Alvin Cape Jasmine & Floral Co., Alvin, Tex., March 9, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Indianapolis, Ind.—A severe attack of influenza has kept E. E. Temperley confined to his home for two weeks. He is improving daily now, however.

New Orleans, La.—Max Scheinuk visited Chicago last week, and while there placed an order with F. Lautenschlager, manager of the greenhouse department of Kroeschell Bros. Co., for a 1½-ton Kroeschell ice machine. Mr. Scheinuk will have his new machine in operation before Easter.

NEW YORK'S SPRING SHOW

Draws Great Crowds.

The ninth international flower show opened Monday afternoon, March 13, in the Grand Central Palace, New York, with favorable weather and all details as to arrangements fully perfected. As soon as the doors were opened the public swarmed in, and until closing time the building was well filled, insuring satisfactory box office receipts.

There were two or three important features to be observed in the staging of this show. First, practically every foot of space usable for exhibition purposes was taken up; second, a material change in the general layout of the show was readily noticeable; third, the entire space set apart for trade exhibits was filled, and, as rarely happens, some would-be exhibitors were turned away.

It was a show of many vistas. The breaking up of the conventional lines, or rows of exhibits, last year, was carried still further this year, and the only aisles of any length were those on the outer sides, along which were trade exhibits. Wherever one looked was a vista halted by one of the many splendid display exhibits.

The Gardens.

The gardens, as they are still termed, were, as usual, the main exhibition features. There were five of them, and all staged along lines more or less new. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., had a magnificent rose garden flanking a main aisle, which attracted crowds of visitors.

F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., in a way, stuck to last year's plan of an open sweep of sloping lawn, with garden features in collaboration.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., had a splendid garden in which azaleas were most conspicuous.

The Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., had a combination garden with rockeries and running water, and a separate, though adjacent, rock garden.

Wadley & Smythe, New York, newcomers in the big feature section, staged a formal garden, with walks lined with big bays and tall orange trees in fruit. The arrangement was a trifle heavy, but the public appreciated the exhibit, the oranges striking their fancy.

Decorated Chancel.

An innovation was an exhibit, staged by the management, of a small church chancel with the altar, desk and rails decorated. A stained glass window at the rear, under electric light, with drapings of wild smilax to take the place of wainscoting or tapestries, made a splendid background. This exhibit, planned to revive the custom of church decoration in vogue a few years ago, attracted considerable attention. As a publicity stunt it bids fair to be productive of results, the clergy of all denominations having expressed interest in it.

The orchid section was well filled and better lighting facilities than usual heightened the effect. There was little in the way of novelties, the plant quarantine operating against their introduction. Two cattleya hybrids, Mrs. Harding and Princess Mary, however, appeared to the crowds and gave the publicity men something to talk about.

Plants of High Order.

The plant exhibits were of high order, F. R. Pierson's group of nephrolepis coming in for particular commendation.

The mezzanine floor, as usual, carried a large number of exhibits, both private and commercial, covering bulbous and other plants. The stature of the tulips this year was remarkable; and the quality of the showings of Primula malacoides of an unusually high order.

Garden Clubs' Exhibits.

The exhibits of the Garden Club of America, on the mezzanine floor, were an attraction to the public, and at all times a solid stream of spectators was to be found passing along the lines of the exhibits of miniature gardens, luncheon and dinner tables, and Japanese flower arrangements. The City Gardens Club featured a competition in window boxes, in two sections, covering boxes of flowering plants and boxes of foliage plants. There were twenty entries in this competition.

The tea garden conducted in the interests of the Girl Scouts, Inc., and the Virginia Day Nursery, had an attractive program, including a fashion show and dancing, with the appearance of stage and opera celebrities as hostesses. This was a society undertaking and did not fail to draw at the box office.

52 Issues for $2.00!

The Review has a place of its own that no other paper can fill. The first issue I saw, saved me $10 on stock I bought, furnished me the address of a boyhood friend I had not seen in ten years, and gave me a pointer that has already saved us $85. How is that for one issue? I would as soon run my business without a cash register as without The Review.—North Bend Bulb Farm, North Bend, Wash., March 9, 1922.

to import plants would involve more work for the Department of Agriculture than it could handle, in the way of inspection and fumigation. Dr. Marlatt reiterates that permits are available to commercial growers and to amateurs who have recognition as plant specialists and breeders, to botanic gardens, experiment stations and other public institutions, and he emphasizes that the office of foreign seed and plant introduction of the Department of Agriculture is constantly engaged in bringing in new and rare plants without reference to the entries made in these other channels.

There is little, if anything, new in Dr. Marlatt's statement, and it will only be of interest to those who plan to attend the conference at Washington, postponed now from April 19 to May 15, and who wish to be familiar with the attitude and mental workings of the chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board.

ROOTING CUTTINGS.

My cuttings do not root well. I carry a temperature of 55 degrees at night and around 58 degrees during the day.
J. S.—O.

You do not state what cuttings you are trying to root. Fifty-five degrees at night and a sand temperature of 60 to 65 degrees should suit the majority of cuttings. Coleus, alternantheras, aca-lyphas and achyrantes would prefer 60 degrees at night and 70 to 75 sand temperature. Perhaps you do not shade your cuttings properly. The sun must not strike them and drafts must be avoided; also they need careful watering and spraying. Watch these details and you will do better. Also, do not use the same sand for more than two or three batches of cuttings.
C. W.

Estherville, Ia.—Fire in the boiler room at the Estherville Greenhouses March 2 caused the breakage of some glass and loss of the plants at the east end of the greenhouses, but heat was restored in time to save most of the stock.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The business formerly conducted by the Moore-Terwilliger Co., located at 1031 Nicollet avenue, was recently purchased from the trustee in bankruptcy by Mazey. The purchase included the stock, fixtures and transfer of lease. The store has been much improved in appearance since the new owners took possession and will be conducted along lines similar to those which have helped to build up the large trade now enjoyed by the old store, located at Second avenue, south, and Eighth street.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—The decorations for the opening of the large ready-to-wear store of G. W. Gates & Co., March 11, were arranged by the Blossom Floral Co. Ferns, palms and southern smilax were used to decorate the three floors. There were also large floor baskets and hampers of Premier, Russell and Columbia roses. Several thousand roses were also used by the Gates Co. as souvenirs of the opening. Funeral work and the special Saturday sales of spring flowers, which the Blossom Floral Co. has been holding, have stimulated business considerably and a substantial increase in the general business of this firm for the month just past has been reported.

IS IT EMBARGO?

ANOTHER BROADSIDE.

In his endeavors to justify the restrictions placed upon horticultural imports by quarantine 37, Dr. Marlatt has fired another broadside at those who criticize it as an embargo. A 5-page mimeographed statement has just been sent out from the office of the Federal Horticultural Board over Dr. Marlatt's signature, headed, "Is Quarantine 37 a Plant Embargo?"

The most important, indeed the only, piece of information contained in the five pages is the tabulation of the imports made under special permits. This covers the period from the effective date of the quarantine, June 1, 1919, to February 15, 1922, or two years and eight and one-half months. For the information of those members of the trade interested in such importations, this table is given below.

Dr. Marlatt refers to the total of 12,945,206 "plants" which have entered this country under these permits since quarantine 37 was laid, as an indication that the quarantine is far from an embargo. Of this number it escapes Dr. Marlatt's attention that 12,406,607 were bulbs and roots, leaving approximately half a million as the total number of actual plants brought into this country in two and two-thirds years under the special permits.

Dr. Marlatt repeats a statement made by him before, that 459 different varieties of roses were imported under special permits during this period, whereas the total number of new rose varieties for the year covered by the 1921 American Rose Annual is given as 146 and the total number of varieties contained in the annual's official list of American roses is stated to be 592. Dr. Marlatt repeats that in contrast the number allowed entry is "a fairly sizable number." Perhaps it is in his estimation, but a review of the imports permitted might lead to other conclusions by someone who knew more about roses than does Dr. Marlatt, who stated at the Detroit S. A. F. convention that he hardly knew what a gladiolus was and was unfamiliar with other flowers.

In the remainder of Dr. Marlatt's statement, he indulges his habit of repeating himself, already commented upon, dwelling on the classes of plants allowed unlimited entry, on the restrictions placed upon the entry of American plants by European countries and on the necessity of quarantine 37 as a protection of the agricultural crops of this country.

Criticism of the quarantine by amateur interests has evidently pricked Dr. Marlatt, since nearly half of his statement is devoted to reasons for restricting the issuance of special permits, so that plant lovers and enthusiasts who have no standing as collectors or propagators are prevented from satisfying their desire to adorn their grounds with new and rare foreign varieties. Dr. Marlatt thinks that persons of this type are found in numbers in every town and hamlet in the United States and that to permit any or all of them

Importations under Special Permit since Quarantine 37 Went into Effect.

BIG EVENT IS NEAR

GREAT SHOW EVOLVES.

Indications Spell Success.

Every indication points to the fact that the great fifth national flower show, to be held at Indianapolis, is destined to be a big success. Exhibitors are being booked by Secretary Young in a manner that was altogether unexpected and it seems that many of the tradesmen do realize that putting on a display at Indianapolis is virtually displaying to Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis.

Earl Mann, of Richmond, Ind., chairman of the exhibits committee, writes that the number of exhibitors is so large that the show will be a revelation in this respect.

Wonderful Exhibits.

While it is not time to disclose those who have signified their intention of entering exhibits, it can be said that many of the largest florists of the country will be on hand with wonderful exhibits.

The automobile show, which is on in Indianapolis at the present time, is having a splendid success, and there seems to be a decided taste everywhere for the coming flower show.

A wonderful musical program has been arranged and this, with the large array of exhibits which have been promised by E. H. Mann, almost insures the success of the show at this early time. The Indianapolis show, unlike many shows, will be on a state-wide basis, because of the accessibility of the capital to all parts of the state.

St. Louis, Kansas City, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, New York and many other large cities of the country have already signified their close coöperation. Vice-president Murray, of the S. A. F., is to head the Kansas City delegation. The arrival of a carload of cedars for interior decoration has just been reported by Homer L. Wiegand, chairman of the interior decorations committee.

Those wishing to make reservations should address O. G. Carlstedt, of Indianapolis, chairman of the information committee.

Working as a Unit.

Oliver Steinkamp has been named chairman of a committee at the instance of Fred Lemon, who heads the special premiums committee, to obtain a special fund for premiums not contained in the final schedule. He is meeting with much success, so that this schedule will enable many of the small growers of the vicinity to exhibit successfully. A special fund of $1,000 is to be obtained for this purpose.

Chicago is taking more and more interest, both in the trade and exhibit sections. The A. L. Randall Co. is building a special $2,500 fountain, which throws water fifteen or twenty feet in the air, for the center attraction. This company is also making extensive displays in other lines. The state conservation department, headed by Richard Lieber, has thrown its doors wide open and wonderful displays of fish, butterflies and aquarium products are promised for that section. Mr. Dietz, of the entomology department, is also to have a special display of great interest to florists. The Indianapolis Public Library, or Riley Public Library, has acquired space for featuring all sorts of literature pertaining to flowers.

The various gardens which were intended for Cleveland, such as bulb gardens and rose gardens, have been secured, with at least two entries for the bulb classes and three or more for the rose gardens. The park system of the city of Indianapolis is coöperating in a wonderful manner, with a miniature of Garfield park and extensive plant exhibits, besides featuring the boulevards of the show section of the city, with evergreens for that special purpose. The downtown streets are to be lined with evergreens by the exterior decorations committee; these are to be mounted with large arrows pointing in the direction of the flower show.

The advertising campaign in the central states has so far netted results in actual lines which are far beyond those received for any previous national flower show.

The Joseph H. Hill Co., E. G. Hill Co. and the Fred Lemon Co., rose specialists, of Richmond, Ind., have promised to put on a rose show such as was never before witnessed in the United States. Most of the large growers from Illinois and Ohio will be on hand with enormous exhibits. The eastern growers, around Boston, New York and Philadelphia, are promising splendid exhibits. Combining these with exhibits from the north, south, east and west, and covering all sections of the country, leaves no room for doubt as to this feature.

The transportation committee, headed by Joseph McGowan, who is actively on the job and one of the biggest traction men of the country, is fully alive to its duties and will see that all exhibitors receive the fullest consideration. Any information as to these details will be promptly taken care of.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association will stage an exhibit of unusual beauty, the same being featured on the cover-page of the F. T. D. magazine, and it will be placed in position in Indianapolis by special representatives from Detroit.

A banquet is planned for Thursday evening, March 23, for the florists of the country. The State Florists' Association is to take full charge of this and has appointed committees for details.

The above are but a few of the salient factors for the staging of what is predicted to be the most beautiful show on record.

Oscar G. Carlstedt.

(Chairman of the Information Committee for the National Flower Show.)

Send your exhibits, secure your reservations and meet the throngs of florists from all over the country who will be in attendance.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

March 25 to April 1.

As the opening day approaches, confidence in the ultimate success of the fifth national flower show increases. The various local committees are working nobly, all in harmonious accord, and preparations for the show are right up to the minute. Every one of those whose names figure on the committee list is to be commended for the splendid team work, which has allowed the switching of a great exposition, such as the national flower show, from one big city to another, and completing all details, within a period of a few weeks. The record of this work will be good matter for future reference, although it is to be hoped that such a contingency will never again arise.

There is now little prospect of disappointment in regard to plans for any section of the show. The big exhibits, background material, small exhibits and everything making for the final ensemble of the show are all assured, and the plan of the layout of the show is, indeed, a most creditable one.

There will be no dearth of trade exhibits. Change of location affected exhibitors but little. The situation and drawing power of Indianapolis is little, if any, different from that of Cleveland, and the former city has a real advantage in its wonderful interurban travel system, which has made the city the most notable "show city" in America. Within a radius of 100 miles or more, a good show has marvelous drawing power, and there is no fear existing as to gate receipts.

Obtain That Certificate.

There is still plenty of opportunity for prospective trade exhibitors to obtain choice locations in the sections set apart for trade exhibits. Those who deal with the public, as well as the trade, can be accommodated on the main exhibition floor. Others, who would be glad to have the exclusion of the public, will find quarters in the nearby convention hall desirable.

The prospects for a grand attendance of the trade from remote territory grow daily, and a banner gathering is practically assured.

All the passenger associations have agreed to a railroad fare concession of one and one-half fare from every point in their various territories, and this means the whole of the United States and Canada. But everyone starting on the trip should bear in mind the necessity of obtaining a certificate when purchasing tickets. Members of any of the clubs and societies affiliated through the executive board, of the S. A. F. can get the reduced rate, but unless the certificate is obtained full return fare must be paid. The certificates must be validated by the secretary of the society at Indianapolis, and by the railroad representatives in attendance; hence the importance of this notice.

Any information in regard to local matters and conditions may be obtained from Local Chairman Irwin Bertermann, who has practically abandoned for the time being his own business in the interests of the show. All matters concerning the business of the show should be referred to the undersigned.

Executive Board Meeting.

President Pennock has instructed the calling of the annual meeting of the executive board for Monday, March 27, in convention hall, Indianapolis, Ind., a date during the period of the fifth national flower show.

In addition to the general business of the meeting, there are several matters referred from the Washington convention to come up, among them the following:

Action on the report of the committee on nomenclature.

Suggestions made in an address on "Greenhouse Heating," delivered by F. T. Giblin.

Armistice day—should florists assist in the project to establish this day?

Consideration of the advisability of promoting field work for membership.

The society's relations to and with the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Report of the committee on education—Fred A. Wilson, chairman, Nahant, Mass.

Report of the committee on annual report—Charles H. Totty, chairman, Madison, N. J.

Report of committee on revision of the by-laws—Thomas Roland, chairman, Nahant, Mass.

Report of committee on "Dutch Bulbs"—Peter Pearson, chairman, Chicago, Ill.

Report of auditing committee—Percy B. Rigby, chairman, New York.

The board will convene at 10 a. m. on the day named.

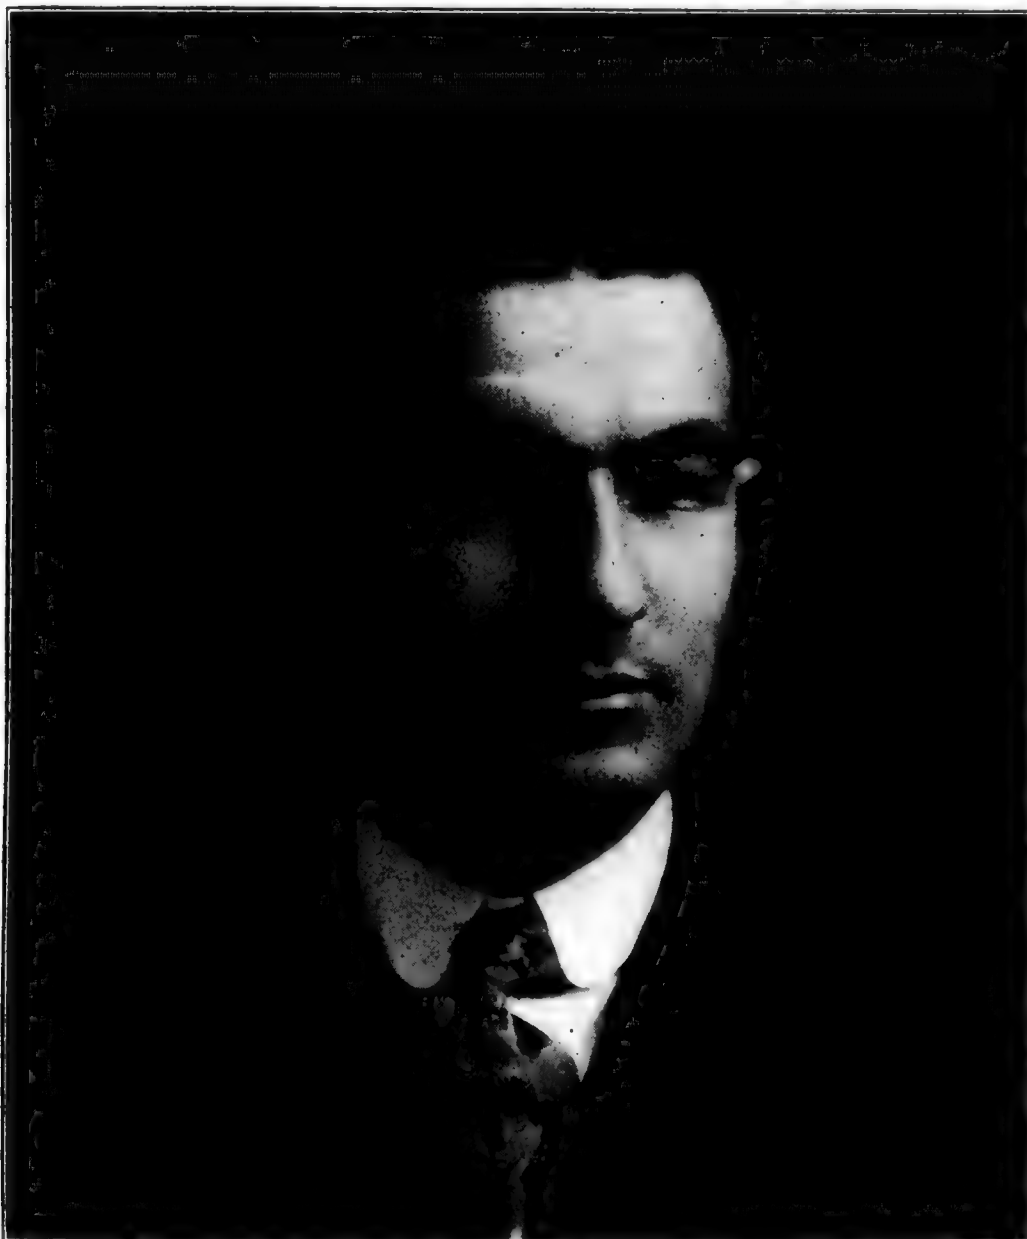

John Young, Sec'y.

SPLENDID SETTING FOR SHOW

The magnificent building at Indianapolis, which is destined to hold the great 8-day national flower show of the S. A. F., March 25 to April 1, was opened recently for a great automobile exhibition, and the florists from near and far had a fine opportunity to judge what a splendid showing they would be able to make under the well-lighted, roomy and airy surroundings which this exhibition palace furnishes.

Secretary John Young, who has been in Indianapolis for some time, as one of the directing heads, also one of the active workers for the coming flower show, writes enthusiastically about how the building looks when it is lighted, as it was for the automobile show, and states that everyone is much encouraged in regard to the present outlook. This is gratifying to the rest of us here in the east, and does much to encourage us in making our best efforts to do our individual parts. Not only Mr. Young, but many others who are on or near the spot, and know the situation from first hand, also report with enthusiasm as to the prospects.

Everything all along the line seems to be going smoothly and satisfactorily, and there is every indication that we will have one of the finest shows ever held by the society. Let everybody join in with an exhibit, large or small, and help along the great work.

Charles G. Pahud.

(Chairman of the Committee on Admissions for the National Flower Show.)

S. S. Pennock, Pres. S. A. F.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market continues on the side of oversupply, and the wholesalers experience much difficulty in effecting daily clearances. The demand has improved a little, but is not yet what is usually expected at this time of year. The street vender is a favored customer these days, and the ash barrel has no cause for complaint as to scarcity of material. Under an avalanche of bulbous material, regular staples are depressed, and low values are the order. Tulips predominate, but the supply of narcissi is quite heavy and is now increased by arrivals of Narcissus poeticus, of excellent quality. The weather has favored the bulb growers, as may be believed when it is known that tulips and narcissi in outdoor plantings hereabouts are well out of the ground.

Roses are, perhaps, not quite so plentiful, but are still in heavy supply, so that prices of last week are well maintained. There are fewer top-grade flowers, which is a fortunate circumstance for the growers. American Beauty continues in moderate supply at $50 to $100 per hundred for specials, and clearances are not particularly hard to make. Hybrid teas show good quality.

Carnations are plentiful, but are a little stronger, the price for top grades now being $4 per hundred, with Mrs. Ward and Laddie bringing $5 and $6, according to quality. The bulk of business done, however, is within a range of $3 to $4.

Cattleyas continue to be abundant, and the price range is $15 to $75 per hundred, with a few selected flowers and hybrids bringing $100. Gardenias are in short supply and of rather low quality, the best flowers bringing $6 per dozen.

White lilies are in much larger supply and the price range has dropped to $10 to $15 per hundred, the latter price for long-stemmed, well mounted flowers. Lilies of the valley continue at the glut point; selected sprays bring in a few cases $6 per hundred, but general sales are within a range of $1 to $4. Few rubrum lilies are arriving, and sales are hard to make at $6 to $12.

Tulips are hard to quote, but it may be reported that the best top is $1 per dozen, with other grades downward to 25 cents and less for clearances. The same may be said of narcissi.

Acacia is plentiful this year, and prices are down to $1 to $1.50 per bunch. Bouvardia is in small supply. Good myosotis commands 50 cents per bunch and snapdragons $1, with lower grades down to 25 cents. Other miscellaneous flowers meet a moderate demand, and the supply includes buddleia, calendulas, daisies, wallflowers, delphiniums, gladioli, lilac, mignonette, pansies, primroses, stocks, callas, iris and freesias.

Various Notes.

The prevailing topic of conversation this week is, of course, the flower show. Out-of-town florists are rather plentiful, and are making calls in the wholesale districts. The chairman of the

New York Florists' Club's dinner committee, Paul Rigo, reported reservations for seats at the dinner to take place Wednesday evening, March 15, coming in quite lively. The club's regular meeting, to have been held Monday evening, March 13, has been postponed, owing to the opening of the flower show and the inability to obtain a room for the meeting in the Grand Central Palace.

Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., is in the city to attend the flower show. Tuesday, March 14, he presided at a meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society, held at the Grand hotel.

E. C. Vick has resigned from the secretaryship of the American Sweet Pea Society.

A. M. Henshaw, president of the Allied Florists' Association, in speaking of his trip abroad, the main object of which was to better the conditions of obtaining supplies, especially from England, says that he was entirely successful along these lines, and that in the future it will be much easier to procure all general florists' supplies. He found that the florists over there were beginning to enjoy a real prosperity, after the slump of the last six or seven years. Among other interesting facts, he states that the Royal Horticultural Society stages a flower show at intervals of every two weeks, which is a grand medium of advertising, although costly to the florists taking part. Florists in England are intensely interested in our advertising campaigns and are carefully watching us.

Due to the strike among the lithographers, which delayed the receipt of the association's window-stickers, added to delay caused by the holding of the national flower show at Indianapolis, the mass meeting of the Allied Florists' Association has been postponed to be held during the week of April 3. The circular pamphlet containing the cuts of the proposed advertising, etc., is practically completed; in fact, just awaiting the window-stickers.

Lincoln Pierson, president of the Co-operative Rose Growers' Association, is still confined to his home, thus holding up that association's work. This will explain to many rose growers why they have not received any notices, literature, etc.

The Market.

The beginning of last week found the Washington market brisk, and all deliveries cleaned up well, with the possible exception of sweet peas, which hung at from $10 to $15 per thousand. Single nolets also seemed to drag and it was found difficult to move them at from $5 to $7.50 per thousand.

Easter lilies moved well, those of short stems bringing 15 cents each, while the long-stemmed stock brought 20 cents. Callas have been quite scarce and were offered at $2.50 per dozen.

The wholesale houses report that stock moved fairly well all through the week, but at lowered prices. Carnations were to be had at $5 and $6 per hundred, while roses ranged in price from $6 to $30, according to variety, grade, and length of stem. Hadley and fancy varieties brought slightly higher prices. The quality of American Beauty roses is beginning to improve materially and prices on these range from $6 to $9 per dozen. Wholesalers and growers alike are complaining that prices on roses are not what they ought to be.

Snapdragons in all colors are coming into the market in plentiful quantities, at from $1.50 to $2 per dozen. Mignonne is only fair in quality and is selling at $4 per hundred.

Resuscitate the Corsage.

The local retailers are commenting on the lack of sales of violets this year. For several years the sales have been decreasing slowly, until now one fails to notice any quantity of corsage bouquets worn by Washington women. Years ago the majority of promenaders of F street on Saturday afternoon wore bouquets of violets or violets and gardenias, but the fad seems to have died out. The women say that flowers stain their dresses and too many garments are ruined. This same complaint is held to be responsible for the failure of the florists to sell as many of the large yellow and white chrysanthemums during the fall months. It was formerly the custom here for the young women attending football games to wear school colors as far as possible in the shape of chrysanthemums. The retailers are beginning to realize that something should be done to popularize again the wearing of the corsages. It is believed that it will take a great deal of publicity between now and Easter to safeguard the corsage this year for that occasion. If the antipathy of the women continues, the Easter corsage bouquet business will be shot to pieces.

STARTING BULBS IN TIME.

When should tuberous-rooted begonia and fancy-leaved caladium bulbs be started? O. B.—Minn.

You can start the tuberous-rooted begonias at any time. Place the tubers in a flat or flats of either pure sand, or sand mixed with leaf-mold or fine sphagnum moss. Water moderately until growth starts and pot the plants off before the roots become too active. Place them on a bench where they can get some bottom heat and protect them from direct sunshine. You will succeed better with fancy caladiums if you delay starting them until the weather is rather warmer, unless you have a house where a minimum temperature of 60 degrees can be maintained. Place the tubers on a bench with heating pipes below, so that they can get a nice bottom heat. Cover them with sharp sand, give them some water, then go easily on it until the tubers throw up leaves. Too much moisture and a low temperature will soon rot the tubers. Fancy caladiums must have a warm, moist heat to start them properly. C. W.

HILL'S GOLDEN WEDDING.

Monday, March 13, was celebrated at Richmond, Ind., as the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Hill. Telegrams poured in from all sections of the United States, from members of the trade who bear high esteem and affection for the noted rosarian and his wife. Both are known to thousands in the trade, by reason of their hospitality at Richmond and by their presence at the trade's gatherings year after year and their frequent trips to many parts of the country. The illustration on this page shows the couple at Seattle on their tour of the west not long ago. So well are they known, indeed, that little need be said here save enough to carry the congratulations and the well wishes of the trade in general for this estimable couple.

In this connection it is of interest to note the testimonial presented Mr. Hill by the Illinois State Florists' Association, at its meeting at Urbana, Ill., March 14. A reproduction of the testimonial appears on page 30 of this issue.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

"Really wonderful," exclaimed Mabel Harding, of Danker's, Albany, N. Y., in describing the latest creation in decorative floral art, as seen at Thorley's Fifth avenue store, Manhattan. Imagine a mirrored picture in a gold frame nine feet square and almost level with the sidewalk, illuminated by electricity from the outside. Two specimens of Adiantum gloriosum, a combination basket of orchids and sweet peas made up the picture, according to our artistic confrere, who also described to Danker patrons the preparations at the Grand Central Palace for the national flower show, among which are white birch trees twenty feet tall and in full leaf. "Somewhat more advanced than with us," observed Fred A. Danker, "though we look for a busy planting season and an early one." A fine showing of Darwin tulips and Narcissus King Alfred, with azaleas and also Gerbera Jamesonii, which pays the retail grower to grow for basket work, was seen here.

Fred Goldring, Slingerlands, N. Y., will have the usual supply of Easter lilies.

W. W. Hannell, Watervliet, N. Y., is to the front with ramblers and hydrangeas in fine shape.

Ivor Ringdahl, Rome, N. Y., renowned as one of the leading plant growers in the east, will have a grand lot of Easter stock.

C. I. Baker & Son, Utica, N. Y., predict one of the best Easters on record, judging from inquiries made and orders placed. Mr. Baker, Sr., has promised to address the Albany Florists' Club at an early date on the subject, "How We Have Made Good."

Joseph Traudt, Canajoharie, N. Y., will have a fine batch of lilies at Easter, a stand-by for the retailer in the small town who relies on his own stock for regular patrons.

Mohawk Greenhouses, Schenectady, N. Y., are strong on flowering stock for Easter.

W. E. John has not the largest place in the Electric City, but does a snug business and is contented. W. M.

BEATRICE, NEB.

At their recently held annual meeting the stockholders of the Dole Floral Co. heard the reports of the business done during the last year, which were quite gratifying. The new board of directors was elected and chose the officers for this year. E. M. Dole, who has been the president of the company for twenty years, having disposed of his stock to G. M. Johnston, W. S. Dole and Peter Durham, retired from the business and the new board elected as their president, to succeed him, G. M. Johnston, who was also chosen as treasurer. Walter S. Dole was named vice-president and Peter Durham, secretary. The other two members of the new board are Walter W. Scott and H. Williamson. E. M. Dole, the retiring president, plans to go into business on a fruit and berry farm at Peru, Neb. In a recent report the firm showed that every square foot of actual bench space cost $1.50 and showed a production of $3 to $4. A dividend of four per cent was declared, with a liberal surplus in the sinking fund.

West Plains, Mo.—A fire occurring at the Cottage Greenhouse & Ozark Pansy Gardens, March 2, caused the loss of $400 or $500 in plants destroyed and in damage to the building. The fire originated under a packing bench and was eating its way into a packing shed, in which was stored a large quantity of moss, when the firemen gained control of it. A large number of cyclamen plants were slightly damaged, but are still salable. The proprietors are C. W. Harold and M. E. Harold. As a result of the shock caused by the fire, Mrs. Harold, who had been ill with neuritis for the last few weeks, was in a serious condition.

GET READY FOR BIG DAY

PLANTS FOR EASTER TRADE.

Timing Lilies.

Easter is the holiday, par excellence, when plants fill the center of the stage, and their number increases annually. It is a fairly safe guess that more flowering plants will be sold the coming Easter than ever before. Many inquiries reach The Review at this season concerning Easter plants, and these notes are written in a desire to assist some of the smaller and less experienced growers, who may find difficulties in handling certain plants, and to whom a little advice may be of value.

Easter comes somewhat late this year and the higher temperature in April, as compared with March, must be considered. A late Easter is not the best for florists, as the lapse between April 16 and Memorial day, May 30, is only about the same as the pre-Easter period of Lent.

Of course, lilies are one of the great leaders at this holiday. If buds were just visible when Lent came in they are all right; if, however, they are still small, they will need all the heat you can give them. There is always considerable variation in the flowering period in any batch of lilies and a certain amount of moving around is generally necessary to time them properly. Plants with buds now hanging down are in ample time and will not need a higher temperature than 50 degrees at night; laggards need lots of heat and moisture, with spraying several times daily.

There are general complaints of giganteum lilies being dwarf this year. They can be lengthened somewhat by shading the glass for a week or two. Dwarf plants are desirable, but there is a possibility of their being too dwarf. A plant six to eight inches high is not desirable; one double that height is far more salable; while, for many purposes, plants eighteen to twenty-four inches high are far the best. For church decorations plants three feet high are preferable.

Give late lilies 65 degrees at night and reduce the heat a little as buds show color. Do not put them in a cool house at once, as the sudden check may cause buds not to open.

Formosum lilies naturally flower much earlier than giganteums and grow taller. They vary in type a little, are far better for cutting than giganteums and show little disease. Where fairly tall lilies are wanted, they are immeasurably superior to giganteums.

Flowering Dutch Bulbs.

Dutch bulbous plants are sold in great numbers for Easter. It is not easy to keep some varieties as late as the middle of April, unless it be in the coldest states, and those who are in the habit of keeping their Easter stock outdoors covered with soil are at a disadvantage, for, as soon as frost leaves the ground and the soil starts to warm, the rate of growth becomes much accelerated. For that reason, I have found it better to store bulbous pots and pans on the floor of a cold cellar rather than outdoors, or even on shelves in a cellar or frost-proof shed, kept just clear of freezing. The rate of growth is slow and the plants do not become drawn as do those buried outdoors.

It will not take long to flower hyacinths, early tulips or most of the narcissi for a late Easter, and two weeks will suffice in a cool greenhouse, on the average. In order to keep plants as stocky as possible, I always find it a good plan to utilize one or two coldframes, on the bottom of which is spread a layer of coal ashes. The pots and pans of Dutch bulbs are placed here and sashes put over them. On hot days mats are laid over the glass to keep the plants cool and to check growth, but on overcast days the sashes are ventilated well. Grown in this way, plants do not become leggy and drawn, as they are apt to be in a heated greenhouse. Plants coming on too quickly can be held a long time in a cold cellar, or even in a coldframe if well ventilated and protected from sunlight.

Hydrangeas Popular.

Hydrangeas are now grown by almost everyone and are most satisfactory plants, the new French race especially, as these flower much earlier than the old otaksa, which remains in great favor for Memorial day sales. Hydrangeas need considerable spacing apart, much water and a soaking with some liquid manure once a week until flower heads start to color. Never on any account allow them to become dry, or they are liable to lose some foliage and the flower heads may become shriveled. Flower heads should begin to show color by March 20, in which case the plants will be on time in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees at night. If later than this, give more heat. Avoid cold drafts if placing the plants in a lower temperature, as the leaves are susceptible to mildew.

Roses.

Roses of all kinds come along fast now. The polyanthas, or so-called baby ramblers, are much in favor. Both these and the true ramblers should show buds plainly now. The hybrid perpetuals and hybrid teas come along rapidly and a month from the time buds just peep is ample for them. Be careful not to oversyringe and avoid mildew by careful ventilation. Give all roses the fullest possible sunshine, and do any needed forcing now. They can be kept in good condition for a good number of days in a cool greenhouse or shed. See that they do not suffer from want of water. When the buds start to show is a good time to give the plants some liquid stimulant. Do not continue it after the flowers open, or it will help to take the color out of them.

Other Holiday Plants.

Herbaceous calceolarias promise to be numerous this Easter. You cannot force them. Grow them as cool as possible and shade from strong sunlight. Avoid overhead spraying, especially after the flowers start to open. There is a charm and attraction about these flowers which appeals to many flower lovers.

Fewer spiræas are grown now than in pre-quarantine days, but still a good number are seen at some establishments, although more are held back for May 30. Plenty of heat, water and manure water and spacing apart frequently are needs of spiræas. Be careful not to fumigrate with tobacco stems, or injury is sure to result. Saucers below the plants will prevent drying out and will not cause loss of foliage.

Any hardwood subjects, like ericas, acacias, azaleas and genistas, will need a cool house to retard them. It is a late Easter for acacias. Azaleas will be few as compared with the days when we received ample Belgian supplies. Some bedding plants, like geraniums and heliotropes, sell in small as well as in large sizes. Give them a sunny house and a little liquid manure or sprinkling of fine bone.

Much care in watering and ventilation is now necessary and constant shifting around of plants which are too early may be necessary. He who is constantly on the alert and attending to the many little details incidental to successful pot plant culture should achieve a large measure of success at the coming great plant holiday. C. W.

DISEASED LILIES.

Please examine the specimens of Lilium longiflorum and L. giganteum which we have mailed you and determine, if possible, what is wrong with them. They were planted about October 20, and have grown in carnation temperature until about two weeks ago. They were potted in soil composed of three parts of well-rotted sod to one part of well-rotted cow manure and grown on a concrete bench, the bottom of which was covered with new coarse sand, and bottom heat was applied. R. & S.—Colo.

There are many complaints about giganteum lilies this season and a much larger proportion than usual are coming diseased. Premature digging may be responsible for this. In my own case, all of this variety of lily are abnormally dwarf and far too many are diseased. I have seen a good many like the specimens you forwarded. I have always found that giganteums did best when grown warm from start to finish, averaging 55 to 60 degrees, unless Easter came early, when 60 degrees at night was found better. Careful watering until the pots are well filled with roots is necessary; many lilies are ruined by being kept too moist in the early stages of growth. Roots under such conditions rot and growths go like those you forwarded. I should prefer in future not to give the lilies any bottom heat; they do much better without it. C. W.

BULBS NOT ROOTING.

I have sent you specimens of two hyacinths and two tulips bulbs. A great many like these have not rooted on my place. Some rooted, however, and the peculiar thing is that they were all treated alike. They were planted in November. Will you explain this for me? D. G. D.—N. J.

It is not easy to give the cause for non-rooting without knowing something of your culture of the bulbs. November is somewhat late to plant hyacinths and tulips for best results. Even at that date, however, they should always have a soaking watering and be placed in a cellar, frame or pit, protected from sun and frost. Before covering them with loam, sand or coal ashes, be sure they have two or three additional waterings. Many Dutch bulbs are ruined by an insufficient water supply in the early stages of growth. The bulbs seemed sound inside and I could find no sign of beetles. The fact that the hyacinths had started top growth goes to show that they were all right. It is quite probable that an inadequate water supply is the cause of the trouble. C. W.

SUMMER GREENHOUSE CROPS.

I am engaged chiefly in growing vegetable plants for use in the spring, but as I do not begin with these plants until late in January, my greenhouses are empty during the summer and late fall. How can I utilize these houses during the time that they now stand idle? Are there any plants that can be grown here from June 1 to November 1? C. A. L.—Minn.

There are several crops which may be grown profitably in your greenhouses with little or no artificial heat. Cucumbers are one good summer crop, tomatoes another. I should say that the last-named crop would be the best summer crop to grow. If you could plant such varieties as Improved Lorillard, John Baer, Victory or Comet in time to start ripening in June, the crop would carry you until well into August. You could then, if you wished, clean out the tomatoes, give the beds a liberal manuring and plant lettuce, either the heading or the loose-leaved type, and these could be cleared some time before you want to start up your houses.

If flowers are preferred, chrysanthemums would seem to be the best crop to grow. They could be planted any time in June, and even the latest varieties would be cleared before Christmas. The varieties to be planted would, of course, depend upon the markets you had. If to be sold locally, a large number of varieties should be grown, but for shipping it would be best to stick to a few good sorts. Good pompon varieties would probably pay you as well as, or even better than, the larger blooms, which need disbudding. C. W.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Price, Utah.—W. F. Olson contemplates purchasing the entire stock of the Carbon Floral Co. from Joseph Taylor, who has been conducting the business alone since his partner, Joseph R. Stark, absconded with the cash February 14.

Canton, O.—Fred G. Geltz, who operated a store at 522 North Market avenue, is now in bankruptcy.

Greenville, S. C.—Harold E. Rodgers has petitioned for discharge from bankruptcy and a hearing will be held by the court April 10.

OPEN LETTERS FROM READERS

MICHIGAN TULIP BULBS.

We read with interest the article on George Lawler's planting of narcissus bulbs, in The Review of March 9. For the last eight years we have grown tulips in Michigan with good results, and have built up a nice retail business. Tulips have always been our specialty, though we also grow narcissi, hyacinths, crocuses and other bulbs. Of tulips alone we have about four acres under cultivation. We still plant them the Dutch way; that is, bulbs four inches apart and rows four inches wide. Should we plant them the way gladioli are planted, we could cover fourteen acres. One interesting fact about Michigan-grown bulbs is that they force more easily and much sooner than the imported bulbs. We have proved this by forcing each year some of both.

As to conditions being favorable in Michigan to produce Dutch bulbs, we would say that the climate of western Michigan is almost identical with that of the Netherlands. The soil we have here, at Grand Rapids, is a sandy loam and corresponds to that of the Holland bulb district. Owing to the wet weather in Holland, the bulbs when they ripen, in May and June, soak up much water. The Dutch grower usually "prepares" his bulbs before he exports them; that is, the bulbs are kept in a drying shed under a fairly high temperature. We soon found out this was not necessary with Michigan-grown bulbs, as the dry weather during the summer months helps us during the ripening period. Our bulbs, therefore, shrink somewhat more than the Holland varieties, but this is the reason they force from ten to fourteen days earlier than the imported bulbs.

Last year we advertised in The Review, for the first time, some of our 2-year-old planting stock, hoping to get other American growers interested in the propagating of tulips. To indicate how popular this idea was with the growers, we might say that we were forced to sell double the number that we had calculated on, rather than disappoint the many growers who had sent in their orders. This year at least 200 American growers are growing bulbs for propagating purposes, and it is our belief that in a few years America will be able to grow its own bulb supply.

A. Kapstein, Jr.

CONSIDER COSTS DEEPLY.

In the issue of The Review for February 23 I read the article, "Small Grower's Costs." I think articles like this are misleading to men who have not had some business experience and training, and men are liable to be led to enter the business with a vision of much larger profits than are liable to be realized.

The editorial note added, which somewhat qualified Mr. Ellis' statement, is good, but does not go quite so far, in my opinion, as it should.

I have not had time to go into the matter carefully, but two of the items that impress me as having been left out are "insurance" and "depreciation." I imagine if his item of $416 for pots, boxes, fertilizers and supplies were itemized, we should find that a great many other things that have to be included in the expense of running a greenhouse have been omitted.

H. F. Baker.

WORTH KNOWING.

The growing interest and great popularity that has attended the recent introduction of Artemisia lactiflora has caused us to wonder if the trade is generally familiar with a much older type of this valuable plant, known here in Texas as Artemisia pedemontana.

This variety, like the former, is perfectly hardy everywhere. It has shrub-like growth about three feet high, with beautiful, feathery and lace-like, silvery foliage that reaches its developed stage in July and August. It can then be cut and dried for future use. The florists in this locality have found it to be the most valuable decorative material to be found anywhere. For decorations of all kinds it finds a place not easily filled by any other material. Dried, it shatters no more than statice. Some have had good success in dyeing it properly. Cured and dyed, it would be an easy rival of the popular ruscus.

The writer has grown it for several years, and has often wondered why, if the trade was familiar with it, some one did not offer it. A certain leading florist in an adjoining city uses this almost to the exclusion of other greens. It also is valuable in the mixed border with shrubs, and stands shearing. It makes a fine bedder, better than Centaurea gymnocarpa, which it somewhat resembles. It is our opinion if this plant becomes as well known as it is around here, it will become one of the most popular decorative plants in the country.

GROWING GLOXINIAS.

Will you kindly give me a little information on the growing of gloxinias from seed?

S. G.—Mont.

Gloxinia seed should be sown as soon as possible, in pans of light, sandy compost, mainly leaf-mold preferred. Make the surface smooth, and water before sowing the seeds, which are small. Do not cover the seeds at all. Cover the pans with sheets of glass and paper in addition, water carefully and remove paper and glass as the seeds germinate. Do not allow direct sun rays to touch them at any stage of growth, or they will burn. Grow in a warm, moist house. Prick off into flats where seedlings can be handled and later pot off singly and shift into 5-inch or 6-inch pots for flowering. Gloxinias, however, are warm-weather plants and of little value for Christmas. Some growers, in order to get a lot of flowers for picking and fine bulbs, plant the seedlings about ten inches apart each way in coldframes, with a bed of gently fermenting manure below them and light, rich, sandy soil to grow in. The sashes are shaded well and tilted top and bottom as steadily warmer weather arrives. Fumigation, once in eight or ten days, is necessary in order to keep down thrips. Grown in this way, gloxinias make remarkable growth and produce quantities of handsome flowers.

When flowered in pots, a good soil for the final shift consists of two-thirds

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

DAVID HILL.

STARTING as an errand boy for Alfred McCoyd, David Hill entered the florists' business at an early age. Eight years ago Mr. Hill ventured into the retail business on Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, in a space 7x27 feet. Today the rental of that same small space has increased more than fourfold—from $100 to $450. Mr. Hill, in company with his brother, John, now is operating a branch store, in the Harry Davis arcade. Shortly the stock in the Fifth avenue store will be moved to the arcade while a new building goes up at the former location. Mr. Hill has leased a store 8x27 feet in the new building at a rate of $3.50 per square foot. October 1 will see the new store opened. Rapid turnover, a small margin of profit and satisfied customers bring in the dollars for Mr. Hill. He gives credit to a door-knob. He says the door-knob is so difficult to open that no customer is able to escape without a purchase.

loam, one-third old cow manure and a dash of fine charcoal and sand to make the whole sweet and porous. Care should be taken to damp the leaves as little as possible.

C. W.

ABOUT SANSEVIERIA ZEYLANICA.

Will you give me information in regard to Sansevieria zeylanica, covering its culture, habitat, varieties, etc.?

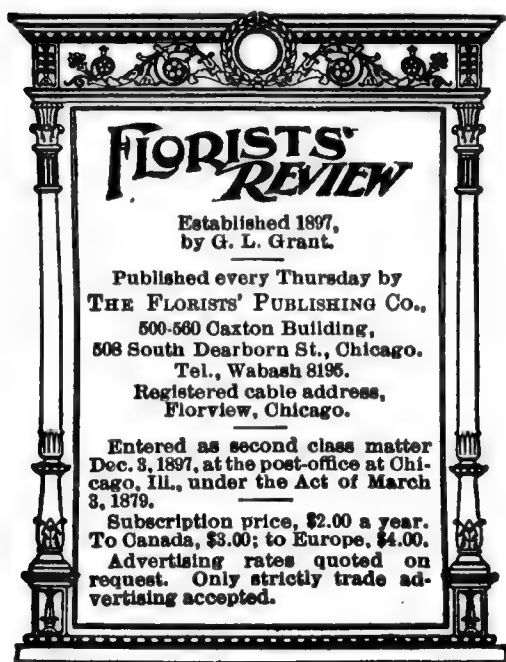

P. H.—Wis.

More than fifty species of sansevieria have been described, but zeylanica is the only one in common culture. The common name is bowstring hemp; the plants produce a useful fiber. The flowers are greenish white, are produced in dense racemes and are rather inconspicuous.

The leaves are the plant's principal attraction. The plants are easily propagated by divisions.

Pot the divisions in quite small pots of sandy loam and keep them warm until they are well established; then pot them on. You can also increase them quite readily by cutting leaves on transverse sections two to three inches long and putting them in sand in a warm propagating bench, or even in the small pots of sand. In four to six weeks the portions of leaves will be rooted and will send up slender shoots, when they can be potted. Sansevierias are excellent house plants and stand the arid conditions of the average home almost as well as any plant in cultivation.

C. W.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

HAVE you tried cash-and-carry sales at glut times? How did they work?

WHAT are you doing to "dig out of the depression"? The Editor would like to hear.

A SUBSCRIBER wishes to know the name and address of the manufacturer of Gnarr's Insecticide, as he has heard it is a good thing for white fly and does not find it advertised.

CLEAN up the place. If you sell to the public, your customers are of discriminating taste and dirt or disorder will repel them. If you sell at wholesale or by mail, clean up anyway; remember that slovenly places never turned out anything but second-rate stock. Spruce up; it will help you physically, mentally and financially.

A WEEK away is the opening of the trade's biggest event of the year, the national flower show. Indianapolis florists have worked so enthusiastically in the short space of time allowed them, and have so interested other business men of the city in promoting the show, that it is sure to be a great success. Join one of the florists' parties from the principal cities and go to Indianapolis.

THE president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World says that of the person who advertising brings into the retail store, fifty-five per cent buy nothing because of incompetent sales methods of employees. More than half of an advertising appropriation is thereby thrown away. Even if overstated as regards florists' shops, the assertion will lead the thoughtful retailer to more careful observation of the efficiency of his own sales force.

EVEN those who hope that America will ultimately grow its own bulbs and nursery stock see danger in too early restriction of imports from abroad. If the public ceases for a term to be able to buy azaleas, will the public have interest in them when they are at last produced in this country? If Paper Whites, or tulips, or any other bulbs are barred now, will not the public get along so well without them that there will be no demand when home producers have built up their stocks?

EVERY florist selling to the trade who wants to make a reputation for thorough and businesslike methods should provide himself with a quantity of two slightly different postal card forms. The most useful form should be one to be employed in notifying customers how their orders have been shipped, sent when immediate shipment is made. The other form, and its use should be as infrequent as possible, should be employed where some delay in shipment must ensue. It should acknowledge receipt of order and state when shipment will be made.

RAILROADS constitute the only great industry in the country which has not been "compelled by the laws of commerce and industry to reduce prices and reduce costs," according to a brief filed with the interstate commerce commission by Clifford Thorne, spokesman for shippers, in closing the general investigation into transportation rates. Wholesale prices of commodities have dropped fifty per cent and interest rates on money twenty-five per cent since 1920, when the last general advances were put on railroad service charges, the brief asserted. It seems time, then, that transportation charges came down too.

AGAIN THE RECORD.

Almost every issue of The Review nowadays reaches a new high mark in one department or another and this week a whole flock of records are shoved up another notch.

This is the largest regular issue yet printed: Most pages—188 and cover.

More Classified ads than ever appeared in any previous issue—over twenty-nine pages.

Of this issue 13,000 copies are printed.

Fourteen big presses are required to do the job, three starting Tuesday night and eleven Wednesday.

Paper used, 14,333 pounds, a little over seven tons.

PLEASE HELP.

During this busy season advertisers can help The Review in a way that will be greatly appreciated. Forms close Monday and on that day The Review receives so heavy a volume of mail that it is with difficulty that all of it is handled before the hours scheduled for the various forms to go on the presses Tuesday and Wednesday. Advertisers can help by sending instructions to arrive Thursday, Friday or Saturday, instead of Monday. Helping The Review in this respect also will help to keep the way open for the fellow florist who finds himself late through some cause beyond his control.

THIRTEEN THOUSAND.

For quite a number of years, during and since the war, The Review has made no direct effort to sell the paper; circulation has been permitted to grow on the merits of the paper, but without direct action to call them to the attention of the unobservant. Purely because they wanted the paper to read and without urging by the publisher, 13,000 florists, nurserymen and seedsmen now pay the annual subscription fee.

But it seems that perhaps the time is ripe for the direct presentation of the merits of the paper to all members of the trade who have not yet enrolled themselves as readers. It will be done, but it will require much time and many postage stamps. First of all, it will be necessary to hunt out the nonsubscribers, a small percentage of the trade.

Any assistance readers give in the way of lists of people in the business, in their town, city, county or state, will be appreciatively received.

CONFERENCE AGAIN POSTPONED.

The conference on quarantine 37, originally called to meet at Washington, D. C., March 15 and postponed, at the request of the Society of American Florists, to April 19, has been again postponed, until May 15. The second postponement, states the announcement of the Federal Horticultural Board, is made at the request of the president of the American Association of Nurserymen, who represents that the month of April is the one season of the year when the nurseryman must be on the job to get out his orders and do his planting. The new date has been referred to the president of the Society of American Florists and has been approved by him.

COAL STRIKE NOT AVERTED.

Little hope is held by government officials that the coal operators of the central competitive field will yield to Secretary of Labor Davis' appeal for them to meet the bituminous miners in joint conference before expiration of existing contracts March 31.

If there is no joint conference, federal officials believe there will be a strike. They are not contemplating any further efforts to avert the strike, it is reported at Washington. What may be done by the government following the strike, if it comes, will depend, it is thought, upon how much the public is made to suffer.

There is enough coal to last the country for ten weeks, it is estimated, and this supply will be augmented by production in nonunion fields and in some union fields where district settlements have been made.

The coal committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States issued a bulletin on coal supply this week, giving warning that consumers should conserve on fuel as much as possible in order to be ready for a strike if it comes.

The outlook is such, indeed, that every greenhouse operator, as a matter of prudence, should see that he has enough coal in storage to see him through till summer.

DO YOU KNOW THESE?

I should like to obtain some information from readers of The Review regarding a number of chrysanthemums that we have here at the University of Michigan. Following are some varieties that grow here and which I know nothing about. Are they all exhibition varieties and what is the best time to take the buds? These are the varieties: Amarantha, General Pershing, Mrs. W. E. Tricker, Mrs. E. G. Kelly, Mrs. J. W. Lawrence, Mrs. H. C. Jones, Mrs. H. Brown, Junior, Dazzler, William Saunders, F. F. Mew, Lady Grace, Lady Permar, General Doyen, J. H. Small, M. H. Vincent, Progress, Pandora, Majestic, Viscountess Chinda, Marshal Foch and General Pershing (English).

BRIEF ANSWERS.

S. & B., Ill.—Neither permit nor official inspection is needed to ship gladiolus bulbs out of Illinois.

OBITUARY

James Marcey.

John H. Marcey, chief florist of the Arlington national cemetery, Washington, D. C., and Walter Marcey, an expert on plants at the experimental farm of the Department of Agriculture, at Arlington, are receiving the sympathy of the Washington trade upon the death of their father, James Marcey.

Mr. Marcey, who was born in 1831, resided all of his long life on the farm in Arlington county, near Cherrydale, Va., and was one of the oldest and most highly esteemed citizens of that section of Virginia. He is survived by two other sons, a daughter, and an older brother, Samuel Marcey, who is 95 years of age.

Services were held in Walker's chapel, following which Mr. Marcey was buried in the cemetery adjoining. A. E. G.

Otto Sauer.

Otto Sauer, one of the veteran growers in the Chicago district, died March 8, at his home at Des Plaines, Ill. He was a native of Germany, 74 years of age, and retired from active business last season. For many years he sent his output to the A. L. Randall Co., for sale. A daughter is Mrs. Carl Hoffman, wife of the well known sweet pea grower.

Mrs. J. H. Baker.

Mrs. J. H. Baker, aged 24, wife of J. H. Baker, died last week at the Maxwell Maternity Home, Olympia, Wash., from shock following an operation. Mrs. Baker had been ill for three months.

Mrs. Baker went to Olympia with her husband last October, and had been associated with him in the flower shop in the Mitchell hotel since January 1.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The end of February indicated no change in the condition of this market, as things continue to drag along slowly without the customary "pep" of former years, although few flowers are going to waste. Roses have not been plentiful, with the exception of whites, while carnations are in good crop, especially the reds. Daffodils, violets and valley seem to be the three hardest hit at present. The quality of the violets is not good at present.

Some extra fine calendulas are coming to this market, some of them measuring as much as four or five inches across; in fact, they are the best that have been seen on this market for some time. Pussy willows are just about done for, while some good forsythias are putting in an appearance, and have been moving well. Adiantum is still scarce and plumosus is being substituted for it in many cases.

Various Notes.

Morris H. Levine, of New York, was a recent visitor.

T. T. Fryer, of the Taiyo Trading Co., made a brief stay in town.

The funeral of Webb C. Ball, pioneer jeweler of this city, created exceptional activity in the trade one day last week.

It was decided at the Florists' Club meeting not to hold another dance until after Lent, as there was considerable doubt as to whether a large crowd could be expected until after this period.

W. A. R.

CLEVELAND CLUB'S DOINGS.

The meeting of the Cleveland Florists' Club, March 6, was held at the club rooms in the Hollenden hotel. The get-together committee reports another dance right after Easter. Our 250 members will each get five tickets with a snappy letter saying, "That's your fair share of responsibility. If you all keep them we can make a $500 clean-up for the building fund."

The club home supporters are all busy planning new surprises to boost the fund.

The one per cent advertising committee was instructed to get out letters to every grower, wholesaler and florist right away. The chairman, J. Kent, said he would get busy.

The big national show was next taken up. Two carloads of plants, one from Mentor, O., and one from Cleveland, are to be sent. Every grower is urged to send an exhibit. Keep Cleveland to the front. If you have anything special to send, get in touch with either Mr. Merkel, Mentor, O., or Paul Backofen, Daisy Hill Farms, Chagrin Falls, O. We expect to get the next national show. Carl Hagenburger has done fine work in rounding up Cleveland growers.

The big day at Indianapolis is going to be Cleveland day, March 29. A special effort to send several cars from Cleveland is under way.

The fare will be about $22, including sleeper. Be sure to go. It will be an education, also a grand time. Make reservations with E. B. A. Kellum, 1010 Williamson building. Herman P. Knoble will preside on Cleveland day and a special program will be given. Train goes March 28.

We are expecting big things from Brother Kester. He has been taking special courses in business training.

The writer made several calls on the trade last week, among those being Felton's for Flowers, W. H. Temblett, the Posey Shop and Park Flower Shop, Euclid and Superior. Trade is on the boom everywhere. Flowers are fine and there is plenty of stock.

How about a special peony day, sweet pea day, gladiolus day, rose day, aster day and a big fall show? They will educate the public to love flowers. They will make Cleveland a flower center.

We are going to fine all members and put the money in the building fund if they don't come to the monthly meetings.

A. T. F.

LINCOLN, NEB.

Every florist here has made improvements. The Eiche Floral Co. has moved into new and elaborate quarters, installing new fixtures and drapery.

Frey & Frey have remodeled the entire interior of their store, placing new fixtures and draperies. The firm points with pride to its new violet, which is beyond expectation. It is of good color, fragrant, single and a profuse bloomer.

C. H. Frey has taken in, as manager, George Duncan. O. H. Enslow has also been added to the staff. Mr. Enslow has closed his own store and has bought stock in the C. H. Frey firm. The entire store is being improved.

J. K. Hiltner is moving into new quarters on Thirteenth street. Among many improvements, an air-cooling machine is being installed. Mr. Hiltner grows practically all his cut flowers at his greenhouse.

Chapin Bros. kept busy all winter with funeral work. This firm grows American Beauty and Pearl roses, for which there is a steady demand.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Considering that this is Lent and that the country is supposed to be suffering from general business depression, the market has been in excellent condition during the last week. The demand ever since Lent started this year certainly has been stronger than it was in the same number of days preceding Ash Wednesday and the market has been well cleaned up at each week's end. Prices, while not high, have resulted in fair averages for the growers because of the fact that little stock has been left over from day to day.

The supply of roses has been small in some of the wholesale houses, due to so many growers cropping their plants for Easter, but there have been other places in the market where roses could be obtained if the one who was short could pay a fair price. Weather conditions have been favorable and the quality of most of the stock has been excellent. The demand has been principally for the short and medium lengths, a fact which is causing the growers to cut down on their production of extra-length stems. There is little change in the relative proportions of the varieties offered. Pink continues to predominate, with white and red in small supply and, apparently, decreasing demand. It often has been noted that when an article is plentiful on the market it creates for itself a large demand, while for an article not continuously available the demand gradually decreases.

Carnation crops are low and the market has been kept quite clean at moderate prices. White has been in good request for St. Patrick's day. Milder weather has brought street salesmen out with violets. Bulbous stock is in smaller supply—jonquils, early tulips, freesias and Paper Whites. The latter two are passing. On the other hand, Darwin tulips are more plentiful and are selling well. Calendulas, too, are more abundant, but many are of indifferent quality.

Sweet peas are neither so plentiful nor so good as they were; the grower who has really good stock is getting fair prices now. Valley is in light request. There is some splendid mignonette, well worth 12 cents, but the buyers go above 8 cents only with reluctance. Cattleyas are equal to the demand.

Giganteum lilies again are abundant; some wholesale houses have few or none, but others have enough to supply any deficiency. However, the prices are maintained because of the good demand for funeral flowers. It seems plain that the growers who are cutting lilies now will be through by Easter and the general belief is that the supply for the by the club to have the Chicago Florists' Club represented at the show. Paul Weiss is the chairman of the committee attending to this affair.

Ways and means of inducing the members to come to the meetings were discussed. Secretary Lautenschlager was of the opinion that the only way to encourage the members to attend the meetings was to give the chairman of the good of the club committee full power to go the limit on an entertainment. A suggestion for an entertainment for the April meeting was offered by Mr. Keimel, who stated that he thought that to have all of the ex-presidents of the club invited would make an interesting meeting. A Mothers' day meeting was proposed for May.

In reviewing the Pageant of Progress banquet, George Asmus said that after all bills were paid for the pageant held at the Municipal pier last August, the auditing committee found that there was $286,000 left in the treasury. He said further that every cent had been accounted for and all expenditures had been legitimately made, which was contrary to the belief of a great many people. It was thought that perhaps the pageant would be extended from two weeks to a month this year. Mr. Asmus also advocated a budget system for the club finances.

The three greatest flower weeks occur this year within so short a period that one will tread on the heels of the next.

All who will need to depend in any measure upon a trustworthy source of supply should establish themselves as buyers before the season sets in when all florists will be clamoring for stock.

The following were elected to membership in the club: M. N. Duyts, private gardener, Lake Forest; Fred Poetzl, bulb department, American Bulb Co.; C. Parker, supply department, Poehlmann Bros. Co.; N. Tyler, manager supply department, Poehlmann Bros. Co.; J. K. Rugowski, aster specialist, Manitowoc, Wis.

Going to Indianapolis.

In addition to the special Monon railroad and other trains already announced for the national flower show, to be held at Indianapolis, March 25 to April 1, the Pennsylvania railroad has trains leaving the Union station, Canal and Adams streets, as follows:

|               |                  |
|---------------|------------------|
| Leave Chicago | Due Indianapolis |
| 9:30 a. m.    | 3:00 p. m.       |
| 9:50 p. m.    | 3:55 a. m.       |

The Pullman sleepers attached to the train due in Indianapolis at 3:55 a. m. may be occupied there until 8 a. m.

The Monon Special, for the Chicago day party, will leave the Dearborn station, Polk and Dearborn streets, at 5:30 p. m., Sunday, March 26, and is due at Indianapolis at 10:30 the same evening.

Various Notes.

Started with the new year, Stielow Bros., at Niles Center, expect to have their new range of rose houses ready for planting soon after the first of April. Glazing has been finished and many growers in the Niles, Des Plaines and Morton Grove sections are paying visits of admiration. It is said the range represents a new investment of $65,000.

Out at Riverbank, at Geneva, Charles McCauley has been cutting some especially fine lilies. He has obtained four, five and even six flowers to the bulb and the stems are long. He has lost practically none of the plants and his only regret is that, being from bulbs potted as soon as received last November, the crop will be gone by Easter. The A. B. C. has had an exhibit of Mr. McCauley's lilies in its store for demonstration purposes.

C. L. Washburn and Mrs. Washburn have returned from a highly enjoyable vacation visit to E. B. Washburn and family at Pasadena, Cal. Mr. Washburn met many former Chicagoans now in the trade on the coast and says they all seem to be well and prosperous. Business continues excellent in Los Angeles. At the Bassett & Washburn place at Sierra Madre another big slat palm house, 250x480, is being built.

Paul R. Klingsporn reports that within an hour, March 13, wholesalers in three different cities called on the long-distance telephone in quest of Easter lilies, taking 1,300 between them, which shows how other markets may be supplied with lilies for the big day.

A. A. Martial, perhaps better known as Gus, has returned to his old position with Poehlmann Bros. Co.

C. J. Michelsen had so far recovered from his illness that he was able to spend a few hours at the store March 13.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The market is in fair, but by no means first-class condition. There are good days and poor ones. Most often, flowers are sold at prices that are generally conceded to be good for this season. There are some of the commoner flowers that bring but a sou or are wasted—calendulas, short freesias, mignonette, New York double violets and other odds and ends.

Beauties are beginning to arrive more freely; the spring crop is coming. Otherwise, there is no especial change in the rose market, except the changes made by the buyers, who often transfer their patronage to other varieties when Lent comes.

The carnation crop is still heavy and prices are low and values irregular. Some of the growers realize more for flowers now than in midwinter; production is so much larger.

Sweet peas have further declined in price, owing chiefly to this crop going off. Valley is dull. There are a good many poor orchids. Tulips are selling rather well; better than for several seasons past. Prince of Austria, Fred Moore, Murillo and Couronne d'Or are the leading varieties. Daffodils continue to enjoy active trading at prices that are considered low. Much green is sold.

Shamrocks.

The plant event of the week was the marketing of 90,000 pots of shamrock for St. Patrick's day. They are sown, grown and, for the most part, delivered in 2½-inch pots. A few are taken from these pots and put into shamrock-shaped pans. They are grown by William K. Harris in two entire houses at Fifty-fifth street and Springfield avenue. They are sold to department stores, which give them away as an advertisement.

Marl.

A New York firm, with headquarters at Yonkers, is placing a new fertilizer, called Marl, on the market. At least, it is new hereabouts. Marl, it is claimed, has been mined for the last two years at a place about fourteen miles outside of Camden, N. J. Marl, it is claimed, is obtained from a depth of thirty-five feet below the surface of the ground. It contains six per cent potash and is, therefore, valuable for producing a luxuriant growth on many crops. The value of Marl as a first-class fertilizer is firmly believed in by its introducers.

The Nurserymen.

The style of literature sent out by the nurserymen this season shows originality and progressive methods. J. Franklin Meehan and son, Thomas Meehan III, sent a well-written letter, enclosing a postal card for reply on which are conventionally printed the different branches of their business. You are asked to put a cross opposite the name of the work desired.

Adolph Mueller wants you to plant something. He suggests a visit to his De Kalb nurseries to see things growing and to talk over matters. Mr. Mueller closes the bright letter in his Flowers in all the seasonable lines continue to be plentiful, and the quality of the stock is all that can be desired.

Our Beauty grower reports there will be a larger supply and that the quality will probably be better than we have had for some time.

In Roses, in such varieties as Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Ophelia, Hadley, we do not hesitate to say our supply has no equal.

In small corsage Roses, we recommend Maybelle, McDonald and C. Brunner.

There are plenty of ORCHIDS

Any quantity of GARDENIAS

An abundance of VALLEY.

A large cut of SNAPDRAGON in several shades of pink, yellow, and bronze; in fact, there is so much good stock on the market that we cannot itemize them all here.

It is safe for you to depend on us for your supply of cut flowers. What is in season, you are sure to find here.

De Kalb bulletin with the injunction to plant something.

The William H. Moore Co., through Edward Moore, suggests a playground for the kiddies—not to let them go away off to play, but have them on their own home grounds. The importance of keeping off the hot sun is emphasized—shade trees over a sand box, a swing, a slide, are mentioned, coupled with the suggestion that you ask the representative to call.

Easter Plants.

When William K. Harris purchased his present property in West Philadelphia, he said that those who followed him would be able to retail all the stock they could grow right there on the place. The city would come out to his place and surround it. The citizens would be glad to have a plant and flower factory in their midst. There is no doubt that this would all be true full of buds. Roserie is more highly esteemed in its class and bids fair to replace the great Tausendschoen more entirely. Magna Charta is a sight. It is wonderful how well this grand old hybrid perpetual rose can be grown. Baby Rambler and Ellen Poulsen are favorites in the bantam class.

The varieties of French hydrangeas are now so well known and understood that only the best are grown for Easter and they are grown in quantity. Trophée comes first, when finished, because of its bright color. Eclairer is dwarf and charming. The blue is General de Vibraye. Two whole houses are filled with Lilie Mouillere, every shoot showing flower.

The lilies, too, are fine, 8,500 of them in two blocks, all giganteums, many of them in 4-inch pots. For the rich purple there is Bougainvillea Sanderiana in medium sizes.

There are dracenas and nephrolepis galore, with two houses devoted to that lovely, charming little fairy, Asplenium Nidus-avis, in sizes ranging all the way from the cradle upward.

"'Twixt failure and success the point's so fine,
Men sometimes know not when they touch the line.
Just when the pearl is waiting one more plunge,
How many a struggler has thrown up the sponge!
As the tide goes clear out, it comes clear in;
In business 'tis at turns the wisest win.
And oh! how true, when the shades of doubt dismay,
'Tis often darkest just before the day!
A little more persistence, courage, vim!
Success will dawn o'er fortune's golden rim.
Then take this honey for the bitterest cup:
There is no failure, save in giving up,
No real fall as long as one still tries,
For seeming setbacks make the strong man wise.
There's no defeat, in truth, save from within;
Unless you're beaten there, you're bound to win."

—Henry Austin.

CASH-AND-CARRY SALES.

The cash-and-carry system is gradually spreading in the grocery business, but has thus far been used by florists only for special sales. Only a few florists, at that, have tried such sales. One of them is the Zetlitz Floral Products Co. Cash-and-carry sales have been put on by this firm at both its Dayton and its Middletown stores. The report is that they have been a marked success. In making this statement, the firm explains that the success lies not in making any real profit out of the sales, but in accomplishing two things, both of greatly beneficial results.

"It came to us through several of our patrons that the Zetlitz stores were known as rather exclusive and a little high-priced," states this firm. "We thought that we could immediately 'nip in the bud' such conceptions by showing the public that we could sell as cheaply as any other florist and, with our organization and production facilities, give exceedingly good value for the money. When, therefore, we had a quantity of plants which were not moving to our satisfaction, we instituted a cash-and-carry sale with a twofold purpose—to give the public good values at low prices and to move the plants.

"Since we have been carrying on our cash-and-carry sales we have had numerous letters from customers and friends complimenting us on the idea. They indicated, also, that we were overcoming the conception which some people formerly had, that we did not have any moderately priced flowers to sell. It was gratifying to get a letter from a person who stated that, although he had bought no flowers of us before—in fact, had never been in our store—from now on he proposed to give us all his business, since we had given him such wonderful values.

"Although we felt much hesitation in instituting these sales, we have found that, taking it all in all, the cash-and-carry plan, instead of cheapening our prestige, has added, to it, has brought new customers to our store and has enabled us to move stock which we might not otherwise have been able to turn into cash."

WINKELHAUS' NEW STORE.

If you visited Howell, Mich., today, Henry Winkelhaus, proprietor of the Sunnyside Greenhouse, a progressive tradesman who advances with the growth of his business, would, no doubt, show you through his new store, an illustration of which is shown on this page.

Well judged simplicity, perhaps, is the keynote of this store's attractiveness. Nothing appears cluttered; spaciousness is suggested in every part and the beauty of one object is not detracted from by the conflicting proximity of another.

Leading in from the entrance, a strip of linoleum directs your feet until you have reached the cashier's cage, which faces you from one side of the big refrigerator, at the rear. In front of this is a counter. There is a writing desk, too, placed handily for the convenience of customers. All the fixtures are in white.

WHAT YOU CAN SAY.

Does our slogan mean anything? Is it more than a phrase? The questions occur so frequently that one is glad to see the answer put so well as it occurs in a folder sent out by Mosmiller, at Richmond, Va. Here it is:

"Say It with Flowers."

The question is frequently asked, "What does the above phrase mean?" What can you "say with flowers"? The best explanation has been, what is it that you cannot "say with flowers"? When the vocabulary fails, when mere words are inadequate to express one's feelings, then the only language capable of telling how glad or sad you may be is the "Say It with Flowers" language.

"Say It with Flowers" is a heart language. It is not imparted by sounds or written characters; it is altogether spiritual, and conveys, as no other agency can, the desires and feelings of one heart to another, and never is the message misunderstood.

And furthermore, through the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, it is as easy to "Say It with Flowers" in distant cities as it is at home. Merely give us the name and address of the one you wish to greet, and the greeting will go forward by wire instantaneously.

WATCHING THE CREDITS.

Abusing Privileges.

Credit is something that we should not allow a customer to abuse, but we should help him to use it as it should be used. I warrant that fully thirty-five per cent of the average credits that are now being sold could be sold for cash with a little determination. Do not ask a person in the affirmative, "Is this a charge?" Infer that it is cash, and in many instances you will receive the money.

I often wonder if the person who skins us was not encouraged to charge the purchase by some innocent salesperson who suggested that he do so. Such people prick up their ears just as quickly as a rabbit, and take advantage of us. There are many things that go to make up a safer charge account than the average. To be careful in taking the order is the main thing. Perhaps we do not get the correct address. An ideal charge order should have the name to whom it is to be charged, and, in the contents of the order, should be the name of the person by whom it is ordered. The charge address should always be below the name to whom the order is charged. We should also get their other address and write it above the name. For instance, if a man wants his statement sent to his business address, write the business address below the name and the residence address above. This is reversed if he wants the statements sent to his residence address. A reference or two should be on the order, particularly if it is a new charge customer. The telephone number of everyone asking for credit should be on the order sheet, in case the order must be taken before the standing of the purchaser can be looked up. Also, in busy times we have the telephone number to call the customer back if that should be necessary. Do not be too anxious to extend credit to people who probably haven't a charge account anywhere else.

Another bad thing in taking charge orders is to get an address like Seventeenth and Cherry streets or Thirty-first and Olive streets. Why not get the exact address? There are four corners at every intersection. They may be all flats, with sixty or seventy families living there. Residences that lie between the river and Twentieth street and the West Bottoms and Paseo are usually dangerous. While we might say that sixty, seventy or eighty per cent are good, why lose the twenty per cent?

Getting Full Name.

One great thing in credits, and it is said by one of our best credit men to be a big thing, is to get the first name of the man or woman spelled out in full. He says, "I will charge you fifty per cent less for collecting an account where the first name of the person is given, as John Smith, instead of J. Smith, or James Brown, instead of J. Brown, and so on.

Another thing in credits is that often Mr. Henry Brown will have an account, and Mrs. Henry Brown makes a purchase, charging it to Mrs. Henry Brown. The bookkeeper opens up another ledger page, when, with a little inquiry, she would have found out that Mrs. Brown

A Letter from Karl Fisher That Will Interest You

Dear Mr. Stumpp:—

I have wired this morning, an order for ten dollar roses to be delivered to Stateroom No. 280, S. S. Adriatic.

This is a small order but there may be larger ones and it is a safe guess that they will be sent to the house which backs the helpful ads that I enjoy reading. I do not know where you got the idea of using humor and philosophy in your advertisements, but I do know that the ideas which I have taken from you have helped me to build up my business.

You may be interested in a little explanation, so here goes: My business will be nine months old on the first of next month and up until I started here the only uses for flowers were when they were sent with "Sympathy" cards attached.

The only business here is the mining and shipping of coal and we have the two largest mines in the world here. The greater percentage of the people are foreigners: Italians, Croats, Lithuanians, and some Greeks, Germans and English.

So you can see that I had to do some brain work to figure how I could reach these people.

The daily papers were useless, as this class could not read English. So I wondered why I always read your ads, and when I came to the conclusion that it was because they were worth reading and contained the element of humor, I made up my mind.

My store is next door to the post office, and they all call for their mail, so now they have some sort of a funny picture to look at in my window every day.

I am no artist, which accounts for them being funnier than intended, and each picture bears a short message.

Well, it worked!

Yesterday, for Valentine Day, I had as many orders from coal miners, boot-leggers and gamblers as I had from the upper crust.

So I want to thank you for the idea I stole from you.

Don't forget me with your F. T. D. orders for this part of the state.

I can handle anything south of Centralia.

Webster's Greenhouses at Centralia will handle anything north and he is a real booster for the F. T. D.

Yours for the F. T. D., would just as soon have had the order charged to Mr. Henry Brown. This would save the opening of dozens of new pages in our ledgers.

It is a good idea to ascertain whether the customer has moved, and if so, to put on the order sheet both the old and the new address for the benefit of the bookkeeper. A man may wire an order from a distant city, and the bill is sent there, whereas it should have been sent to his address here. Only careful people will note these most important and valuable points.

In taking information for charges it is well to divide your time and not try to get all the information you desire at once, but perhaps take a part of the order and get a part of the credit information, then the rest of the order, and then the rest of the information. In that way you do not bore the customer, and still you will get the information desired.

One of the main things in taking an order over the phone is to get the customer's name first. Then if you get cut off you can always call back and get the rest of the order. Be careful, also, in taking charge orders over the telephone, not to get your B's and D's mixed up. They sound alike and if we have several by that name and the charge gets into the wrong index, it will depend on circumstances that come up whether we get the account settled.

It does not take a diplomat to get the necessary information on charges.
I may know a person, but would it not be well to have the information on file for the use of others, thus enabling them to know that person also? There are several ways of getting information without arousing the customers. In the beginning, ask for their charge address and, simultaneously, ask for their other address. Then you can take the order. In the meantime the customers will have forgotten about the addresses you asked for. Then you can ask for one or two references. Would you trust a stranger with a $20 gold piece? Don't you think that the person would have a lot of nerve not to leave his address with you?

Credit Necessary.

Credit is a part of the life blood of business and a person having a misunderstanding of this vital subject is a dangerous person to be employed in any establishment. Be particular about charges for telegraph orders. The profits are small; therefore we must know absolutely that the customer's standing is good. When you receive letters or telegrams ordering flowers to be sent to other places, and to be charged, you should be sure to look up the credit of the purchasers. We have lost considerable accounts in the past by the filling of orders promiscuously and then not being able to locate the customer. People who want to deceive, play this game often, and it may, in some instances, be well to write or wire back.

Make your charges to lodges, not to individuals, putting the name of the person making the purchase on the order sheet. Lodges go on forever. Individuals come and go. A person may be secretary of a lodge for ten years and then, in the next few years, the secretary may be changed again and

Our losses have been great on spasmodic credits, particularly to new concerns, and to a great many big concerns that have gone bankrupt or made a failure in business. To overcome these losses, I believe a good way to do would be to charge purchasers a price that is fair and offer them a discount of ten per cent on delivery of goods. If any business concern does not accept this offer, there is something wrong somewhere.

Truck gardeners and farmers will, in the main, get as good prices as in the past, for only one or two items are down to cost of production. The 'tourist crop' was a little slow in maturing, but since the middle of December visitors have come in large numbers, and the hotels and apartment houses are completely filled. We folks here believe that Florida is destined to become one of the great agricultural states of this country."

The Rambler is strongly inclined to agree with the latter statement. The United States census reports show that the population of the state has doubled in each twenty-year period since about 1880, and these people become permanent residents, not mere tourists and travelers. Again, when one considers that only about five per cent of the entire area of the state is under cultivation, the great future for agriculture is readily apparent. Ditching and draining operations are opening up large districts in all parts of the state. In almost every direction the traveler sees timber-cutting and land-clearing going on at a rapid pace, yet it will take generations to put all the tillable land under the plow and harrow. Climate, temperature, moisture, soil and sunshine, seem to unite in making Florida an ideal loca-than is usually evidenced by city officials, but the park commissioner of Jacksonville has the proper spirit. Thursday, March 2, 1,000 verbena plants and 100 night-blooming jasmines were given to the first callers at the city hall. The plants were distributed by City Commissioner Acosta, in charge of the park department. Because of the limited supply, only two verbena plants and one jasmine plant were given to each person. The commissioner plans to have a second distribution a little later in the season, and says he hopes to have enough plants to supply all who call. The seedlings were in small pots, and persons were requested to bring papers or small boxes in which to carry away the plants.

Producing Tomatoes.

Dade county, Florida, claims to be the center of the tomato growing industry in the Sunshine State. It is estimated that for the present season more than 50,000 acres of land in Dade and adjoining counties are planted to this crop. Men who are familiar with conditions say that the yield is fully up to the average, while the quality of the fruit is extra good. Probably ninety per cent of the crop is shipped to northern markets, as there are only one or two canneries in this southern district. A manufacturer of a well known brand of cat-soup has a plant not far from Naranja, but secures practically all the needed fruit from contract growers.

A grower from the Naranja territory told the Rambler that the size known as No. 144 (number of fruits to box) is the standard commercial size, averaging during the last week of February around $2.75 per box. Packers are paid 6 cents a box, and a skillful, rapid man can pack from 200 to 250 boxes a day. Girls and small boys wrap each fruit in tissue paper.

How much a grower can make from tomatoes depends upon his ability, as in other lines of industry. Adapted soil is the first thing to consider; then comes fertilizing, cultivating and marketing, the last being by no means the least important of the trio. The Rambler was told by a reliable informant that one grower in 1921 cleared $25,000 from thirty acres of tomatoes. This same informant has a new patch of two acres from which he expects to net at least $2,000. E. F. R.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Last week the supply was excellent on the wholesale market. However, the demand fell off somewhat, because of the advent of the Lenten season. Prices were lowered considerably, especially in large lots, which were jobbed off in first and second grades. Fancy shipping stock alone held up completely in price, but, considering conditions, all prices held remarkably.

Roses are arriving in large quantities and are of high quality in Premier, Russell, Ophelia, Columbia, Butterfly, White Killarney and Milady. Prices on fancies are well up.

Plenty of fine quality carnations arrive daily. White Wonder, Betty Jane, Olivette, Edna and Enchantress have steady calls. The demand, however, does not consume the large consignments.

Fancy long Spencer sweet peas demand top price, while many shorts are jobbed off cheaply. The consignments in these are increasing daily. The quality of violets is falling off and the demand has slowed down considerably.

All seasonable bulbous stock is in heavy supply, especially tulips and daffodils. Dutch hyacinths demand good prices. Calla and Easter lilies sell well. Valley and orchids have slumped.

The monthly meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club was held March 9, at 2 p. m., in the salesrooms of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. The meeting was well attended, the drawing card being an exhibition of cut carnations and miscellaneous cut flowers. Vice-president Julius Schaeffer presided in the absence of President Rowe, and Oscar Ruff acted as secretary in the absence of J. J. Beneke.

After routine business had been transacted, Mr. Curtis, of the Pennsylvania Railway System, spoke on transportation to Indianapolis. He said that the round-trip fare is $13.31. State Vice-President Oscar May said that he expected a large party from here. A motion prevailed that the club make March 28 St. Louis day at the national flower show and that the club's secretary write Secretary John Young to reserve

The applications of W. C. Ahrens, of O'Fallon, Ill., and Robert Ladley, of Kirkwood, Mo., were reported favorably by the committee and they were elected to membership. The chair appointed F. Fillmore, J. H. Blixen and M. F. Widener as judges for the exhibition.

ger, with a vase of White Enchantress; Phil Goebel, with carnations and sweet peas, and Samuel Pierce, with a vase of Darwin tulips.

Joseph Hauser and William Eckle- mann staged a fine exhibit of sweet peas and violets. Henry Braun and the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. each staged some well-grown plants.

A rising vote of thanks was extended to the management for the afternoon's entertainment. After adjournment, the members of the firm invited the club members to refreshments and cigars, served on the second floor, which was decorated for the occasion.

Various Notes.

A meeting of the St. Louis Flower Growers' Publicity Association was called for March 7 at 1:30 p. m., at the Claridge hotel. The meeting was called for the electing of nine directors. As no quorum was present at the hours set, the old board of directors transacted the business that came before the meeting, with J. F. Ammann presiding, in the absence of both President Bourdet and Vice-president Pilcher. The secretary's statement showed plenty of funds for advertising and all bills outstanding were ordered paid. The usual Friday advertisements in all the daily newspapers were ordered continued; a great deal of space will be contracted for for Easter. Another called meeting of the members of this association will be held April 4.

A meeting of the executive board of the St. Louis Flower Show Association was held at the Claridge hotel, March 7, at 2:30 p. m., but was poorly attended. Chairman Ammann presided over the meeting. After routine business had been disposed of, letters and telegrams from the management of the national flower show were read, urging members to attend and stage exhibits. The members of the guarantee fund committee were requested to notify all subscribers to this fund to send in the

A party of fifty or more, headed by President W. A. Rowe, of the Florists' Club, and Oscar May, state vice-president of the S. A. F., will visit the national flower show at Indianapolis March 28, which will be St. Louis day. Two cars have been chartered, leaving St. Louis at noon, March 27.

The Pieper Floral Co. is making extensive improvements on the store and show house.

The Bourdet Floral Co. has added another large house to its new range. Jules Bourdet, the manager, was born in France in 1869. He will celebrate his fifty-third birthday March 19. His two sons, Andre and Rodger, are associated with him in business.

W. C. Smith celebrated his eleventh wedding anniversary March 9 and missed the club meeting, just as he did eleven years ago. Mr. Smith has been treasurer of the Florists' Club for the last fourteen years.

Park Commissioner F. W. Pape has asked for an appropriation of $1,598 for the use of the park department this year. This is about $712 more than was granted him last year.

Visitors last week were J. F. Ammann and H. J. Blixen, Edwardsville, Ill.; Charles Johann, Collinsville, Ill.; George Madsen, Alton, Ill.; M. F. Widmer, Highland, Ill., and W. E. Ogle, Belleville, Ill.

Julius Schaeffer says that he has not felt Lent so far this season; business has been excellent. He has booked several large weddings for after Easter.

Fred Strohmeier has resigned his position with the Ayres-Tubbesing Floral Co. He has accepted a position with Joseph Witek.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle was entertained by Mrs. Theodore Miller at her home March 7. All members were present and enjoyed a pleasant afternoon.

Walter Holius, for the last few years with Joseph Witek, is now in the employ of Paul T. Heil.

Joseph Frank, proprietor of the flower department at Kresge's, had an order for a casket cover to cost $500. White orchids and valley were used.

The surprises at the bowling March 8 were many. The Orchids were badly defeated by the Sweet Peas, who won all three games. The Violets handed the Daisies a 3-game defeat, while the Carnations had an easy time winning all three games from the Roses. Five more weeks will end the season and the Sweet Peas have a firm hold on first place.

The Market.

Business holds up unusually well. The market is cleaned up daily on roses and carnations. There is an oversupply of sweet peas and jonquils at this time, but they are being worked off without much loss. Prices are firm on roses. With the exception of some short-stemmed stock, roses range from $8 to $20. Carnations are $5. Sweet peas are 50 cents and $1, with jonquils $4 and $6.

Club Meeting.
A business meeting of the Florists' Club was held March 9, in the office of the T. J. Noll Floral Co. A paper on "Credits," by Alpha Elberfeld, of the Alpha Floral Co., was read. Mr. Elberfeld, however, was unable to attend; therefore, the paper was read by Glenn K. Parker, secretary of the club. W. J. Barnes submitted a change in the by-laws of the club, reducing the dues of employees from $5 to $1 per year. This matter will be acted upon at the next meeting of the club. L. R. Bohannon, treasurer, read his report for the first half of the club year, showing a cash balance of $1,282.54 in the bank. The resignation of Mr. Bohannon as trustee was read, but it was voted to have a committee call upon Mr. Bohannon and ask him to reconsider his action.

Miss Hayden, chairman of the publicity committee, asked for an expression from the club as to Easter advertising. It was decided that not all of the publicity fund should be spent for Easter, as there are other occasions in the spring when advertising would be more desirable. President T. J. Noll appointed a committee consisting of Miss Hayden, M. E. Carter, W. J. Barnes, Robert Fields and Glenn K. Parker to call upon the members who have failed to pay their publicity fund subscriptions. W. L. Rock offered his motor car and a driver to the committee any time they desired to use it. President Noll also appointed W. J. Barnes, M. E. Chandler and A. F. Barbe to look after the erection of the ten slogan boards which have been distributed to florists here. Mr. Rock is having a sketch made by a local firm which will insure uniformity in the placing of these signs. In order to make the advertising effective, a small garden effect will be given by the planting of flowers and shrubs below the boards and the building of a path from the signboard to the street or boulevard on which it is placed. This will make "Say It with Flowers" a reality.

Glenn K. Parker, secretary, called the attention of members to a series of sermons on advertising slogans spiritually applied, being preached by Rev. S. D. Harkness, pastor of Immanuel Presbyterian church. The subject for March 12 is, "Say It with Flowers." The text is, "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin; and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."—Matthew 6:28, 29. It was decided to mail notices of the sermon to all club members and florists of the city and urge attendance. M. E. Chandler, of the Chandler Landscape & Floral Co., offered to decorate the church for the occasion. The T. J. Noll Floral Co., Stuppy Supply Co. and W. L. Rock Flower Co. agreed to send carnations to be distributed to the congregation and at least a dozen other florists said they would send baskets of flowers for decoration. Members were urged to attend the national flower show at Indianapolis, so that a good showing would be made from this city.

Various Notes.

P. A. Manson, of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., is doing remarkably well on his trip through Texas. He has met with success all through his territory.

W. Houston Barclay opened his new store in Wichita, Kan., March 15. He purchased his supplies from the T. J. Noll Floral Co. and ordered plenty of cut flowers for the opening.

Glenn K. Parker, manager of the Stuppy Supply Co., was in St. Joseph, Mo., March 8. He says the Stuppy Floral Co. has 60,000 Easter lilies in fine condition.

L. R. Bohannon, of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., is going to the national flower show.

Mr. Horst advised some of his friends and customers in their garden planning.

A. Newell has booked a good many Easter orders. When regular customers come into the store the advantage of early Easter buying is suggested. In most cases the customer gives his order, telling about how much he wants to spend and leaving the selection and arrangement to the clerk. This will help out a good deal at Easter time, Mr. Newell believes.

T. J. Noll has returned from a three weeks' trip through the east. He spent several days with his son and daughter in Michigan. In Chicago he met Ove Gnatt, who invited him to visit the La Porte plant. Mr. Gnatt telephoned that Mr. Noll was on the way and he was met at the station and taken through the factory. Mr. Noll said the visit was exceedingly interesting and he was glad he made it.

Henry Kusik & Co. are cleaning up every day. They are well satisfied with this much of the year's showing, which is better than 1921.

Samuel Murray had a good week. Orders of all kinds were received on a liberal scale.

W. N. De Graaff, of Noordwyk, Holland, was in the city last week.

Mrs. Winifred Noll has gone to New Orleans to visit her parents.

A. A. Ackerson had thirty-five orders for one funeral recently. Mr. Ackerson has joined the F. T. D.

Miss L. E. Boggess was busy up to closing time every day last week, Saturday being especially heavy.

March 11 was like a holiday in the store of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. For two or three hours in the afternoon the clerks were swamped.

LEACH Flower Shop

TORONTO, ONT.

Business was good last week. The automobile show helped considerably, as all the motor agencies had their salesrooms decorated. The supply of flowers is sufficient for the demand and stock is of good quality. Visits to the greenhouses show that the supply of flowers for Easter will be satisfactory, both as to quantity and quality.

Thomas Gress, of H. G. Dillemath's greenhouses, is seriously ill.

Mrs. G. W. Warren is again able to be out, after being confined to her home with a sprained ankle for six weeks.

J. S. Simmons is in Florida.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Association held a social and dance, March 9. More than 100 members were present and the evening was spent at cards and dancing, with an intermission for refreshments.

The executive committee of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association met at Montreal, March 6, and arranged for the annual convention, to be held in that city, August 8 to 11. Those attending from Toronto were F. D. Clark, A. Simpson, W. Muston and George Douglas. Also in attendance were W. E. Groves, the president of the association, and Harry Groves, from Hamilton; W. W. Gammage and E. B. Hamilton, of London, and S. Kirk, of Georgetown. A tentative program was drawn up, full particulars of which will be given later.

Eaton's greenhouses were open to the public, March 11. Invitations were sent to the florists and the gardeners and there was a large attendance from the various floral organizations. J. J. H.

The Lenten season is on and it is easy for one engaged in the florists' business to realize this fact, for there is a decided slump in the sale of flowers. has turned over to the florists a new building, 95x250, which will be devoted entirely to plants and cut flowers. A "Say It with Flowers" sign has been placed on the building and it will be illuminated by electric lights during the coming fair. Twenty exhibitors have already secured space.

Various Notes.

The new daffodil, King Alfred, is seen at the greenhouses of Fred Frank. A large amount of bulbous stock is also grown here.

Last week the entire force at the retail establishment of Paul Blackman was kept busy filling funeral orders. Day and night work has been required.

Business is satisfactory at the new store of Philip Weiler.

At A. W. Masser's seed store the force is working overtime to fill spring orders. Mr. Able, the manager, reports a heavy demand for seeds of all kinds.

Heck Bros., of Wyomissing, Pa., had the decorations for the Textile Industrial ball at the Hotel Berkshire. Palms and wild smilax were used.

Business at the establishment of Harry G. Huesman is brisk. A large supply of bulbous stock is disposed of daily.

A visit to the stores of Daniel P. Guildin, J. C. Bauder and Stanley Giles found business quite brisk.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

Scarcity of stock continues, and although the supply has been materially increased by a few days of sunshine, the growers still find it impossible to fill all orders. Funeral work was exceptionally heavy last week and, consequently, there has been a big call for short roses, carnations and small stock. Few changes in prices have been noted, and until stock becomes more plentiful no big deductions are looked for.

Sweet peas are in good supply, but the demand is equal, and they clean up well at $1 and $2 per hundred. Other prices are as follows: Roses, $8 to $25; carnations, $4 to $8; Laddie, $10 and

In the pot plant line bulbous stock continues to hold the lead. The demand for these at this time is good. Cyclamens have passed out for this season. A few Easter lilies and baby rose plants have made their appearance.

Various Notes.

K. J. Teuber, of Springville, visited Salt Lake City and Farmington last week. He has purchased an interest in the Springville Floral Co. Mr. Teuber is a grower of no mean ability and southern Utah will undoubtedly be well taken care of on its carnation supply, as carnations are the big item with this company, although pot plants and other miscellaneous stock will be grown next season. Mr. Teuber is well known in this vicinity, being among the first growers in this section. He was grower for the Salt Lake Floral Co. when it was first established.

Robert Newcomb, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, stopped in Salt Lake City for a few days last week.

The Miller Floral Co., on Broadway, reports excellent business for last week. Large funeral orders have kept the entire force busy at all times.

The Ogden florists had a busy week. They find the greatest difficulty in procuring stock sufficient for their needs.

The Huddart Floral Co. has had several large decorations last month. One of these, worth special note, was that for the lumbermen's banquet at the Hotel Utah. Fifty made-up baskets constituted part of the decorations for this occasion.

At the greenhouses of the Miller Floral Co., at Farmington, all indications point to an excellent supply of Easter plants. This concern is growing more lilies than last year. The hydrangeas are in better shape than ever before. In fact, the entire plant range is in A-1 condition.

Now a new printing is being made and the publishers authorize The Review to give its readers the benefit of the saving made in present competitive conditions in the book-making trades in the East. This means a new price of $40.00 per set for the CYCLOPEDIA—a saving of $8.00 per set.

Besides the purely botanical matter one would expect to find in such a work, there are many hundreds of cultural articles, chapters on insects, diseases, remedies, etc.—a veritable horticultural library, all carefully and completely indexed.

The Market.

It cannot truthfully be stated that it is a brisk market and, but for a large amount of funeral work, the market would be decidedly weak. Milder weather has hurried flowers along and, in spite of some dark days, supplies readily increase. Prices have not declined much within a week and, even if they had, growers have had excellent business since Christmas and satisfactory prices. There is a largely increased supply of roses of fine quality and, as a natural consequence, values have dropped a little. Killarney is down to $3 per hundred for shorts, but other varieties have held up to $4 to $6 per hundred, such varieties as Russell, Hadley, Scott Key, Crusader and Pilgrim bringing the most money. Yellows are rather more plentiful and sell well. Ophelia is plentiful, but Mme. Butterfly is gradually supplanting it.

Carnations are almost at their flood tide and prices on them are much the same as for short-stemmed roses. While some fine flowers arrive, it is plainly to be seen that nowadays many of the best products of local growers go to the other large wholesale markets. Violets do not sell well; most of them do not realize over 50 to 75 cents per hundred. On the other hand, fancy-bunched flowers make double these prices. Pansies are abundant and fine in quality. Sweet peas are not good property. There are entirely too many of them, with the usual wide range in prices. Zvolanek's Rose, Rose Queen and Mrs. Kerr are popular varieties.

Callas are considerably overdone and, in spite of heavy sales for funeral work, are a slow sale. The same holds true of lilies. Some fine formosum lilies are now seen. Snapdragon is now of splendid quality and arrives in increased number; the finest spikes make $16 per hundred. Pink remains far the best seller. A considerable number of both white and yellow marguerites now come in and bachelor's buttons are also more plentiful.

About all varieties of tulips and narcissi are now available. Prices on these hold up well; few flowers go below $4

Growers in Meeting.

An adjourned meeting of growers was held at Young's hotel March 11 to consider the consolidation of the two wholesale flower markets. There was a good attendance. W. C. Stickel presided and spoke of the object of the meeting. William H. Elliott, the first speaker, urged the markets to stick together. It was unanimously voted to give full power to the committee to effect an organization with other committees, William H. Elliott being chosen as chairman. Mr. Elliott spoke of the strong desirability of either leasing or building as soon as possible, and said that building seemed to be the better idea. It would cost $300,000 or $400,000 to erect a suitable building, he said. Last year was, undoubtedly, the best growers ever had and the outlook was full of promise. Now was the time to go ahead. The markets had always paid $10 or more in dividends and the new alliance could easily put through a building scheme. A straw vote taken among growers present, stating how much they are prepared to subscribe towards a building, totaled a substantial sum.

were considered, but the Park Square section was most favored. A committee, consisting of A. Christensen, Mr. Peirce and W. C. Stickel, was chosen to discuss the matter with other trade elements and a little later all will come together at a banquet, when the building question is to be decided upon. All elements are full of optimism and the outlook for a grand building for the wholesaling of flowers is most excellent.

Various Notes.

While there are a good many visitors from here to the New York show, the number is somewhat below that of former years, probably because a considerable number are planning to visit the national show at Indianapolis. Then Boston has a large show of its genistas, etc. The large stock of orchids was never in finer condition. A considerable number of phalaenopsis were in flower, also dendrobiums, cymbidiums, odontoglossums, odontiodas, lyeastes, hybrid cattleyas and cypripediums. A remarkable batch of hundreds of husky miltonias will make a great show a little later. In other houses were noted good batches of carnations, bulbous flowers, cinerarias and other seasonable plants. Anyone who enjoys seeing well grown orchids should stop off at Framingham and see J. T. Butterworth or George W. Butterworth. If both father and son, by any chance, are away, Miss Rachel Butterworth can talk orchids convincingly and eloquently.

At William R. Nicholson's, in Framingham Center, carnations at one time were the chief crop grown. Now they are relatively unimportant and, while fine batches of Belle Washburn, Benora, Matchless, Morning Glow, Ward and Pink Delight are still grown, they are being gradually dropped for other crops, which, Mr. Nicholson finds, pay better. Thousands of hardy delphiniums are being forced here and will a little later make a great show. A good many fine points must be mastered to handle this crop successfully. Gypsophila elegans for some years has been made a great specialty here, both in flats and shallow benches. The first batch will soon be in flower. Wallflowers are remarkably well grown and have been cut for several months, with splendid stems. Myosotis of superior quality is largely grown; a great part of the crop goes to New York several times weekly. Gladioli, some 30,000 in number, are planted in one house. Both the large-flowered and primulinus types are grown. Colored freesia is extremely well done. The variety General Pershing is a favorite. Sweet peas are grown in quantity. Zvolanek's Rose is popular as a pink. Godfrey callas in pots run around the sides of one or two houses and flower profusely. Double feverfew is grown as a Memorial day crop. Chrysanthemums are being propagated in large number and are the leading specialty here. A large selection of the best kinds are grown, including all the best new ones; 10,000 each of Early Frost and its golden sport, which originated here, will be planted the coming season.

At the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, March 21, bulbs will be discussed. H. H. Bartsch will speak on commercial Dutch bulb culture. Walter H. Golby will treat the same bulbs from the professional gardener's standpoint. W. N. Craig will speak on lilies for forcing. There will be exhibits of bulbous flowers. This meeting comes two days before the opening of Boston's big spring bulb show and should prove timely and instructive.

Boston's big automobile show opened March 11. It gave much work to local retailers, great numbers of flowering and foliage plants, cut flowers and decorative material being used. Penn's, Galvin's, Inc., T. F. Galvin, Jr., A. Hoffman and others had much decorating to do.

Complaints are general this season regarding the poor quality of giganteum lilies. The plants are exceptionally dwarf and carry fewer flowers than usual. There are also far more diseased plants than in former years. Formosum lilies, on the other hand, are remarkably good. Premature digging is blamed for the inferior quality of the giganteums.

The W. W. Edgar Co. has a splendid lot of roses and hydrangeas coming along for Easter. The company has about 10,000 giganteum lilies, which are coming dwarfer than usual. Genistas, acacias and metrosideros are all well done. Bulbs are grown in great numbers and Darwin tulips are especially well done. Many thousands of young begonias and cyclamens are looking fine, while geraniums and other bedding plants will be glad to have the room now occupied by Easter stock.

Jacob Brunner, for years local representative of the Climax Mfg. Co., who recently went to California, has decided

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Bulbous stock is abundant. Jonquils are in biggest supply and the quality is good. Tulips are making a good showing and include many good varieties in good colors. Paper Whites have shown up again in fair supply, but lately the supply has been uncertain.

Lilies are more plentiful and are selling well. Callas are good. There was a good demand for orchids last week. Valley is in good supply and is of extra good quality. Some fine cypripediums are on the market and move fairly well.

The supply of roses is quite large and there appear to be practically all varieties on hand. Calendulas are plentiful and the sale is good. Acacia pubescens is plentiful, but there is no particular demand for it just at present. Forget-me-nots, snapdragons, pansies, marguerites and bachelor's buttons are in small supply.

Various Notes.

Morris M. Cohen, of Cohen & Hiller, New York, and A. Leipzig, of the Leipzig Basket Co., New York, recently called on trade here. Both are returning from western trips and report good business in their lines.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held at their rooms in the Osburn House Friday evening, March 10. A fair attendance was noticed. A general discussion took place.

E. R. Fry held a special rose sale at his store Saturday, March 11, when 900 dozens of roses were cleared in good shape at 90 cents per dozen. Mr. Fry believes in advertising and he certainly is getting visible results. His new store is far better equipped for handling a larger volume of business, and facilities for storage are also better.

Salter Bros. had a plant sale for the week end, in which large cinerarias, primroses and cyclamens were featured at $1.50 each.

J. B. Keller Sons had an exquisite display in the form of a Dutch garden. Two mounds of red Darwin tulips, with a center mound of lavender and white hyacinths, attracted considerable attention.

The Rochester Floral Co. has been busy lately with a large quantity of funeral work. Large vases of callas, surrounded by well grown lavender and white hyacinths, formed a pretty window display.

The increased volume of business has necessitated the putting on of more help, both in the office and packing department of Hart & Vick. From the present

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

A much better supply of stock is now coming in and business is returning to normal. Daffodils, hyacinths, narcissi and other bulbous flowers are making a fine show, while blooms of various kinds give a pretty spring-like effect to the stores. Outdoor carnations are still of moderate quality, but they are improving with the better weather and will soon be back to form again. Indoor flowers are fine. The season, too, is well shown in the improvement in roses, these being now at their best. Heather is still being sent in, but its glory has departed for this year. Business with the retailers is exceptionally good and shippers say they can find a market for everything they can get hold of. Greens are improving, but still they are not up to the standard.

Various Notes.

John Polder has been passing the cigars. The occasion is the arrival at his home of a fine baby boy. This young florist is to be named William. Both he and his mother are doing well.

Among visitors last week to the range of Amling Bros., at Santa Ana, were Frank Schramm, of Crystal Lake, Ill., and Herman Schiller, of Chicago. Speaking of visitors here, Ernst Amling says he has been surprised and much gratified at the number of visitors to the company's range. These are tradespeople and other people not connected with the florists' business, but just interested in the working of this fine establishment. The stock is of fine quality, showing the effect of the season. A big cut is being taken.

A stockholders' meeting was held at the American Florists' Exchange, March 6. Among the stockholders present were H. N. Gage, T. H. Wright, John Polder, Gebhardt Precht, Joseph Hoko, E. C. Amling, H. Amling, Ernst Amling, F. R. Hills, H. R. Richards, Frank Warner, C. Gutting, Roy F. Wilcox, J. Denison, George Hall, Albert Goldenson, J. H. Burns, W. Kent and N. Goudolfa. As there was not enough to form a quorum, for which over fifty per cent of the stockholders is necessary, the election of officers and directors was held over until March 20. Chancellor Brady, the new secretary of the California Association of Nurserymen, was introduced to the meeting by Roy Wilcox, and both these gentlemen made an appeal to all present to join the association, pointing out the benefits accruing not only to nurserymen, but also to florists and seedsmen by the excellent work carried on by this association.

H. N. Gage reports that his Asparagus plumosus seed crop was not so badly injured by the frost as he expected, and that at least a quarter of the crop will be saved.

Business continues to improve at the Sixth street store of Wolfskill's & Morris Goldenson.

E. P. Thompson, formerly of the staff at Wright's Flower Shop, has gone into business for himself under the title of Thompson's Flower Shop, at 638 West Pico street.

Harry Morgan is particularly well pleased with the way business is coming to his store, a constant improvement being noted.

F. R. Hills is sending in some fine hybrid orchids.

Heavy buying is reported by the Broadway Florists, an exceptional lot of funeral work being noted.

Out at Glendale J. T. Allen, the Glendale Florist, says that business is constantly improving. With the addition of Tropico to the city and the many improvements going on at Burbank, it is only natural that business here should increase.

Good funeral work and plenty of it is the report at the old-established store of O. C. Saake. Mr. Saake himself is always on the job and the store is always attractive.

A considerable increase in shipping business is noted by Walter Armacost & Co. Another large consignment of baskets has arrived and the rose cut from the range continues at top notch. The orchids are now being placed in the new houses recently built for them. Mr. Williamson, recovered from his siege of influenza, is back on the job.

Walter Garbett, well known in this vicinity, has been appointed salesman for H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia. This week Mr. Garbett is at the Angelus hotel here with his samples.

S. Murata & Co. report good business, especially in the shipping end.

George Hall & Co. are busy shipping daffodils, sweet peas and other stock. Mr. Hall says that outdoor carnations are improving right along and will soon be at their best again.

Time To Think of Easter

Our customers are wanting to know what we will have for Easter—are asking our opinion about business and how prices are going to run.

We believe that there will be ample stock for local demand and for nearby shipping. Stock that will be good enough for long distance shipping will be scarce. Easter comes late this year, April 16th. Violets will be gone and practically all of the bulb stock. Roses will be plentiful and prices moderate. Lilies in general are scarce, but we have an immense stock, about one-half of the pot Lilies in southern California being in our hands. Prices will be as follows:

Cut Lilies ..... 25c per bud and bloom
 Pot Lilies ..... 3 buds, 85c per pot
 Pot Lilies ..... 4 buds or over, 25c per bud and bloom

Lilies shipped in 5 or 6-inch pots as desired.

There is a fair supply of Hydrangeas at the following prices:

4-inch ..... 35c and 50c
 5-inch ..... 50c and 75c
 6-inch ..... 75c, $1.00 and $1.50

Plenty of Heather:

4-inch Persoluta Alba ..... 50c and 75c
 5-inch Persoluta Alba ..... 75c and $1.00

Cyclamens and Cinerarias will be out of the market.

All plants shipped in clay or paper pots as you wish. Packing charged at cost.

Greens of all kinds will be scarce.

We recommend Hot House Carnations instead of Field Carnations.

If the weather continues bright, we will have plenty of Marguerites and mixed field flowers.

We believe that the demand will be heavy for moderate priced stock, with Lilies, as usual, the favorites.

You can keep fully posted on all market changes and the kinds of stock available from week to week by reading the ads and getting the price lists from ment of the E. C. Amling Co. is going to be an attractive one. A carload of baskets has been put in, as well as large amounts of other supplies. This is a busy place now.

At Darling's Shop decorators have been at work and the store is much improved. Mr. Darling says that, in spite of the shortage of flowers, the last six weeks have been an exceptionally busy period.

Fine spray and other orchids, valley and an exceptionally good cut of roses are coming from the greenhouses to Wright's Flower Shop. Manager Harry Friend says business was never better.

Roy F. Wilcox & Co. are planting out another large field to heather.

Purdie & Co. have always attractive windows and just now daffodils and spring flowers have the call. The new workroom is proving a real help in getting out funeral work. H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Stock is now good and plentiful and prices have returned to their normal level. The demand is large enough, however, to take care of the stock and growers and retailers are feeling more satisfied with conditions than has been the case since the exceedingly cold weather set in, during the month of January. Good crops of roses are being cut. The same is true of carnations. Freesias are fairly abundant and there are plenty of gillyflowers, French marigolds and primroses of various kinds. Daffodils are plentiful and of good quality, several varieties being cut by the various growers. Lilies of the valley are now arriving in sufficient quantities for all demands, as are cut tulips; these are in many varieties and most of them have good, long stems. Pansies are plentiful and are much in demand for decorative work. Cinerarias are coming in well. Flowering fruit and acacia sprays are now plentiful, especially the ornamental quince, peach and almond, in both red and pink. All these sprays are in full season and florists are making highly attractive showings of fruit blossoms. There are some Easter lilies of fairly and flowering plants, Mrs. Brown states that she will carry seeds and fruit trees. She is now in a position to accept orders.

M. Domoto, of Domoto Bros., says that Easter lilies are not up to the usual standard. This is because all the bulbs in Japan suffered from heavy rains and excessive heat. As a result, all kinds of Japanese bulbs are somewhat weaker than usual. "All growers are experiencing this condition," said Mr. Domoto. The Domoto Bros. are showing the earliest Tausendschoen potted roses, and they are cutting many roses as well as large crops of tulips, including Darwin, Pride of Holland, Clara Butt and Salmon King.

The Growers' Floral Co. is fortunate in having a large crop of didiscus at a time when this flower is becoming popular for decorative work. According to this firm, didiscus was brought from Australia some thirty-five years ago, was cultivated for a time and was then allowed to lapse. Some four years ago, it was again cultivated and has now won favor. The Growers' Floral Co. has been cultivating this 5-petaled heliotrope blue mass of tiny blooms that travels remarkably well and revives in water with surprising vitality. A member of the Charles C. Navlet Co. stated that there is a marked demand for didiscus seeds this spring.

Enomoto & Co. are doing an extensive business in acacia sprays and are handling violets of good quality. They are beginning to cut their pink tulips and have excellent crops of roses and carnations.

The United Flower & Supply Co. states that its roses and carnations are in fine shape. "While the quality of the stock has improved, the prices have gone down," said I. Inoue. "There is just about enough of everything to supply the demand. We have a prospect of plenty of good stock for Easter."

At the last meeting of the directors of the San Francisco Coöperative Flower Market it was resolved not to abolish, at least for the present, the system which compels purchasers to have cards, costing $1.60 a month, or $5 a quarter, in order to have the privileges of the market. The money obtained from these cards goes toward current expenses.

The public has been watching flowers grow in the window of the Charles C. Navlet Co., on Market street. A. D.

Cowdrey, of the Navlet staff, designed the window around a Bass-Hueter bungalow, as big as a small doll's house. It has lawns, kitchen and flower garden and borders of santolina. There have been other such exhibits, but this is believed to be the first in which everything is actually growing. The seeds were put in when the window was first designed, some weeks ago. Now vege-

F. C. Jaeger & Son have just installed another original telegraph window, which is attracting much attention. In one corner there is a 4x6-foot facsimile of a Western Union telegram, ordering flowers. A concealed 2,000-candle-power electric light is centered spot-light fashion, on this telegram. Business was good last week and several large funerals cleaned up all stock. The "flu" epidemic, however, is on the decline. Considerable rain fell last week and most people feel more satisfied with it than with the several cold spells which we had throughout the winter. Darwin tulips are making their appearance, and for this time of the year they are good. Genistas of good quality and calendulas are coming in. The latter, however, are short-stemmed, but they will improve.

Various Notes.

Among the trade visitors of last week were H. L. Olsson, of Spokane, Wash., and Mr. Duncan, superintendent of parks in Spokane, Wash.

George Teufel is bringing in some fine genistas in pots, which find a ready sale among the retailers.

Calendulas of good quality were brought in by Robert Newsham.

Fred M. Young has been confined to his home on account of illness, but is rapidly recovering. Mr. Young is well known among the wholesale and retail dealers of this city.

A visit to Clarke Bros., at Clarke station, revealed a good deal of fine stock for the Easter trade. French hydrangeas in from 4-inch to 7-inch pots were prominent and Easter lilies are coming along in fine shape. LONG BEACH, CAL.

C. A. Simonson has acquired the interest of C. E. Schucan in the Patrick Floral Co., operating a retail store at 614 Pine avenue. Mr. Simonson formerly was of McPherson, Kan. They have an up-to-date and first-class flower shop. Charles F. Patrick has been a resident of Long Beach for eight years and has been a booster for everything in a civic way. He has a wide circle of friends. He carries the classification of "florist" in the Rotary Club here, is a Mason, Scottish Rite Mason, Shriner and Elk. Mr. Simonson also is an Elk and a Blue Lodge Mason. They are the only florists in Long Beach representing these bodies and this undoubtedly will help make the new partnership a success.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

With the opening of Lent, there has been a let-up in the demand for flowers, although funeral work is more than holding up to average and orders for delivery to the hospitals are good at this time. Stock is more plentiful. Violets are more plentiful and the increase in carnations has been heavy enough to cause some worry. Roses show a small increase, but this is still short of normal. The cut of orchids is notably short.

Potted plants are still plentiful and some of the shops have been making special offerings in order to move the stock in good order. Potted hydrangeas have appeared. As a whole, the sale continues good, with cyclamens and hyacinths the best sellers.

Various Notes.

H. L. Olsson, of Spokane, was a trade visitor last week.

With an increase in the available stocks, the Art Floral Co. reports a much better sale of roses. Small potted items have also sold well.

Rosaia Bros. continue to cut some fine Premier roses at the greenhouses. Other stock is coming along nicely, and there will be a heavy cut this summer. There has been an excellent demand from the retail trade for large baskets. Several large club decorations were handled last week.

While the increase in general stocks has helped, the B. E. Hammond Co. still reports difficulty in meeting the demands of out-of-town shippers on certain lines.

Mrs. Felix Rosaia has returned from an extended visit with relatives in the San Francisco bay region, but she has not been in the best of health since her return.

North Desmond is now attached to the staff of the Burdett Co., having taken up his new work the first of this month. He was formerly with Risdon & Desmond.

Good-sized theater decorations and a nice transient business is reported for Melby's Flower Shop. William Drake is able to be at work again, after a short time in the hospital.

McCoy's have enjoyed brisk funeral work, there being a surprisingly heavy demand for magnolia leaf funeral wreaths.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop reports the best February business in its history. Heavy funeral business contributed to this materially. Several attractive window displays have been developed, including a solid window of yellow tulips, with all other decorations in the same shade.

Chris Jochimsen is making heavy deliveries of spring flowers. He reports his bedding stock coming along nicely.

In order to assimilate the increased deliveries, Morgan's Flower Shop has been making special efforts to move carnations, with good results.

son has been secretary of the city zoning commission.

Medium-priced potted items have been the heaviest sellers with the Pinehurst Floral Shop, hyacinths being the leader in this respect. There has also been a better demand for daffodils.

The Hollywood Gardens note a small increase in the cut of roses. The lack of social functions during Lent has slowed up sales, but the general demand is holding up well on spring items and potted tulips. Some fine early deliveries of Easter lilies are also being offered.

At Kenney's, decorations for three weddings proved a feature of last week's business.

Better sales of cut flowers have been the rule with the Orpheum Floral Co.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

NEW officers of the R. & J. Farquhar Co., Boston, are: President, Alexander P. Dewar; vice-president and secretary, George Cruikshank; treasurer, Victor E. Nelson.

JOHN BODGER is expected to arrive at New York, with Mrs. Bodger, on the steamer Saxonia, April 8. This will be just three days short of a year since he left New York harbor.

AN increased volume of business has necessitated the putting on of more help, both in the office and packing room of Hart & Vick, Rochester, N. Y. It looks as though this firm is in for a bumper season.

THE coöperative purchasing of supplies is being advocated in the British trade to enable retail seedsmen to compete with the Coöperative Wholesale Society, the low prices of which have caused some encroachment on the seedsmen's trade.

THE national convention of canners, machinery men and merchandise brokers of the United States will be held in Milwaukee, in January, 1923, as a result of a meeting of representative hotel men of Milwaukee with merchandise brokers and canners of Wisconsin.

D. G. FRASER states that he has acquired the sole ownership of Robert G. Fraser & Son, Pasadena, Cal., the business name to be in future Fraser & Son; also that William E. Hayes, formerly on the Vanderbilt estate in the Adirondacks, has been appointed to have charge of the seed growing department.

GLADIOLUS bulbs are selling rather unexpectedly well this year. The Classified ads in The Review make the market for the United States. Prices are made in accordance with what others are quoting there. Also, the little liner ads show how business is going. Early in the season there were more of these gladiolus bulb ads than ever before; now there are not so many as last year at this date. "Sold out," of course, is the reason.

THE aggregate demand for field seeds this season is expected to be equal to or slightly greater than last year, although the demand for a few important kinds will be less, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture. Some of the more important factors affecting the demand are: Increased acreage of clovers and grasses, shortage of home-grown seed in various sections, substitution of kinds because of relatively lower price, the low price of grain during the past year, and depressed financial conditions.

A BOOKLET just off the press, "Permanent Pastures for the South Atlantic States," is being distributed by William G. Scarlett & Co., Baltimore, Md. It contains formulæ for seed mixtures for pasture planting in the section named. The material contained in it is based on the firm's own experience, supplemented by extensive correspondence with experiment station experts, county agricultural agents and successful farmers throughout the section. This booklet represents an innovation in the seed trade, for, it is believed, this is the first time that an American seed house has given to the pub-lie the exact formulæ of its mixtures. The booklet has been prepared for distribution to customers and to agricultural advisers and teachers.

H. EMME is back at his old position in the retail department of the St. Louis Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo., where he is much needed for the coming season.

LAST week the House of Representatives passed a bill authorizing a $1,000,000 appropriation for the purchase of seed grain for farmers in drought-stricken areas of the northwest. As previously approved by the Senate, the bill carried a $5,000,000 appropriation, and the difference must be compromised before the measure goes to the President.

SOME catalogue houses in Great Britain have dodged the high postage rates in that country by mailing their printed matter in continental countries, where the depreciated currency reduces the cost of printing, mailing and postage to less than the cost of stamps alone at home. But no one has showed us how to get around the excessive charges under the zone system here.

HOUSE PUTS 'EM IN AGAIN:

By a vote of 145 to 65 the House of Representatives March 9 amended the Agricultural Department appropriation bill so as to include the item of $360,000 for the annual distribution of free seed.

No provision was made for congressional seed in the bill, as reported to the House, the appropriations committee declaring that it had been dropped from the estimates of the department in the interest of economy and was omitted from the measure for the same reason. The amendment was introduced by Congressman Langley, of Kentucky, and, despite the opposition of Representative Anderson, of North Dakota, chairman of the appropriations committee, the House voted to include the appropriation. Unsuccessful in his effort to defeat the amendment in its entirety, Congressman Anderson sought to have the appropriation reduced to $240,000, asserting that the prices of seed had declined in the last year and that that sum would purchase approximately the same amount as was secured for the $360,000 appropriated last year. This move was opposed by Representative Langley, who declared that if there was to be any change in the appropriation, it should not be reduced, but rather increased to $450,000. T. N. S.

HENRY F. MICHELL CO. 518-516 Market St. PHILA., PA.

the Memphis Seed & Plant Co., and grows and ships "all kinds of vegetable plants, cannas, dahlias, roses, hydrangeas, ornamental plants, bedding plants, sweet potatoes."

W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, Ill.—"Barnard's Florists' Price List," a well printed, illustrated 22-page catalogue of seeds, bulbs, shrubs and supplies. This catalogue, compiled especially for the use of florists, is distinct from the two regular catalogues, wholesale and retail, which were issued some weeks ago and were mentioned on page 122 of The Review of February 16.

F. C. Burns, San Rafael, Cal.—A handsome, well printed booklet, devoted to dahlias and to "the Burns new hybrid delphinium"; eight pages and cover. Several of the dahlias also were originated by Mr. Burns. The one illustration in the text shows a Burns cactus dahlia. On the cover are colored pictures of the new delphinium and a dahlia which Mr. Burns is introducing this season.

Burmeister & Hartung, Onkama, Mich.—A well illustrated catalogue, devoted entirely to the interests of the company's specialty, strawberry plants; sixteen large, clearly printed pages. "Herein," says the company, "is a description of what we know to be the best standard and everbearing varieties, with the proper method of cultivation and care, the harvesting, packing, shipping and marketing, so as to obtain maximum money returns."

Independence Nurseries, Independence, O.—A most attractive, accurate and interesting 24-page catalogue, which gives chief prominence to water lilies and other aquatic plants, but also offers irises and miscellaneous hardy plants. The illustrations, as well as the text, embody many suggestions on the construction and planting of lily ponds and water gardens. On the cover are finely colored pictures of water lilies and irises.

Holmes-Calhoun Seed Co., Spartanburg, S. C.—"Three Meals a Day; 365 Days in the Year; 1,095 Meals. Think!" Such is the thought-inciting inscription on the cover of this 16-page catalogue, which offers vegetable and farm seeds, gladiolus bulbs, sweet pea and nasturtium seeds, poultry supplies, etc. The exact significance of the cover inscription is discovered on opening the catalogue and reading the advice to "make the garden help" at every one of the 1,095 meals.

B. Hammond Tracy, Inc., Wenham, Mass.—Two excellent catalogues, entitled, respectively, "Cedar Acres Gladioli" and "Cedar Acres Dahlias." "Having specialized in gladiolus culture for several years," says the company, "we plan to give the same selective and individual service in dahlias." So the dahlias now have the benefit of a separate 8-page catalogue, besides occupying the back section of the 36-page gladiolus catalogue. Enclosed, also, is a leaflet containing wholesale prices of both specialties.

Weller Nurseries Co., Inc., Holland, Mich.—Wholesale catalogue of hardy perennials—or, in the words of the trade-mark slogan, "Weller's Perennials with that Wonderful Root System"; sixteen closely but clearly printed pages, in a light green cover. Varieties considered specially suitable for cutting are marked with an asterisk. Gladioli receive a double share of prominence; they occupy two pages in the catalogue of perennials and are also the subject of a special catalogue which is enclosed.

H. C. Brose, Woodbury Heights, N. J.—A well printed 8-page dahlia catalogue, in a neat, marbled blue cover, with brown lettering. A half dozen new introductions are followed by the standard varieties, which are arranged in one continuous alphabetical list, with an abbreviation after each varietal name to indicate the type or class.

We offer below a very select list of the very finest kinds for cut flower purposes. This type is distinguished from the grandiflora sorts by the extraordinary size of their flowers and by the standard being crinkled and wavy. They usually bear four blossoms on a stem, and are as easy to grow as the commonest sorts.

Charlton Bolles, Media, Pa.—Illustrated catalogue of dahlias; sixteen pages and cover. Two pages are devoted to cultural directions, with special reference to disbudding and the use of fertilizers. The catalogue also contains descriptions of Mr. Bolles' eight dahlia booklets, which, he says, "embody the results of the author's dozen years of field work and hard library study, and constitute," he maintains, "the most exhaustive and expert writing upon the dahlia yet published in America."

C. Engelmann, Saffron Walden, England.—An illustrated carnation catalogue, well printed on enameled paper and bound in a handsome green and gold cover. The parenthetic use of the word "American" on the title-page—thus, "Perpetual-flowering (American) Carnations"—may be informative to some florists. The varieties listed, with the statements as to their behavior in the English climate, afford material for interesting comparisons. The American-born slogan, "Say It with Flowers," shows conspicuously at the head of each page.

Auguste Nonin, Chatillon-sous-Bagneux, Paris, France.—Two catalogues; one of them is devoted entirely to roses, while the other treats of dahlias, chrysanthemums, tuberous-rooted begonias, hydrangeas and other plants. The rose catalogue is illustrated and comprises sixteen pages; the other list is restricted to half as many pages, with no illustrations. Both catalogues are printed in the French language, with the prices in French currency. Of course, the items of greatest interest and importance are the new Nonin introductions. These not only include many new roses, but also thirty-five or more new dahlias and several novelties in other genera.

VEGETABLE FORCING

TROUBLE WITH LETTUCE.

We are having trouble with our lettuce. The first crop was fine, but the second crop stands still or goes to seed, and the lower leaves are blighted. The soil is good garden loam, about one-third rotted manure. We grow the plants in 2-inch pots, and then set them in beds. The water here is quite hard. Will you advise us as to how we can improve the growing? E. E. K.—Kan.

It is judged that the reason your lettuce failed to head up and bolted to seed was that your soil was too poor. All successful lettuce growers, as soon as they clear off a crop, give their beds a liberal dressing of stable manure; some prefer it well rotted, others claim that half decayed manure answers equally well. However, it is found necessary to manure liberally and work over the soil to the depth of at least six or eight inches before putting out a new crop. It is the general practice, also, to soak the beds thoroughly before setting out the plants and, this being done, the lettuce plants usually receive no further water until they are matured. Of course, the soil must be light, rich and deep to carry lettuces through in this way. If you cannot secure stable manure, use sheep manure. This is strong in nitrogen, which is just what all leafy vegetable crops need. Bone meal I would not use at all. I do not approve of potting the plants. It is an expensive system, entails much labor in potting and watering and there is always a likelihood of the plants becoming potbound before planting out, which would mean that the lettuces would make a poor growth and run to seed. A temperature of 45 degrees on severe nights and 48 degrees on mild nights is suitable. Ventilate freely on every possible occasion. To show how deep-rooting lettuces are under glass, I might state that R. Hittinger, of Belmont, near Boston,

| ♠ STATUE OF LIBERTY. 6 to 7 ft. This Canna outstrips exaggeration. We believe it is, without exception, the largest Canna in existence. Like the Statue of Liberty, it overtops anything of a similar nature that can be compared with it. Its foliage is bronze, leaves half as large again as its nearest rival, and of a rich, luxuriant, ebony shade. It holds aloft a fiery flaming flower, orchid-type, blazing flame-red in color. The flowers are of large size and good form. The effect is massive and impressive. 10 for $3..... | $25 ... | a great lettuce specialist, found roots no less than four feet deep in his beds of rich loam. Grand Rapids Forcing is a good leaf lettuce, while of the popular heading sorts, May King and French Unrivalled are unexcelled. No matter which type you grow, the soil must be rich. I would advise pricking out the seedlings in flats, or even in part of a bench of light, rich soil; this is much to be preferred to potting them. C. W.

GROWING SWEET POTATOES.

Will you let me know how to start sweet potatoes in the greenhouse to plant out in the field? How and when is it best to start them? Will you describe their culture? O. M.—Pa.

Select small, well cured sweet potato roots for seed purposes and reject all those showing any signs of decay. Start the roots in a hotbed during April, and plant out the sets as soon as the weather becomes settled in late May. Use a light, sandy soil over the manure in the hotbed and be careful not to over-water the sets after planting. Having prepared your land by manuring, plowing and harrowing it well, make ridges two and one-half to three feet apart and, as soon as the weather becomes sufficiently warm, plant out the sprouts, or "draws," as many call them, twelve to eighteen inches apart along the ridges.

All through the summer the rows must be kept well cultivated and it will probably be found necessary to pull out a number of large weeds by hand, in addition. Digging the roots must be commenced just as soon as the first frost has blackened the leaves on the trailing shoots. It is necessary to avoid as much as possible the breaking of the roots, and to dry the roots well in the sun before housing them. C. W.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE entire business of the Derry Nurseries, formerly of Germantown, Pa., has been moved to Holmesburg, Philadelphia, Pa. R. W. Gilmore is the proprietor of this firm.

IN last week's Review John H. Dayton was referred to as manager of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O. He is secretary of the company, of course. The manager, everybody knows, is Robert George.

THE old picture of the ostrich with its head in the sand is called to mind by those wholesale nurserymen who think their competitors do not know their prices because they mail lists only to a select roll of names.

THERE is no slackening in the demand for ornamental stock, both trees and shrubs, and for evergreens. The nurseryman who has them to offer has only to locate his buyers. Specific offers in the columns of The Review, either in this department or in the Classified columns, accomplishes that.

THE campaign of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association urging the public to "Plan to Plant Another Tree" is reinforced by nurserymen of the state stamping the slogan on the catalogues they send out. A clip sheet has been sent out to newspaper editors containing an article on evergreens by A. H. Hill and shorter ones by J. A. Young and F. F. Rockwell.

UPON the retirement of Ernest F. Coe, founder and president, from the Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn., new officers were chosen at the annual meeting. The new roster is: President, Walter E. Campbell; vice-president and general manager, W. W. McCartney; secretary and treasurer, Robert B. Faxon; superintendent, William H. Egan; director of landscape department, John L. Donnelly. Mr. Campbell has been with the company for the last fifteen years. Mr. McCartney has had much to do with the building up of the company's interest at Woodmont. Mr. Faxon is a graduate of the landscape department of Ohio State University. Mr. Egan has grown up with the business at Edgewood. Mr. Donnelly graduated from the landscape department of Michigan Agricultural College. All have been with the company some years. They take over Mr. Coe's entire interests.

CREATING A DESIRE TO PLANT.

Interesting the Public.

"We have tried to create, in the minds of the people, a greater desire to plant trees by means other than the usual type of advertising," said Clarence O. Siebenthaler, of the John Siebenthaler Nurseries, Dayton, O., speaking before the convention of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association at Chicago. "Some of these features were highly successful and profitable, and I will set forth four of them, as follows: First, a plant life department; second, an essay contest; third, a national tree voting contest; fourth, planting memorial trees.

"With the idea of a better understanding of plants in mind, a local paper was induced to install a plant life department. The purpose of this department was to answer any inquiries regarding the care, treatment or identification of plants. This feature was started in July of last year and, despite the fact that the planting season is past, interest is still being manifested by the

"There were many contestants among the school children in an essay-writing feature, sponsored by the Dayton real estate board. The children are the purchasers of the future and when induced to formulate the reasons for such work are really selling themselves our product. No doubt, in the preparation of these essays, their parents became imbued with the idea of more extensive plantings, thus creating an immediate market.

the city, county and parochial schools. We had instruction sheets, ballots and school total blanks printed and these were distributed by the school superintendents to each principal and teacher.

"As a preliminary feature, with the object in view of arousing interest, each issue of the daily papers carried articles calling attention to the merits of some one variety of trees. Trees mentioned in history were described and interesting facts connected with them were told. For instance, mention was made of the elm under which William Penn made his solemn treaty with the Indians. The elm under which Washington took command of the Continental army was described and a picture of it shown. The qualities of the oak and walnut were elaborated upon, as well as many others and interesting data given concerning each.

"Soon after the articles appeared, keen interest was manifested, not only by the school children, but by the grown-ups as well. On the Sunday following the announcement, one of the papers included in its regular section a full-page rotogravure layout of beautiful and famous trees.

"After a short space of time, which gave the children a chance to make their decision, the balloting was done and each school decided upon its tree. At the close of the voting, each school received a first-class specimen of the tree of its selection, with printed instructions on how to plant and care for it. These trees were planted on Arbor day, with appropriate ceremonies. In response to this gift, hundreds of letters were received from the students, expressing their pleasure and interest.

"The success of the project in Montgomery county interested the American Forestry Association, of Washington, to such extent that a representative of the association came to Dayton. This leads us to the fourth of the series of activities we inaugurated the last summer.

"The representative of the American Forestry Association, with the aid of influential citizens, was able to find a host of interested persons who were eager to effect the establishment of a chapter of the American Forestry Association in Dayton and vicinity. The purposes of the organization, as outlined at the preliminary meeting, are to promote, encourage and provide means, by education, legislation and otherwise, for the planting and proper care of trees in the streets, roadsides and parks of Dayton and of Montgomery county. It shall also aid and advocate measures for similar work throughout the state of Ohio, and, in addition, shall lend its approval and assistance toward securing the planting of trees on the non-agricultural lands of Ohio, so that the state and the nation shall have a plentiful supply of forest products for future needs.

"At a subsequent meeting a committee was appointed to perfect plans for the planting of memorial trees in honor of the ex-service men. In a matter like the planting of Memorial trees, no difficulty is encountered in procuring the coöperation of business clubs, chambers of commerce and boys' and girls' organizations. Since the start last spring, several hundred trees have been planted by organizations and individuals, and we are hoping soon to have the lines extending a total of about forty-five miles to the four boundaries of the county. This plan, if carried on by the adjoin-

"In conclusion, let me say that every business has or should have more to sell than the mere commodities which constitute the basic reason for its existence. Service, as the meaning of the over-worked term is generally understood, is not enough. The buying public is eager to learn more about our products, but it demands, in addition, the assurance of reliability and responsibility, the certainty of fair dealing, honesty and ability in executing its orders. These are all things of real, tangible value, and there is a sincere interest in all of them, although this interest at times is not apparent. This recognition is expressed, in part, by the regulatory measures of our federal and state governments. The number of these measures should convince us that, as a business, the public has a vital interest in our welfare. Legislation, however, can not or does not express approval of our enterprises, only disapproval of mismanagement. It is quick to check the activities of a poorly managed business, when such practices become a menace to the public, and by so doing often restricts the activities of ably managed operations.

"Along with our efforts to educate and interest the public in planting must go a more extensive program of advertising. While it is admitted that some efforts have been and are being made to advertise generally throughout the country, I do not believe that the men composing the nursery trade, as a unit, have yet come to a full realization of the importance of consistent and constant advertising.

"Advertising alone will not create a stable business, but advertisements plus a product of merit is a combination hard to beat. Too much of our advertising in the past has been directed to the dealer and the wholesaler. The general shortage of stock, which has prevailed for some time, has enabled the grower to dispose of his stock at a profit, but it has not materially increased the consumption. Our greatest efforts should be directed in such a way that, when our goods are shipped, they go into channels where they stay put."

The Market.

Last week stock was in good supply. Everything was in good condition, and, although the weather was unusually warm, it did not harm the crops, with the exception, perhaps, of bulbous stock. Paper Whites were in good supply and, towards the end of the week, Trauth the Florist, 475 Orange street, reports business as fair, but he intimates that it lacks the life that it should have at this season of the year.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Mildred Strobell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Strobell, of 93 Pennsylvania avenue, to Alanson F. Partelow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alanson L. Partelow, of 8 Millington avenue, at 8:30 p. m., March 29, at the home of Miss Strobell. Mr. Strobell is a florist, with a store on Broad street.

Charles Maillard, 497 Orange street, reports that there is a great deal of funeral work at the present time, but that there is little business outside of that.

Victor B. Olson, of the Bay Street Greenhouses, recently opened a handsome flower store on Broadway adjoining the Strand theater and has done a splendid business there since opening. Mrs. Olson and Carl Christensen care for the store. At the greenhouses stock looks remarkable well. Among the carnations were Enchantress Supreme, Benora, White Benora, Pink Delight, Ward and Matchless. Benches of calendulas, snapdragons and other crops were in fine shape. A large number of pot plants are grown for store trade. Cinerarias were good and a large batch, sown early in October, will be just right

Greenhouse Heating

DETERMINING RADIATION.

How much radiation is there in a length of 2-inch pipe ten feet long and in a 1½-inch pipe ten feet long?

I. M. D.—Wis.

While there is a slight variation in the circumference of black pipe, it is customary to estimate this pipe at .621 of a foot for 2-inch and five-tenths of a foot for 1½-inch pipe. This would make the radiating surface of ten feet of pipe 6.21 feet and five feet respectively for 2-inch and 1½-inch pipe.

HEATING LARGE RANGE.

I have mailed you a sketch showing the plan of our range. There are six houses of the dimensions as given on the sketch. Would you advise using one or two boilers to heat this range? We wish to raise the temperature to 60 degrees in weather which is below zero.

C. H. B.—Neb.

One 50-horsepower boiler will answer for heating the six houses. The following arrangement will be suitable for the piping of the houses: Use one 2-inch overhead flow and twelve 1½-inch return pipes for the house 26x70 feet, with three feet of glass in one side wall. For the house 24x70 feet, one flow and seven returns will be sufficient. Use one flow and eight returns for the house 21x40 feet. Use one 1½-inch flow and four returns in the house 10x26 feet. For the house 18x70 feet, with three feet of glass in one wall, use one 2-inch flow and nine returns. For the house 35x138 feet, with three feet of glass in all sides, use three 2-inch flow pipes and fourteen returns.

GETTING ADEQUATE HEAT.

I have purchased some property, upon which there is a greenhouse, the heating of which is not adequate. I should appreciate suggestions. The house is 20x112, runs north and south, and has the south end glazed. The north end adjoins the boiler room, garage, etc. The walls are five feet high, with twenty-four inches of glass. The house is twelve feet to the ridge. The boiler, hot water, is west of the center of the house. At present there is a 3-inch flow three feet below the ridge, with a coil of five 1½-inch pipes from a header on each side wall. I desire a temperature of 55 degrees in zero weather. It might be added that the boiler is on a level with the ground and that electricity is available. Would forced circulation be advisable? If so, how large a pump would be required? How would centrifugal or valve pumps answer? The house is fairly well protected in all directions.

H. W.—O.

Nothing is said regarding the size of the boiler and it is possible that one reason for the unsatisfactory results is that the boiler is too small for the amount of glass to be heated. From the description of the range there are observed two and, probably, three reasons for the inadequate heating of the house. One is the size of the return pipes, as 2-inch returns would be preferable in a house of the length stated; second, about four more returns should be used

Good Judgment in Buying a Boiler

C. H. Totty

For many years C. H. Totty has used Kroeschell Boilers. He expresses great satisfaction with the service of his boilers and highly commends the efficiency of Kroeschell Boilers in greenhouse heating.

Good judgment based on experience is what makes successful business and, naturally, the more capable a man is of using good judgment and the greater his power of utilizing his experience and the experiences of others in exercising his judgment, the greater will be the success of his business.

It is impossible to believe that the judgment of a man that is responsible for the establishment of a large, permanently successful greenhouse business is anything but good. It is sensible to let the judgment of the big men in the flower business guide you in making decisions for your own flower business.

Merit alone is responsible for the favorable opinion of Kroeschell Boilers that prevails among the largest and most successful growers. They select Kroeschell Boilers for their heating problems and recommend them for all growers, large and small. You can make no mistake by installing a boiler in your greenhouses that has gained the favor of men whose success in the greenhouse business qualifies them as experts in knowledge of greenhouse requirements.

and, third, better results would be secured if the top of the boiler were lower than the return pipes.

To a certain extent all of these difficulties could be, in part, at least, corrected, if the system had been placed under pressure by the use of some sort of circulator. A mercury generator might be used, but since electric power is available, it would be better to install a 2-inch rotary or centrifugal pump on

It Lets the Florist Sleep

1. I am the Giblin Boiler made for Greenhouse Heating.

2. I was made to heat at the lowest possible cost for fuel and labor and I do it.

3. I was made strong and sturdy, having 50 per cent more iron in my make-up than other boilers, and I am long-lived and cost nothing for repairs. (I tell my weight.)

4. I let the florist sleep. I need no attention from ten at night until six in the morning. I have my smoke outlet at the bottom of the combustion chamber, and not at the top as in other boilers. I save 50 per cent of fuel costs.

5. I am a friend of the florist, building up a struggling business, resurrecting a dead one, and making fat and prosperous a healthy one.

6. I crave the acquaintance of every florist. I want to know him, and he ought to know me. I can help him, and he will say so when he knows me. Those who know me best like me most.

7. I can be bought, but I work for my buyer and pay him big dividends on the money he pays for me.

8. My makers tell how to connect me. Tell the pipe I need and how to place it. Solve all your heating problems without charge.

9. My price is guaranteed against advance and decline to September 1st next. Buy me now.

10. I tell all about myself, my private character and capabilities, in a booklet, "Heart of the Greenhouse," which may be had for the asking of Giblin & Company, Utica, N. Y.

the main return. If the boiler is of ample size, with a grate twenty-six inches in diameter, it would be possible by heavy firing in the coldest weather to maintain the temperature desired, if a pump is installed, as this would effectually correct the first and third difficulties mentioned above and provide a rapid circulation. Even then the radiating surface will be deficient and it would be well to put in four more 1½-inch return pipes.

HEATING ONE HOUSE.

My greenhouse is 14½x48 feet. The walls are seven feet high, with four feet of glass. The height of the ridge is twelve feet. I should like to know what heating arrangement would be best for this greenhouse, using hot water. I should like to heat this building to 60 degrees when the temperature outside goes as low as 25 degrees below zero.
J. V. B.—Mont.

In the house referred to above there is a 30-inch bench along each side wall and another fifty inches wide in the center of the house.

Three 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns will be required. Run one flow downhill on each side wall plate, and the other three feet below the ridge. Place four returns under each side bench and the others under the middle bench.

The width chosen for the house is wasteful, both in construction and heating and in the bench space secured. If the house were made twenty feet wide, the walks would take up no more room and about fifty per cent more bench room would be secured. The construction of the walls would be practically the same, while the cost of the 20-foot house would not be over twenty per cent more than that of the 14½-foot house. Only four additional returns would be required for radiating surface. The increased cost of fuel for the house would be in about the same proportion.

Question and Answer

How can we prevent accumulations of slag and clinkers on the fire brick of our hand-fired furnace along the sides of the grate?
—G. N. H. in "Power."

You can't with ordinary fire brick, but if you use

PLIBRICO
JOINTLESS
FURNACE LINING

in your furnaces, you will have a smooth, jointless lining to which clinkers will not adhere. And you will have a lining without air and gas leaks, resistant to heat up to 3100° F., and that will last from two to four times as long as the best laid-up fire brick.

Our book, D-56, on "Modern Furnace Building," will give you full information, or our nearest representative will call. Our service is given freely and gladly.

SEATTLE NOTES.

and transient business in corsages has also improved, with the opening of the Woodward Stock Co. in the same building.

E. G. Benson reports an increased cut of local-grown sweet peas. This stock is attracting attention by its fine color.

Ralph Anderson, lately with the Woodlawn Flower Shop, will serve as a deputy county assessor for the next sixty days.

Miss Zula Green, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, was confined to her home the greater part of last week by a severe cold.

Transient business for the City Flower Shop has been holding up well, with funeral work better than average. Potted cinerarias of medium size have been popular.

Rumor has it that a San Francisco firm is to enter the retail flower business here, in connection with its confectionery store. The local manager for this firm advises that while such a decision has practically been reached, there are still some matters to arrange before a definite announcement to this effect can be made. H. M.

COLUMBUS, O.

Business here is about the same as usual and, although there is nothing rushing, the demand for pot plants is greater than for cut flowers. Such plants as hyacinths, primroses, cinerarias, tulips, etc., are plentiful. Flowers are now selling at a moderate price. Florists are preparing for an Easter which they think will be greater than that of last year, as conditions are looking much brighter than at any other time during the last few months.

Another flower store has been added to the list of Columbus shops. This store is at Fourth avenue and High street. Rudolph Zich and James Mozer are the proprietors. They have a wide experience in the growing and greenhouse end of the business. Mr. Zich was once with Ludwig's and the Fifth Avenue Floral Co. Mr. Mozer was also with the Fifth Avenue Floral Co. They are handling mostly pot plants and seeds, as well as a small line of cut flowers and baskets.

Many conventions in this city recently have benefited those florists who specialize in decorating. J. W. T.

Bismarck, N. D.—Notice has been given that the firm name Hoskins-Meyer, formerly Hoskins, is merely a change in name of the firm. The control remains in the same hands; the officials remain the same. The only change made is in the firm name.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The grounds and buildings of the Newport Art Association have been secured as the site for the staging of the annual convention and flower exhibition of the Garden Club of America, in 1923. The fact that the Garden Club was intending to meet at Newport was made known some time ago, but it was not learned until a few days ago that the Art Association grounds had been chosen as the place of meeting and exhibition. The site is an ideal one, as there is ample room for the holding of the meetings, and the extensive grounds will furnish sufficient room for the flower display. The Newport Garden Association and the Newport Horticultural Society are coöperating in the making of the preliminary plans for the coming convention.

Carl Jurgens reports an increasing demand for valley, of which he is making heavy cuts daily for shipments out of town.

Charles Booth, Henry A. Burgess and John P. Burns are serving on jury duty in the Superior court. W. H. M.

SAGINAW-BAY CITY SOCIETY.

Monday night, March 6, at a meeting of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society, at Saginaw, Mich., Anton Gaertner, of Zorn & Gaertner, was elected president to succeed John Marsh, of Bay City. Officers reelected were: Vice-president, Fred Goetz, of J. B. Goetz Sons; secretary, Henry B. Goetz, of J. B. Goetz Sons, and treasurer, Rudolph Boehringer, of Boehringer Bros., Bay City, Mich.

During the business session the members voted to sponsor holding the annual convention and show of the state association in November instead of March, thus making the flower exhibit a fall show instead of a spring show. The association also decided to participate with an exhibit at the annual Saginaw county fair.

The annual meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association was held at the Leamington hotel, Minneapolis. About 150 enjoyed the banquet and the dance which followed. Short talks were given by Guy French, of Chicago; C. F. Rice, Max Kaiser and S. D. Dy-singer. Mrs. H. J. Will rendered two solos in a pleasing manner. Mr. Will made an excellent toastmaster, introducing the speakers as flowers. The secretary and his wife were given the surprise of their lives, when Mr. Dy-singer, on behalf of the association, presented Mrs. Cady with a basket of carnations and roses and Mr. Cady with a victrola. The short speaking program gave a good opportunity for those present to visit. L. C.

Easthampton, Mass.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed one of the boiler houses at the range of Charles Anderson. The amount of the damage has not been estimated so far, but there were a large number of bulbs in the boiler house which were soaked with water and two greenhouses were deprived of heat for some time.

Hall's Nicotine Fumigator

is scientifically planned in every detail for one purpose—to destroy plant lice, thrips and similar soft-bodied, sucking insects. It will not harm flowers or plants.

Hall's Nicotine Fumigator is a specially treated tobacco powder saturated with 12½% pure nicotine. This percentage is guaranteed.

It lights quickly, burns evenly and will not go out. No waste—every particle is consumed.

It is most economical, in fact it costs but 25 cents to fumigate the average greenhouse (20 by 100 ft.)

It retains its strength indefinitely. The air-tight tin takes care of that.

10-lb. tins, $8.50; 2½-lb. tins, $2.50; 1-lb. tins, $1.25.

Buy from your dealer. If he is not supplied order direct from us.

Other Hall products are: Hall's Nicotine Sulphate (40% nicotine guaranteed) for outdoor spraying; Hall's Tobacco Dust (1% nicotine guaranteed) for dusting.

Good for the Market Grower In His Greenhouse

A double entwined wire. Just what you have been wanting to trail on your cucumber vines. It at once suggests to you the saving of labor, as you do not have to tie the rods or poles to your single strand wire; neither do you untie them. Put your stake through one of the meshes and insert stake in ground and your work is done. It takes hours and hours the old way to tie thousands of stakes to your single strand wire and they will slip in a great many instances.

No Insects Wanted in Your Greenhouse?

Four of our customers have replied to our recent inquiry. "For what do you find Gets-There Insecticide Soap especially effective?"

"We commenced to use Gets-There Insecticide Soap because it was recommended by a large grower from whom we buy. We purchased Gets-There and used it for general spraying once or twice a week, in dilute solutions, and have never since had any trouble from either mildew or insects. It is the ounce of prevention."

For $1.00 we will send you a good sized trial can of Gets-There Insecticide Soap. Ask your dealer for it.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Heralding the approach of spring and Easter, the shop windows are bursting with the blazing glory of the hundreds of blooming plants which have added materially to the activity of the local market. Large quantities of potted bulbous stock are in evidence. Prices, too, are reasonable and, in consequence, the movement of stock is somewhat more active than usual.

Funeral demands were more active last week. Several of the florists reported some heavy orders, but, with cut flowers plentiful, prices have been reasonable and the movement somewhat accelerated. There has been considerable scurrying around by the storekeepers looking for good stock for Easter and reports indicate that an unusually brisk trade is expected.

Various Notes.

Michele Iannotti has turned his place in Thornton over to the management of his son and will devote himself entirely to his houses on Harkness street, which he purchased last year of Thomas Curley.

Dr. J. K. Shaw, of Amherst, Mass., will give an illustrated talk on "Identification of Apples" at the next meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society.

Joseph E. Koppelman was a business visitor in Boston last week, in quest of Easter novelties.

Otto Hassett, of Plainfield street, has the sympathy of the trade in the death of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Greenhalgh.

Mrs. Chipman, of Woonsocket, who conducts the Chipman Greenhouses, has been on the sick list.

Herbert S. Sloane has been on a trip through southern Connecticut for J. E. Koppelman.

T. J. Johnston & Co. were busy with funeral work last week. One day they had pieces for fourteen funerals.

Alexander Sives has become well established near Bullocks Point, Riverside, R. I., and reports good business.

J. H. Collingwood was one of the election officials at the annual meeting of Providence lodge of Elks.

C. O. Childs, of Wakefield, and Peter S. Byrnes, of Wickford, were visitors in town last week. W. H. M.

Valdosta, Ga.—C. C. and H. C. Albin are growers of vegetable and flower plants here.

Greenhouse benches that last longer than the greenhouse itself

Concrete is ideal for greenhouse bench construction because there is nothing to rot. Dampness only increases its strength. A concrete bench never needs repairing, never needs rebuilding. Hundreds of growers have conclusively demonstrated, over a long period of years, that a properly constructed concrete bench improves the growing of practically all kinds of stock. Our benches are not in the least expensive compared with fast decaying wood which needs to be repaired and replaced every so often.

Get into the question of your bench needs now, whether immediate replacement is necessary or sometime in the future. You should let us furnish you with data and facts that will save you money. Our service department will gladly assist you in selecting the right kind of concrete bench for your particular house and needs. Our simple plan permits you to construct the benches yourself or have us do the job complete. Tell us you are interested—let us tell you more about concrete benches.

Address our Service Department today—you place yourself under no obligation.

CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS.

In offering our block of 300,000 TRANSPLANTED CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS to the trade, we can emphatically recommend them as a superior grade of plants, in as much as we have specialized on CYCLAMEN for years, and are constantly improving our strain and methods of growing.

Through the use of a specially prepared compost, we have produced wonderful root action and a fine foliage, in fact we have never had a finer lot of seedlings of the very best known varieties. We established a new record with our CYCLAMEN plants last fall when we snipped them in full carload lots to the East.

Remember—Our plants have no trace or sign of the mite or any other diseases CYCLAMEN are subject to.

COLEMAN'S ORIGINATIONS HAVE MADE GOOD.

Coleman won the silver medal at A. G. S. exhibition, Detroit, 1919; silver medal at A. G. S. exhibition, St. Thomas, Canada, 1921. Mr. Chas. E. F. Gersdorff, the eminent authority, in his series of articles in The Flower Grower, places a valuation on varieties from all sources: "F" stands for fair; "X" still better; "XX" "XXX" and "XXXX" the best. Mr. Gersdorff informs me the following Coleman originations merited "XXXX":

Juno, XXXX; Sweet Lavender, XXXX;
Shella, XXXX; Leota, XXXX;
Night Wings, XXXX; Nymph, XXXX;
Nautilus, XXXX.

HYBRIDIZED DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. Our rainless California summers make it possible to get seed even from the very double varieties, a result extremely difficult in States where it is rainy during the time when the seed should set.

The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Price per 100 seed ..... $1.00
Price per 100 seed, fancy selected ..... 3.00

Walden, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1921.

Richard Diener, Co., Kentfield, Cal.

Gentlemen: The Dahlia Seed received from you last year turned out fine. Could not think Dahlias could be grown from seed in such short time. Had some very fine blooms. One yellow Peony flowered that was extra fine, some 8 inches and a clear canary-yellow. Everyone who saw it was amazed at the size grown from seed. Had a clear flesh-pink; beautiful under lamp light. Respectfully,

Wm. McBrier.

Standard Units Made In Stock— What It Means To You

You have waited many years for some greenhouse manufacturer to work out a real scientific and practical size of building and then make it up in stock units like a Ford automobile. At last you have your wish.

The AGMCO is now making a stock steel frame house that has proved itself the most successful type of greenhouse ever produced. It is steel frame and yet it costs practically no more than the pipe frame. It is not a second grade of construction; on the contrary, it is the highest type that brains, money and modern equipment can make.

Thousands of dollars have been spent to get a full set of standards worked out in the finest detail. The result is a big saving in manufacturing and a great improvement in detail. You cannot afford to overlook this announcement. If you are going to build you owe it to yourself to get figures on this house—the biggest greenhouse value on the market today.

And, remember, this house is so designed you can get 16 $\frac{2}{3}$ % more out of it than you can with other types.

RIEBS BROS., AT NORTH MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN

Then notice that we have just now received an order to build three more greenhouses like the ones pictured above. They are each 36x150 feet.

The Riebs boys are bright, energetic, up-to-date florists and they know a good thing when they see it.

J. C. Moninger Co.,

Gentlemen:-

We herewith give you our O. K. on the greenhouse just completed by you. The work is satisfactory in every way we can see and will again look it over within the required five days. It was a pleasure indeed to have your men around here; they surely know their business.

The story of a florist who never paid attention to details

JOHN GREEN worked hard and long. He knew flowers. He cared for them like babes. He loved his work. But somehow John's business did not grow.

He worried. It could not be his flowers. Certainly it was not due to a poor location or to excessive competition. Then what was the trouble?

Finally he asked his brother James (an unusually successful New York florist) to come down and see if he knew the trouble.

James came. He did see the trouble. It was not in the flowers. It was not due to poor location. John had been right about those. But John had overlooked something that appeared to him unimportant. He did not use a uniform and attractive set of containers. John did not bother with shop details.

Some of John's flowers were in rusty metal vases. In summer the water heated quickly. The flowers drooped. Other flowers were displayed in ugly earthenware. Few, if any of his containers, were attractive. There was no uniformity. No symmetry. John's shop lacked that necessary air of distinction so essential these days.

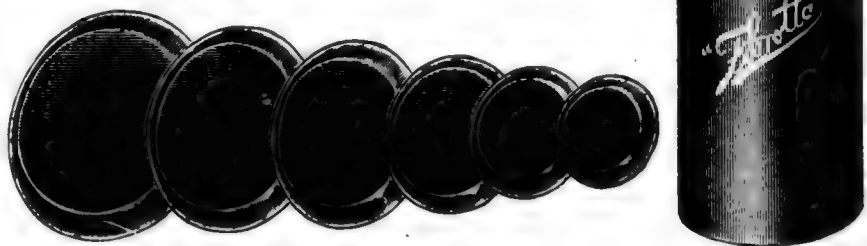

James Green had a long talk with John. He explained the important factor attractive containers had been for him. John promised to follow instructions.

Today John Green is successful. His business is growing steadily. His days of worry are past. He is happy. Life flows smoothly.

John Green solved his difficulty by using "Fibrotta" containers for his flowers. "Fibrotta" containers bring out the natural beauty of the flower. "Fibrotta" is the famous seamless fibre ware that has helped so many others to similar success.

You, too, should watch this detail of your business. See that your containers are uniform and attractive. Let "Fibrotta" help you. "Fibrotta" vases for cut flowers look like polished mahogany—and they are not expensive. They produce the proper atmosphere. They are not easily broken like earthenware. They do not rust out or heat the flowers as do metal containers.

"Fibrotta" Ware is a non-conductor of heat and cold. Water stays cool in them a long time. They do not chill the water when placed in your refrigerator. "Fibrotta" saucers for flower pots are light and not easily broken. They do not scratch woodwork. You can obtain this attractive "Fibrotta" Ware not only in polished mahogany but also in attractive green or white enamel. Take your choice. Ask Cordley & Hayes, 14 Leonard St., New York City, to show you how to make more sales. Do this now while you have the time.

ALUMINUM FOIL

A Wonderful Substitute for Tin Foil

Florists often desire to use a better quality of Foil for Corsage and Boutonniere work. This Aluminum Foil is that substitute which we have had made up especially for this purpose, on 10-inch-wide, one-pound rolls. The price compared with that of the regular foil is not more, inasmuch as the lightness of Aluminum over lead per square inch gives you a greater covering area. This Aluminum Foil has 14,600 square inches to a pound, over  $7\frac{1}{2}$  times that of a pound of Lead Foil.

Don't Be Caught Short

Without our patented cardboard Wreath Forms

Experience has shown us that most of our trade has paid too much for their Wreath Forms because they held back their orders until shipment had to be made by express. This increased the cost of the merchandise from 25 to 35 per cent. Besides, our customers lost business because they did not have the goods on hand—their customers would not wait when delivery could not be made at once. The profit on such specialties comes through having the goods on hand when wanted. It does not pay to approach the Christmas holidays with little goods on hand.

Therefore we suggest to you that you place your orders now for fall requirements in Christmas Wreath Forms.

Send for our line of samples of cardboard Wreath Forms as illustrated in this advertisement. Do it now. Prices and samples will be sent gratis on request. We make the following sizes:

Wreath Forms—4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 16-inch.

Star Forms—4, 6, 7, 9 and 12-inch.

Heart Forms—5, 6 and 7-inch.

Cross Forms—14x21-inch and 18x30-inch.

Write us today about your requirements.

"E. E. Randall is having a

THE SEEDS THAT ARE SOLD IN THE SPRING

Few florists take advantage of the opportunity that knocks each spring. Logically the neighborhood distributors of seeds, plants and shrubs, most florists are missing such sales, first, by not attempting to interest the public in home planting, and second, by allowing others to take the business.

HOSE objects to which the fancies of folks young and old turn in the spring hold opportunity of business for the florist. If the fancies be those of the young man, they lightly turn, the poet says, to thoughts of love. Hence the demand for wedding flowers in June. If, however, the fancies be those of older folk, now some years married and with a family to feed, they are apt to turn in the direction of a home garden, partly of flowers and largely of vegetables. If the florist will cater to this business with some of the energy that he devotes to securing business from the families of June brides, he will find herein a stimulus to his profits in spring.

It has been asserted that florists are to blame because the home garden idea has not been more strongly "sold," in the advertising man's term, to the public. Few communities are large enough to support more than two or three stores retailing seeds exclusively. These, to be successful, must be located in the business center, where the commuting crowds are thickest, because the season of active business is so short in duration. The neighborhood business, unless the florist seizes his advantage, goes to the hardware merchant or the grocer.

Substitute Seedsmen.

The hardware store is the place to buy lawn mowers, rakes, spades and hoes, but it is hard to see why the hardware merchant should carry seeds except for the reason that no one else does. The term "hardware merchant" is used by florists, not without fair reason, to indicate an individual about as far removed in sentiment from one who deals in living plants as can be. Nor is the grocer a better candidate for the position of neighborhood seedsman. The grocer would far rather sell a head of cabbage than a packet of cabbage seed. The former, if it be good, is likely to bring the customer back for more. If the latter turns out the way the buyer wishes, the grocer's business in cabbage heads will be thereby diminished.

The florist is in quite another boat. Every time he sells a packet of flower seeds, he is in line to make another buyer of flowers in the winter time.

He is not competing with himself, nor is he handling a line remote from that which constitutes his main business. Seeds and nursery stock are, rather, a natural part of the florist's trade. They are something he knows intimately, knows how to fit to varying needs and knows how to make grow, so that he can assist his customer with that advice which so firmly knits business ties.

There are a score of flower stores to every retail seed store. Some flower stores already have a seed department, either throughout the year or in the spring. But the percentage of flower stores which push the sale of seeds in any aggressive manner, so that this department is one that contributes largely to the profits of the enterprise, is small indeed. The possibilities which might follow a more aggressive sales campaign for seeds and nursery stock in the spring by the thousands of flower stores which now do next to nothing in this respect are tremendous.

After the War Was Over.

The reaction which followed the war garden fad brought the planting of home grounds to a point lower than it had been for some years. Immediately following the war everybody had much money to spend and little ambition to work. No one wished to perspire over a hoe who didn't have to. Consequently, the vacant city lots which were models of horticulture a summer or two before, were left again to the weeds. The home gardens languished and plantings about residential grounds were mostly made by nurserymen or landscape architects who were paid for their work out of war profits. The swing of the pendulum from this reaction has been seen already this spring in the agricultural communities, where seed buying starts before it does in the urban centers. Orders for garden seeds are running larger than usual in the mail order houses and the number being received is also above the ordinary.

Florists Can Swell Their Sales of Seeds by Interesting Passers with a Window Such as This.

Customers to Be Made.

These orders are from the farmer, who begins to study his seed catalogue when the snow shows signs of melting, or they are from the garden enthusiast, who spends his days indoors in planning what he will do when he can spend them outside. But there are many folks on whom even the glamorous descriptions of the most imaginative catalogue writers are lost. They know not how to select what they want and must depend upon either the recommendation of the man next door or the person who sells him what he is to plant. These inexperienced planters will form, if the florist gives them a chance, his staunchest customers, for the advice which he can give them is of such value that they will come back again and again—sometimes to buy seeds, sometimes to give orders for shrubs, and during the winter months to leave orders for cut flowers and house plants.

One has only to notice, in small towns and large cities, the large proportion of homes which have little grass and no flowers about them. A pound of grass seed to each of these and a few packets of flower seeds apiece would lift the seed trade out of its deepest depression. The turning of the owners of these homes into garden enthusiasts would boom the trade beyond its balmyest times.

Works Wrong Way.

Retail nurserymen, if anything, are fewer than retail seedsmen. The average home owner who wants to plant shrubs about his grounds has to go out and hunt for them. Rarely are they forced on his attention. This is a sad situation. Shrubs and small trees can be successfully planted by almost any intelligent person if he will follow instructions given. The cost is not large in comparison with the value received as time passes by. Yet the public at large does not realize this, merely because it has never been told. The initiative is on the part of the buyer, contrary to the usual case. Washing machines, vacuum cleaners, paints and varnishes, home improvements of nearly every kind, are flaunted before buyers' eyes every day in magazines and newspapers, in street cars and along the highways. The cost of any of these articles is, in most instances, far more than the home improvement which could be effected by the purchase of some seeds and plants. These articles are not necessities, though they may, through advertising, be made to seem so.

Plenty of people are riding in automobiles today who would be happier if they walked, freer from financial worry and better in health. They ride merely because they have read so much about automobiles in every periodical they pick up that they feel they must have one, too. If home planting were brought to the public with one-tenth the force and emphasis that automobiles are at present, the horticultural trades of this country would grow to a size that would make our present status seem puny.

Spring Is Here.

All this is to point out to florists that spring is at hand, the time for the sale of seeds, plants and nursery stock. It is time to install a cabinet of seeds, order a stock of insecticides and sprays, carry a small collection of books on garden subjects, and take steps to bring in the buyers.

Some florists have already started on their spring campaign for seed sales. The illustration on the preceding page shows how the Charles C. Navlet Co. aroused the interest of the San Francisco public at its store at 423 to 427 Market street. The Charles C. Navlet Co. has a store in each of the three cities of San Jose, Oakland and San Francisco. The firm devotes its energies not alone to the flower business, but pushes the sale of seeds and nursery stock as well. The window display they have made at their San Francisco store to interest the public in seeds can be made effectively by the small florist and the large, no matter where he is located. The illustration tells the story so well that little need be added by way of explanation. A Bass-Hueter bungalow, the size of a small doll's house, was the center of the window. Around it were lawns, a vegetable garden and a flower garden. Santolinas were used for the borders and heather took the place of trees. The interesting part of the display is that the seeds were planted when the window was first designed, some weeks ago. At this time vegetables, flowers and grass have attained a growth that can be seen in the illustration. Pedestrians on Market street stop frequently and in numbers to see what progress the growing things are making. Signs which dot the grounds about the bungalow call attention to the firm's lawn seed, weed killer, fertilizer, berry plants, bulbs, seeds and plants. The rows of vegetables in the window are marked with the seed envelope on a stick, in true home garden style.

Such exhibits as this have occupied seedsmen's and florists' windows before, but it is believed that none has been more successful in its appearance and growth or more interesting than the one of the Navlet store at San Francisco. It has brought in many customers for the various departments of the store and will doubtless be a big factor in making this spring's business better for the company which installed it.

GERANIUMS WITH WRINKLES.

I have sent a few leaves from a geranium plant and I should appreciate your telling me what causes them to have the wrinkled appearance. I have perhaps, a dozen plants that are so affected. Is the trouble serious?

W. B. V.—Mich.

The leaves came frozen and pretty well dried up, but they showed evident signs of suffering from some fungoid disease. This is not at all uncommon on bedding geraniums, and may be caused by too much humidity in the atmosphere, keeping the plants too damp at the roots and too warm, and spraying overhead. Plants in a soil containing rather fresh animal manure are quite liable to be attacked in this way.

Keep the plants spaced well apart; pick off the dead, decaying or affected foliage; keep a dry, buoyant atmosphere; ventilate freely; give all possible sunshine; never spray overhead, and never throw diseased leaves below the benches or on the floor. Cleanliness is one of the best antidotes. Run the plants on the dry side rather than the reverse. Dryness at the root is less harmful to all soft-wooded plants than an excess of water. Throw away any badly diseased plants and, if the disease does not abate, give a spraying of copper sulphate or Bordeaux mixture at intervals of a week for three successive weeks.

C. W.

DISEASED GERANIUMS.

We are sending you some geranium leaves that seem to be diseased. Can you tell me what the trouble is and how it can be checked?
S. F. C.—O.

The geraniums are affected with a disease not at all uncommon. It may be due to one of several probable causes, such as too much overhead spraying, a too humid atmosphere, or excess of nitrogenous food in the soil, which promotes a soft, rank growth. Sometimes the leaves are sunburned, giving them a diseased-like appearance, but the ones you sent do not have that appearance. Now, as to remedial measures: Keep your house well ventilated. Avoid a close, moist atmosphere. Do not syringe your plants overhead. Use a compost which contains no fresh manure, but some fine bone and a little pulverized old manure. Give all possible sunlight. Avoid overwatering, which causes a soft growth. Keep plants well spaced apart; pick off diseased leaves and throw in the furnace, not on the floor or below the benches. Badly diseased plants would be better thrown away and moderately affected ones placed by themselves and given a spraying of Bordeaux mixture.

NAVAL AVIATOR'S DESIGN.

A typical example of the florist's versatility is shown in the accompanying illustration, picturing a design made by Z. D. Blackistone, of Washington, D. C., for the funeral of a naval aviator.

The disk with the star in the center is worked out in red and white carnations with a border of blue immortelles, making a vivid color contrast.

However, the designer takes especial pride in the effect produced by the officer's insignia at the top, consisting of a shield, an anchor and a pair of extended wings. The "feathers" of the wings were made of cycas leaves trimmed close to the midrib; after they were gilded to correspond with the naval officer's gold insignia, they produced a most realistic feather. The shield was made of white immortelles pressed close and then gilded. The anchor was of yellow chenille.

DRUMMING UP BUSINESS.

L. C. Fields finds a way to "dig out of the depression," at Kansas City, Kan., by employing large advertising space in the daily papers. Mr. Fields believes that the time when the demand for flowers is slack is the occasion for heaviest advertising. That is why he is making a liberal appropriation for this purpose at the present time. For the same reason, he spends his money more liberally between flower days rather than at holiday times. His was the most conspicuous space on the page of St. Patrick's day advertisements in the Kansas City Kansan for Thursday, March 16. His space was twice that of any other advertiser on the page and he occupied the center of the upper half.

But the advertisement on that page was only one-third the size of that in the same paper at the opening of this month, when he used more than half a page to advertise birthday flowers. Four columns the full length of the page asked the question in large type, "Whose Birthday This Month?" over a large calendar of the month of March. Readers were advised, "Mark this calendar with your friends' birthdays. Then you won't forget to send Fields' guaranteed flowers, the popular birthday gift."

This heavy advertising is felt at the store of Mr. Fields, at Tenth street and Splitlog avenue, where business is keeping up splendidly this month.

BOLDT-LUNDY'S NEW STORE.

The firm of Boldt-Lundy, Denver, Colo., moved to action primarily by the desire for a new and improved location and, secondarily, by the fact that the lease on the old place had expired and the rent had been raised quite considerably, decided to move to a new location. This the company did and is now located at 629 Sixteenth street, in the arcade entrance to the Mack building.

The Mack building, one of the largest office buildings in Denver, has a superb arcade entrance, finished in Italian marble. In the front of the store are two beautiful display windows, each twenty-five feet long and from three to four feet wide. The backgrounds of the windows are covered with marble and mirrors, and are outfitted with the latest of lighting fixtures.

The salesroom, 20x80 feet, is also charming in Italian marble and mirrors. There is a large display refrigerator and basket case, as well as several oval-shaped tables, on which to display novelties, etc. In the basement of the store is a spacious workroom, where all orders are put up and designing done.

PARTNER'S RIGHT TO SALARY.

Where a flower shop or other commercial enterprise is conducted by a firm, but one of the members contributes only capital to the enterprise, while the other contributes both capital and his personal services, is the latter entitled to pay for such services, the same as if the firm hired some outsider to perform them?

The law seems to require this question to be answered in the negative, assuming that there has been no mutual understanding to the contrary on the point. The subject was recently under consideration by the Nebraska Supreme court in the case of Efner vs. Reynolds, 181 Northwestern Reporter, 552:

"In a commercial partnership engaged in a business with capital invested jointly by the partners, a managing partner is not entitled to a salary for his individual services, or to an increase of authorized compensation, unless it is allowed by contract.

"The rule that a partner is only entitled to such compensation for individual services as is authorized by contract applies to the services of a managing partner while he is engaged in winding up partnership affairs.

"A managing partner in control of partnership property conducts his own business as well as that of the other partners. His advantage, his exposure to temptation in such a relation and the duties of all partners toward the joint enterprise forbid compensation for personal services, or for the increase of a salary formerly allowed, unless authorized by contract. Hardships sometimes result from the enforcement of these rules of law, but they are founded on the protection of property rights, business integrity, confidential relations and the inducements to unite individual capital in a joint enterprise, and should not be relaxed in the present case." S.

MEETING A LAST-MINUTE CALL.

A method of meeting that last-minute call for a funeral order is putting together a few flowers on a wheat sheaf. This is not only comparatively inexpensive, but it also gives highly satisfactory results and is accomplished in a few moments, should the need come suddenly. The illustration on the opposite page shows how Otto Kastle, 6416 South Halsted street, Chicago, produced an exceedingly attractive floral piece with little effort and expense, either in time or material. A few roses, carnations and greens, artistically arranged, together with the sheaf and an appropriately colored ribbon, was all that was necessary. The cost of such a piece, though never great, will vary, of course, with the cost of the cut flowers and other material put into it.

FILL YOUR BINS

ORDER STRIKE OF COAL MINERS.

Put Blame on Operators.

Suspension of work by all union coal miners at midnight, March 31, was ordered this week by officers of the United Mine Workers of America, the call being the first ever issued for both bituminous and anthracite workers to walk out simultaneously.

Six hundred thousand men will be directly affected by the order, it was estimated officially. The suspension, the order provided, will continue until stopped by union officials.

The order, which was sent to the 3,000 local unions, directed the miners to give the operators their fullest coöperation in the protection of mine property and counseled against violence and violations of the law.

In addition to affecting all union miners in the United States, the order also directed approximately 6,650 union men in western Canada to join in the walkout, but did not apply to 14,000 miners in Nova Scotia.

The issuance of the call came with the recent strike vote of soft coal miners not completely tabulated, but it was said officially that the work of the union's board of tellers had progressed to such a point as to show every field voting overwhelmingly in favor of a suspension. Indications were that nine-tenths of the miners favored the walkout.

The suspension order stated that blame for the walkout in the soft coal fields rested upon the operators for refusing to negotiate a new contract with the union and upon the failure to reach a new agreement with the hard coal operators.

Attorney-General May Act.

In discussing the attitude of the Department of Justice in the event of a general strike of bituminous coal miners April 1, Attorney-General Daugherty did not announce any contemplated plan of procedure, but indicated that the government had as much right to act in the event of a coal strike as it did at the time of the threatened railroad strike, when injunction proceedings were considered.

If it is within the province of the government to insist upon the railroads being operated and to prevent interference with their operation, the attorney-general said, he thought that fuel, being indispensable to transportation, would come within the same classification.

The existence of a great coal surplus is regarded as an important factor in the situation. Federal surveys indicate that with output continuing in non-union fields, the surplus will prevent any shortages and prevent inflation of coal prices.

"Just a Gesture."

Announcement that the coal mine strike orders had been issued was characterized by Dr. F. C. Honnold, secretary of the Illinois Coal Operators' Association, as "just a gesture intended to bolster up the miners' spirits."

"It means less than it sounds," said Dr. Honnold. "The miners' leaders are just trying to improve the morale of their men by telling them that they actually are going to exercise punitive powers and go on strike if their wage demands are not granted."

"As a matter of fact, there could be nothing but a cessation of work when the present contracts expire. If the wages were to be revised upward, then the miners would agree to a middle-ground wage pending adjustment and remain at work. But when wages are to be revised downward, and they oppose a revision downward, naturally there can be no temporary middle ground—so work must stop when the contracts run out, unless new contracts have been made. So, such an order is just one more move which is not in any way a surprise."

The issuance of the order coincides with the first meeting of the subcommittee of anthracite miners and operators to draw up a new wage contract for the one expiring March 31. In their demands served on the operators about a week ago, the miners, in addition to demanding a twenty per cent increase in wages, declared that a suspension of work would follow the failure of the subcommittee to come to an agreement before April 1. It is generally conceded that no new agreement will be reached before that date.

The operators in their reply to the miners' demands declared that a reduction in wages was essential, but set no definite figure.

Wage Reduction in Indiana.

The scale committee of the Indiana Bituminous Coal Operators' Association met at Terre Haute March 21 for the purpose of formulating a new wage scale and working agreements to take the place of the present contract, which expires March 31. It was understood that a wage scale, comprising a reduction of from thirty to forty per cent, will be made by the operators.

A clause new in mining contracts, calling for a sliding wage scale, will be inserted in the proposed contract, it was said. The scale, it is believed, will provide that when the price of coal advances the miners will be paid more, and that when the price falls wages will be lower.

Abolishment of the "cheek off" system and retention of the present schedule of hours also will be incorporated in the contract, it was said.

FIGHT PESTS IN NEW ORLEANS.

Drastic Quarantine on Nurseries.

In a 3-column news story which began, "War on Louisiana's $90,000,000 plant parasite scourge has begun in earnest," the New Orleans Item stated last week that five New Orleans nurseries are under drastic quarantine, in an attempt to save the threatened city and state nursery industry.

"By order of the state entomological officers," states the newspaper, "every flower shipped into or from New Orleans must be inspected and fumigated. This regulation will soon be in state-wide effect."

"The state-wide plant parasite war came to a head in New Orleans during the last week with quarantine of five city nurseries by R. T. Hobson, chief entomologist inspector, and issuing of drastic orders demanding inspection and fumigation of every incoming and outgoing shipment of flowers, shrubs or plants."

"No plants, with the exception of pot flowers, can be moved from the quarantined nurseries until they fully comply with the clean-up orders issued by the entomological division several weeks ago. Inspection of outgoing and incoming shipments will be made by a special detail of experts headed by Edward Foster. Most of the larger nurseries will make their own fumigations, but a big fumigation chamber has been finished at entomological headquarters, Magazine and Eighth streets, and smaller shippers are required to take shipments there."

Quarantine Is Threatened.

"Fumigation of incoming shipments is demanded at the out-of-state shipping point."

"By these measures the entomological division hopes to ward off a strangling quarantine which threatens against Louisiana by surrounding states. Three states, Mississippi, California and Florida, have already partially or completely shut their doors to Louisiana plant shipments for fear of the widespread infestations. A general quarantine against the state would smash what is estimated as a $1,000,000 New Orleans industry. There are ninety nurseries in the city, or over half of the number in the entire state."

"By April 1 the division hopes to have the nursery regulations in state-wide effect. Inspectors are already stopping for inspection carload shipments to other large state nurseries whenever practical."

"There are probably more plant parasites in Louisiana than any other state in the Union. Not only do the pests thrive in the state's climatic conditions, but they arrive here from all parts of the world, by ship, by rail and by means which even the experts haven't been able to uncover.

The Wheat Sheaf, with a Few Flowers and Some Ribbon, May Be Used to Fill Last-Minute Funeral Orders.

"There are some 100 separate and distinct parasites feeding on the state's luxuriant vegetation and foliage. There are twelve different varieties of the mealy bug alone. In New Orleans they threaten the city's very birthright.

With warm weather the entire year round, New Orleans should have flowers, hedges and trees of tropical splendor. Unless the parasites are vanquished in a few years, the city's natural beauty will be but a sad memory, the experts warn.

Hardly anywhere can one find an elm or a maple tree even now, they assert. The camphor scale is hourly killing off the former plenty of sweet olives, ligustrum ledges, year-round roses and odorous camphors. The obscure scale covers the water oaks and red oaks. The West Indian peach scale and the San Jose scale eat up the fruit trees, including the famous figs."

IMPORTS BY PARCEL POST.

Announcement has just been made, by Acting Second Assistant Postmaster-General E. R. White, that arrangements have been made with the Post Office and Treasury departments by the Department of Agriculture to allow the importation by parcel post of certain plant material under a special permit of the Department of Agriculture, provided for in regulation 14 of quarantine 37. Such importations must be accompanied by tags specially prepared for the purpose to show thereon the permit number of the Department of Agriculture. The postal service advised that in case importation by parcel post is desired of any heretofore prohibited plant material, the importer should make application to the federal horticultural board for a permit to import, indicating in the application the approximate weight of the plant, material to be imported or the number of packages necessary to contain it, whereupon the applicant, in case his application is approved, will be furnished with a permit, accompanied by a sufficient number of tags for transmission to the foreign shipper.

It is stated that all packages of plant material bearing permit tags, upon receipt in this country, will be promptly dispatched to Washington, D. C., or to San Francisco, Cal., if received at a Pacific coast exchange office, for inspection under the plant quarantine act, after which, if found free of insects and diseases and conforming to customs regulations, they will be sent to the importer (or permittee) as soon as practicable. Parcels of prohibited plant material which do not bear the special tags above referred to will be disposed of in accordance with the regulations applicable thereto, the department states. The customs duty, if any, will be collected upon delivery. T. N. S.

In case there is any doubt as to what constitute the anthers and pistil in the tomato blossom, it should be kept in mind that flowers of all kinds are built on more or less the same general plan. Take the lily, for example. The anthers of the lily are the yellow organs which the grower usually removes to prevent them from staining the petals. The pistil is the central structure with the sticky knob at its end. The tomato differs from the lily in that its five anthers are grown together closely around the pistil. They must be entirely removed before they ripen and shed pollen. If the pollination has been successful the fruit will begin to develop in a few days. One fruit produces a large number of seeds and it is necessary to make only a few crosses to obtain a season's supply or enough for several seasons, since the seed is viable for three or four years when properly handled.

Choosing the Varieties.

Some discrimination must, of course, be shown in choosing the varieties to use in crossing. As a rule the better the parents, the better the hybrid. To produce a really excellent hybrid, only pure strains of good varieties should be used. If a red fruit is desired, one of the parents must be red, since red is dominant or "prepotent" over pink or yellow. If earliness is essential, one, or both, of the parents should be early varieties. A cross between a dwarf and standard type produces all standards in the hybrid. Such a combination is often desirable; in fact, one of the best crosses at a certain experiment station was that between Dwarf Stone and Earliana. Stone contributes a smooth, nicely shaped fruit and the Earliana gives standard type, earliness and yield to the hybrid.

There is one other point which should be mentioned. It is never practicable to save seed from hybrids, no matter how excellent they may be. Hybrids do not "breed true" and in the second generation "break up" into all sorts of types. The cross must be made every year or enough crosses made to produce seed for several seasons. It is true that in breeding for new varieties, which, however, is an entirely different proposition, the hybrid seed is saved and selection of the best types is made in subsequent generations.

Growing vegetables under glass is agriculture of the most intensive type. The grower must make use of every means at his disposal to secure a maximum production from each square foot of bench space. He can well afford to give hybrid tomatoes a trial. They make possible a decided increase in yield at the cost of comparatively little trouble in producing the hybrid seed.

London, England.—Sir David Prain is retiring after seventeen years in the post of director of Kew Gardens. A. W. Hill, formerly assistant director, succeeds him.

Boulder, Colo.—Materials for the construction of a greenhouse have been secured by John J. Blanchard. Mr. Blanchard does not expect to grow cut flowers, but will confine his growing to bedding plants and vegetables.

BIGGER CROPS

HYBRID TOMATOES.

Increase Yield Under Glass.

Over a century and a half ago, 1760 to be exact, the German botanist, Kohlreuter, discovered that when two varieties of plants were crossed, the hybrids which resulted were extremely vigorous. They were noticeably larger and finer than their parents, even when grown under identical conditions. Now, this phenomenon of hybrid vigor, or "heterosis," as scientists like to call it, is not at all new to animal breeders. They have known of it since the time of Moses and have used it in a practical way in breeding domestic animals, as, for example, in producing the mule, a cross between the horse and the ass, and an excellent example of hybrid vigor. Kohlreuter's discovery in plants, however, is just now beginning to bear fruit in a practical way.

Within recent years plant breeders have made crosses among all sorts of crops. They find that hybrid vigor occurs generally throughout the plant kingdom. Among our important crops that exhibit increased yields, when crossed, are corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco, beans, peas, tomatoes and cucumbers. Several breeders have predicted that eventually first-generation hybrids between our best varieties will be grown exclusively and that seedsmen will make a business of producing hybrid seed on a large scale. This is actually being done at the present time, on a small scale, by several growers who offer hybrid corn for sale. One such dealer is advertising it as "mule" corn. The practice is of no commercial importance, however, except in such crops as are easily crossed and in which the beneficial effects of crossing are marked. The tomato is one of these crops and, as hybrid tomatoes have several features that should adapt them particularly to greenhouse conditions, we will consider the subject in greater detail.

Points Favoring the Hybrid.

Experiments conducted at several state experiment stations show that crossed or hybrid tomatoes produce on an average fifteen per cent greater yields than ordinary varieties. Moreover, the fruit is produced earlier, is more uniform in size and shape, and the plants are more vigorous and therefore more resistant to disease. These are all qualities to touch the tender spot of the growers' heart and some of the growers have already warmed up to the hybrid tomato. A California man, with the usual native unbounded enthusiasm of all true Californians, has even gone so far as to calculate the increase in annual production of tomatoes in this country, if only hybrids were grown. It amounts to some millions of pounds. Perhaps it is not advisable to count the chicks before the old hen has finished her job, but it is certainly true that hybrid tomatoes yield more, are more uniform, are earlier, more vigorous and, in general, are especially adapted to greenhouse culture.

The process of crossing tomatoes is simple. The tomato is usually self-fertilized; therefore, the anthers or pollen organs must be removed before they are ripe or shed their pollen. This is easily done with a pair of tweezers, the point of a knife, or even with an ordinary toothpick. This process is technically known as "emasculatation." Several days after the anthers have been removed or at the time when the flower would normally be in full bloom, pollen from another variety is applied to the end of the pistil. This may be done by shaking pollen into a spoon or watch glass and dipping the end of the pistil into it, or, more easily perhaps, by gathering a little pollen on the finger tips and applying it to the end of the pistil.

INDIANAPOLIS AWAITS YOU

FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Indianapolis, March 25 to April 1.

Arrangements for the opening of the fifth national flower show are wholly complete, and on the afternoon of Saturday, March 25, will be disclosed an exposition that has required many months of preparation, and has had to face problems which it is hoped no future exposition of this kind will be called upon to solve.

There has been much to favor Indianapolis in the selection of an emergency city, principal among which has been the assurance of a whole-hearted working force, which, of course, must be locally organized. Reference need only be made to the list of local committees to realize how the whole trade of the city and outlying districts rallied to the call of the society and made the fifth national flower show a possibility in spite of contingencies which threatened to put the show back at least a year.

Railroad Rates.

Members of the Society of American Florists and coöperating interests; in fact, all in the trade intending to visit the show, should ask for a certificate at the time of purchasing railroad tickets, even though personal savings might be slight. There must be a certain number of certificates presented to the secretary in order to insure the fare and one-half concession. It may be that the straight fare is only $1 or less, but in getting a certificate the longer-distance brother is benefited, and it is a kindly act to fulfill personal obligations in the circumstances.

Since the announcement of the reduced rates over American territory, the Canadian Passenger Association has advised us that the same concession will be made from all points in Canada east of and including Armstrong, Port Arthur and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; selling dates, March 22 to 28, return journey limit, April 5. Canadian visitors also should ask for a certificate when purchasing tickets. John Young, Sec'y.

SUCCESS OF SHOW ASSURED.

Opening on Saturday.

Arrangements are complete for the biggest national flower show yet held, to open at Indianapolis Saturday, March 25. This is the first national flower show held as far west as Indianapolis. Only four national exhibits have been held in this country, at New York, Buffalo, Boston and Philadelphia. At each of these shows more than 100,000 persons attended. Some question was raised when the project was transferred hurriedly to Indianapolis, and some feared a city of the population of this one would find difficulty in providing an attendance large enough to justify the undertaking.

However, such fears were quieted speedily, as trade tickets sold readily. Reduction of fares on lines entering Indianapolis during the flower show week has also eased the burden of anxiety as to whether the venture would be successful, for indications through that source point to a tremendous travel from all state points to the Indiana capital.

Especially does the flower show cater to children. The Indianapolis show will be open to children under 14 years of age for 25 cents, one-half the regular admission price. In a letter sent to E. U. Graff, superintendent of city schools, Charles G. Pahud, chairman of the admission committee, has offered to provide trade tickets in blocks of 100 for the use of pupils of the various city high schools and for teachers who desire to attend the exposition.

Special Days.

Thousands of plants and cut flowers are to be distributed to flower show visitors by the management. Each day is to be a feature day, beginning with Chamber of Commerce day, Saturday, March 25, for which John B. Reynolds, general secretary of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, is to be the chairman. O. B. Iles, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will be a guest of honor representing civic organizations, and Mayor Shank will take a part in the program.

Mrs. Hugh McK. Landon will be chairman for the Women's Club day, Sunday. The participation of a number of society and club women in the day's program is being planned by Mrs. Landon.

Monday, which will be known as Chicago day, special trains will bring flower show enthusiasts from Chicago. W. J. Keimel, of Chicago, is chairman that day.

Tuesday is to be Madison day. L. E. Hitz, of Madison, president of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, chairman for the day, will head the party from Madison, which is planning to come to Indianapolis by special train. The flower show management plans to distribute young rose plants that day.

Cleveland day has been set for Wednesday. Herman P. Knoble, of Cleveland, is to be chairman. Sweet pea displays will be featured and thousands of sweet peas will be given away.

Indiana day will be celebrated Thursday. Governor McCray is to be a guest of the flower show. Adjutant General Harry B. Smith is chairman for the day. This will be Carnation day.

Friday has been designated Patriotic day, and John Paul Ragsdale will act as chairman. An invitation has been sent to Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, to be guest of honor. Ex-service men in uniform are to be admitted free, and arrangements will be made to have flowers distributed to ex-service men in Indianapolis hospitals. Nurserymen from all parts of the country have provided hardy shrubs for distribution on Patriotic day.

Attractions at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, apart from the flower show, has many attractions to offer the visitor. The city centers about the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument, which is one of the most notable examples of colossal sculpture in existence. This Civil war memorial shaft is second in height only to the Washington monument. The state capitol, with the governor's office, the headquarters of the Indiana state board of agriculture, and the state board of conservation, is located in the downtown area.

On the outskirts of the city lies the Indianapolis motor speedway, where the annual international sweepstakes races are held. Fort Benjamin Harrison, one of the largest United States army posts, adjoins the city. A newly finished city library building is one of the finest of its kind. Six theaters and fifty-five cinema houses offer varied amusements, and ample accommodations are afforded the visitor by the fifty-one hotels.

SPECIAL PREMIUMS.

The following are special premiums, for the fifth national flower show, which failed to get in the final premium list.

The supplementary open classes are subscribed by the following members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana: John Grande & Sons, C. H. Schwomeyer, W. C. Hamant, E. A. Nelson, H. W. Rieman & Sons, Smith & Young Co., John Heidenreich, Pahud

E. E. Temperley, chairman of the lectures and schools committee of the national flower show, announces that during the afternoons and evenings of the show there will be illustrated lectures dealing with various subjects, including landscaping, transplanting, perennial gardens, fertilization, outdoor planting, and the control of pests.

These lectures are given as information to the general public and will be delivered in the exhibition building.

NEW ENGLAND ALLIANCE.

There will be a general meeting of the New England Florists' Alliance Saturday, April 1, at 7 p. m., at the City Club, Boston, Mass. This meeting is called for the purpose of having an open forum, to which all members of the trade throughout New England are invited, to discuss the work of the alliance, its policies and other matters of importance to the industry.

It is hoped that all will avail themselves of this opportunity to become thoroughly acquainted with the real purpose of this organization. The co-operation as shown by the "Spirit of '76" was responsible for the founding of this great republic, and coöperation again can and will be successful in promoting the interests of this great industry of ours, with its millions of dollars invested in greenhouses and equipment.

WISCONSIN SUMMER MEETING.

A meeting of the officers and directors of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association was held at Milwaukee Wednesday, March 15, and it was decided to hold the regular summer meeting July 25, at Oshkosh. This city will be an ideal place for the summer meeting, as it is centrally located, and no doubt there will be a large attendance from all over the state. P.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market continues to be well supplied, and, in some respects, buyers seem to have their own way. Clearances bother most of the wholesalers, for on these depend their average returns. It can hardly be said that the market has improved; that is, from the growers' standpoint, yet easy prices have increased the demand considerably. Purchases are much larger, and there is a confidence in the buying, not noticeable for a long time. And, surely, the retailer has an advantage just at this time. He can get exhibition quality sweet peas at $1.50 per hundred sprays, and the market is loaded with them; carnations at moderate prices, with roses also at the minimum. Market phraseology is now of a condensed order—buy quickly and carry away—and bundles are hourly prominent.

It cannot be said that conditions are at all unusual, for heavy crops are always due at this time. Nor can the market be forecast even for a day or two. Weather has a lot to do with production, and it is in favor of the buyer just now.

There is a big supply of roses, but it seems to be taken care of. In fact, roses are a little stronger in price than they were last week, the range for hybrid teas of quality being $4 to $30 per hundred from No. 2 upward. American Beauty has declined a little, quotations being $35 to $75 per hundred for specials. This may be due to the excellent offerings of Premier and Columbia, showing now exhibition form, at slightly advanced prices.

Carnations are plentiful, and prices jockey from day to day. They move at $3 to $5 per hundred, while Saturday, March 18, the range was not so good. Offerings, generally, are pretty good in quality, and selected flowers bring a little more than the range.

The orchid condition continues about the same, the range for cattleyas being about $25 to $75 per hundred, with hybrids $1 to $1.25 per flower. Spray orchids are not particularly abundant, but the demand for them is small.

White lilies are plentiful, and good flowers are available at $12 to $15 per hundred, with perhaps a few bringing $20. Lily of the valley is druggy, the supply being larger than the demand, and the top price is $5 per hundred sprays.

There is an avalanche of soft material, sweet peas being particularly abundant. Pansies, calendulas, stocks, cornflowers, irises, violets, myosotis, bouvardia, buddleia, and many other items vie with tulips, narcissi and freesias for sales, which, at best, are slow.

Annual Banquet.

The annual dinner of the New York Florists' Club, held at the Hotel Biltmore Wednesday evening, March 15, was a great success, the company numbering nearly 300, including about a dozen special guests. The menu was a fine one, and the report was enlivened by music from an excellent orchestra. Dancing was the chief form of entertainment, although there was some vocal music from a professional on the Keith circuit. An elimination dance was a feature, the prizes, handsome pocketbooks presented by Philip F. Kessler, being won by Mrs. G. E. M. Stumpp and Mrs. Edward Brenner. Every lady received an interesting souvenir of the occasion. The function ended at a late hour, everyone present voting it a most enjoyable one.

Various Notes.

The Allied Florists' Trade Association is accomplishing much work. Aubrey Nash, the genial secretary, was strongly in evidence at the ninth international flower show, and was in touch with many of those representing retail interests. Of course, the association is now depending largely on the retail interests for support and Mr. Nash says he is going to get it. The organization has much work laid out, all in the direction of those wonderful advertisements in the daily press, which our retail interests endorse so highly, and, it is understood, a new series is to start immediately. To accentuate the work of the organization, a mass meeting of trade interests is under consideration and in early April all in the trade will be invited to take part in a meeting, which ought to be conducive to the publicity interests of the New York trade.

Flower show week, just ended, brought all our local trade together at the Grand Central Palace, and it goes without saying that it was a week of reminiscences and a gathering of souls more or less congenial in character.

FORGET-ME-NOT CULTURE.

I am growing some 7-inch forget-me-nots in a night temperature of about 50 degrees. Is it necessary to transplant these plants into larger pots in order to have the flowers for Easter, or shall I permit the roots to become potbound? Any advice you may give me will be appreciated.

E. D. E.—Kan.

Forget-me-nots in 7-inch pots should make comparatively large plants before Easter and if you will give them an abundant supply of water and, in addition to this, some liquid manure once a week, the plants will be much better. It is a long cry to Easter yet and I would advise running your plants a little lower than 50 degrees at night. A better temperature would be 45 degrees. Some varieties of forget-me-not bloom much earlier than others. If I knew the particular sort you are growing, I could advise you better as to the treatment, but you cannot go far wrong in holding the plants cool.

LILIUM MAGNIFICUM.

Will you please give us a few directions on how to grow Lilium magnificum in the greenhouse?

W. N. & S.—Wis.

Lilium magnificum is one of the best forms of L. speciosum. The bulbs of all the speciosums come mainly from Japan and usually arrive in America from November 15 to December 1. Some American-grown bulbs are produced and sold, and there is no reason why one or more enterprising growers should not make a financial success of such a venture, provided they have suitable soil and climatic conditions. Bulbs of magnificum and other forms of speciosum do better if potted as soon after arrival as possible, although they are often kept in a cold cellar until the following spring. You will find that you can get better results by growing several bulbs in 8-inch or 10-inch pots than by growing individual ones in smaller sizes.

Use a compost mainly composed of well decayed fibrous loam, with a little old manure and sand added, and keep the bulbs well down in the pots, as the roots are emitted from the base of the shoots, from the tops of the bulbs, and not at the bottom, as in the case of candidum, for instance. After potting, stand the pots on the floor of a cellar or below the bench in a greenhouse where they won't be subjected to drip. If the soil is fairly moist, do not water until it dries out well. Shoots will begin to appear about the end of January, when the plants should be placed on the bench near the light. This lily should not be forced hard, like longiflorum giganteum, as it will do poorly, but grown in a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night, in winter, it will come of splendid quality. As the pots become filled with roots, liquid manure once a week can be applied in moderately weak doses, until flowers start to open.

ers distributed to ex-service men in Indianapolis hospitals. Nurserymen from all parts of the country have provided hardy shrubs for distribution on Patriotic day.

The plants bloom in summer, varying from May until September, according to the warmth given them, and carry spikes of remarkable vigor, with numerous flowers. Plants stood on the floor of a frost-proof cellar or placed in a coldframe and well covered with dry leaves, with sashes over them, will give much later flowers than those started below greenhouse benches. Cold storage magnificums may be started in August or earlier and may be had in flower from November until January or later, if desired. If you want some fine specimen plants of this lily, try a number of bulbs in 12-inch or 14-inch pots. Grown this way, you can get stalks six feet in height and carrying twelve to thirty flowers per stalk in many cases. C. W.

hand, a strain may be developed with perfect flowers, at any rate with a high percentage of good flowers. We may find here, too, an explanation for the old belief that varieties eventually "run out." The explanation is that a new strain has come into existence because of the type of plants selected for reproducing the variety.

There may have been a certain tendency in the original plant, possibly a tendency not desirable, and by selecting at random, this tendency has been permitted to exert itself and become the dominant characteristic of the variety. On the other hand, it appears possible, by means of careful and continuous selection, to keep up the standard of a variety and develop a strain which produces a high percentage of good flowers. P. A. Lehenbauer.

VALLEY FOR EASTER.

What is the latest we can plant valley pips to have them for Easter and what is the general culture of them? S. F. C.—O.

Allow about three weeks from the time you start them until flowering. Fresh fall-dug pips should have a bottom heat of about 75 degrees if possible and a top heat around 60 degrees. Plant the pips in clean sand and water well. Keep them dark for fourteen days; then gradually allow a little light to give stamina to the flower stalks and to encourage leaf growth. Cold storage pips need no bottom heat. If you are growing them in pots, give them a night temperature of 65 degrees and keep in the light all the time to produce stocky plants. C. W.

VALLEY PIPS.

What is the difference between Holland and German valley pips? What is the best time to use Holland pips for forcing? Are pips in cold storage while en route from Europe? When are pips harvested in Europe? L. F.—N. J.

Before the war the Holland valley pips were considered inferior to the German pips, were smaller in size and produced flowers of inferior quality. Germany, undoubtedly, sent during the war many Berlin pips into neutral Holland and these were sold here as Dutch. Probably from now on we can depend upon receiving the two types more as they were before 1914.

Holland pips succeed best when started towards the end of January. Valley pips are not placed in cold storage while en route from Europe, but they are placed in cold storage here in large quantities. They usually come here in November and December, being harvested abroad in October. C. W.

BLOOD WILL TELL

SELECTING THE STRAIN.

Propagating for Perfection.

Florists, no doubt, are aware of the fact that there is much variation in the flowers of a particular crop. The flowers vary in size, form and shade of color. Some flowers are more desirable than others, although all may have been produced under similar or, possibly, the same conditions of culture.

A quite common characteristic of certain varieties of carnations is the curling of the outer edges of the petals, which gives the flower a more or less distorted appearance. This condition we usually refer to as "crimping." Associated with this curling of the petals is a smallness of flower, such a flower always being smaller than the average good flower of the variety. What the inherent cause is of this abnormal condition is not known; it may be the result of external conditions operating on the flower during its early stages of development or it may be the result of some disarrangement of the internal functions of the plant; in other words, inherent in the plant and bearing no relation to the conditions under which the plant is being grown.

In the course of our experiments at the University of Illinois on the influence of selection for high and low production strains, an attempt was made to determine to what extent this peculiarity of the flower is dependent on the inherent characteristics of the plant. Accordingly, certain plants were selected which had a record of having produced a high percentage of these crimped flowers. Observation had shown that some plants produce many such flowers in a season, while others produce none or only a few. Several plants were selected, also, which had produced no crimped flowers.

Records Kept on Carnations.

Cuttings were made from these plants and a record of production kept of each plant and the resulting progeny. The data in the accompanying table illustrate the results from two plants, one selected for crimps, the other for the lack of crimps. The first plant, selected because of its perfect flowers, was carried through four years, when there was a total of fifteen plants. During all this time every flower was perfect, so far as the crimping of the petals is concerned. The second plant, selected because more than half of its flowers were crimped, was carried through nearly five years. As can readily be seen, the percentage of flowers which were crimped increased from year to year until, in the last year, of the 582 flowers produced, ninety-five per cent were crimped.

Not all the plants gave results as clean-cut as the two above. However, all the data indicate the same general tendency; in other words, the data show that if we propagate from a plant which has produced one or more crimped flowers a progeny will, in course of time, be developed which produces a high percentage of crimped flowers.

Another interesting fact brought out is that of the ninety-six plants grown this year, the complete progeny of plant No. 32, eighty-two plants have a record of 100 per cent crimped flowers; that is, every flower produced by these plants was crimped. Only fourteen plants produced flowers which were not all crimped and the proportion of the two kinds of flowers was: Crimped, sixty-six; not crimped, twenty-nine. In other words, the tendency seems to be towards a strain of plants which produces only crimped flowers.

Isolation of Strains.

These two strains were gotten by the process of selection. By means of carefully selecting plants, we then are able to isolate strains differing in this flower characteristic. The experiment illustrates the importance of propagating from the most desirable plants. Unless some care is exercised, a variety may after a time lose its good qualities and instead a strain result which is much unlike the original plants. On the other

NEW YORK SHOW CLOSES

Favored by Weather and Finance.

The weather man certainly favored New York's flower show week, as at no time was there bad weather to deter the crowds of visitors.

From a financial point of view the show was a huge success. When, on the first day, only a partial day, and usually slow at that, the gate receipts beat the best day of last year's show, the management were greatly cheered, and thereafter the view of blockading conditions around the various box offices removed all thoughts of an ill-boding character. It is believed that the ultimate reports will show that the ninth international has been the best of the series.

The Review was able to give in last week's issue all the awards made up to and including Wednesday, March 15. Thursday, March 16, was Carnation day, and the commercial exhibits were creditable. There were, of course, few new varieties presented in the stagings, but the quality of the exhibits was of the usual exhibition kind. The Laddie of S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., was exceptionally fine, and the sneak thieves, always in evidence at the closing hours of a show day, did not fail to notice this.

journal in New Zealand, declared that, although he had seen much that delighted the eye, the picture of the show, with its external setting, surpassed anything of the kind yet seen. Describing a convention of nurserymen at Auckland, at which he was an invited guest, our confrere realized that he was among kindred spirits of the most progressive type. The new nursery of forty acres, at New Rochelle, which is being developed under the supervision of Mr. Troy, assisted by his son, is intended to be a model of its kind. W. M.

GROWING CELOSIAS.

Can you give me any information in regard to growing celosias from the seed? S. G.—Mont.

Celosias may be had in flower until Christmas, but are past their best at that time. Pride of Castle Gould is the best pot variety. Sow the seeds in July and grow them along in light but rich soil, under glass, for a late crop. For an earlier crop, and one which is usually more satisfactory, sow in April. Celosias love heat, and while they will grow outdoors or in any ordinary greenhouse in the warm months, are quite sensitive to cold and can hardly be recommended as good Christmas plants, although we have seen some in quite decent condition at that time. C. W.

COMPOST FOR BEDDING PLANTS.

We have no other soil for our bedding stock than that in which we grew mums last summer. What proportion of blood and bone should we mix with this soil to bring it to the correct condition for our stock? We have an unlimited amount of spent hotbed manure. V. P.—Minn.

The old chrysanthemum soil should answer for your bedding plants. I should prefer not to use blood and bone, but as you have a good supply of spent hotbed manure, I would advise using this in the proportion of one part to three parts of your old mum soil. It is advisable that the hotbed manure should be dried out somewhat and be passed through a three-quarter-inch screen. For a final potting you could add a 4-inch potful of fine bone to each bushel of soil, but I would advise against using any blood; it is a dangerous fertilizer to use and even experienced growers have had occasion to repent using it. C. W.

SMOTHERING BERMUDA GRASS.

We have about one-fourth acre of land covered with Bermuda grass, which we have been trying to clean out for a number of years, without success. Will you advise us as to the best way to get rid of the grass? J. F. C. & S.—Tenn.

Constant cultivation, leaving the land fallow for a year and raking up and burning all the grass pulled up is a method of control. Another plan successfully adopted is a heavy smother crop of cow peas, soya beans or fodder corn. The beans or cow peas could be turned in after they had made a strong growth and would much enrich your land. After turning them under, keep the soil constantly stirred the rest of the season and you should be able to smother out the Bermuda grass. C. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Forward" be our watchword.
Press and voices joined;
Seek the things before us,
Not a look behind.

So observed Secretary John Young, in commenting upon the passing of another era in the life of the international flower show, at New York last week, unanimously agreed by all concerned to be the most successful ever, and a pace-setter for the forthcoming important event at Indianapolis, which all, or nearly all, of the trade visitors announced their intention to attend.

A feature of the show was the appearance of the perennially youthful prima donna, who favored with two songs twice a day. A group of bulb men were spellbound with the rendering of the song, "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," but practical Charles Schwake remarked, "If 'tis for lily bulbs, we have them."

The presence of a pair of macaws among the orchids gave a tropical setting and elicited a comment from James McHutchison on the connection with his antipodean birthplace. He incidentally mentioned a large shipment of palm seeds in transit.

W. R. Hennessey, of the Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O., was demonstrating the firm's new single-line oscillator. The force displayed caused John G. Esler to remark that, if hail was produced, the possibility of a large addition to the already extensive list of members in the Florists' Hail Association would result.

"Had it been predicted a decade ago that such an exhibition as we now see here would be possible, would that prediction have been given credence?" queried J. D. Eisele, president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., while looking down, with a big party of Philadelphians, upon the magnificent picture as seen from the mezzanine floor of the Grand Central Palace. Of peculiar interest are the hybrid Kurume azaleas, which Vice-President G. A. Strohlein mentioned as being free growers. A fine stock of plants now in 5-inch pots, 18 months old, propagated from cuttings, is being rapidly distributed. John Strohlein, son of Vice-President Strohlein, is taking a course in plant growing with A. L. Miller, of Jamaica, L. I.

"We have to hand it to the Gothamites," observed James W. Heacock, of the Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., "when it comes to the grand palms exhibited by Bobbink & Atkins, but we cannot have the cake and eat it at the same time. We cannot supply the demand for commercial sizes and, at that, we carry advertisements only in the Classified columns of The Review."

D. B. Edwards, of Atlantic City, commenting upon the quality of the stock on exhibition, observed that "while it goes without saying that the top notch is being reached in many respects, does it not make our patrons more exacting in proportion to their willingness to show their practical appreciation?" He also admitted that business at the great seaside resort is keeping up splendidly.

Smith T. Bradley, of Fairhaven, Mass., observed that, in his opinion, it raised the status of the florist, especially if a retailer, when, after attending such an exhibition, he could intelligently relate his experience to his patrons.

"Was it worth the trip? Indeed, it was," remarked Samuel Hanson, of North Troy, N. Y., "and, at the first opportunity, I will give the Trojans the benefit of my observations, obtained at first hand."

Robert Pyle, president of the American Rose Society, was an interested visitor, en route to New Rochelle, N. Y., to deliver his famous rose lecture. Mr. Pyle was accompanied by Superintendent of Parks John H. Wade.

The arrival of Verna Eileen at the home of John W. Hannell, Watervliet, N. Y., kept the happy parents from paying the annual visit to the show. Congratulations!

ROSE TESTS AT PORTLAND

AWARDS AT PORTLAND.

On New Roses for 1921.

Portland and Philadelphia divide the honors for 1921 in the production of new roses, as shown by the report of the board of judges which scored the new roses in the international rose test garden in Washington park, Portland, Ore. According to the finding of the judges, the following awards were made:

To Captain George C. Thomas, Jr., of Philadelphia, Pa., for producing the rose, Mrs. George C. Thomas, gold medal of the American Rose Society, for the best rose for general garden cultivation; gold medal of the city of Portland for the best new climbing rose, and the silver trophy of the Portland Rose Society for the best rose produced by an amateur.

To Albert Clarke, of Portland, for producing the rose Imperial Potentate, silver medal of the American Rose Society for the second best rose for general garden cultivation; gold medal of the city of Portland for the best bush or dwarf rose, and silver trophy of the Portland Chamber of Commerce for the best new rose produced on the Pacific coast.

The judges for 1921 were Rev. S. S. Sulliger, of Kent, Wash.; H. L. Collier, president of the Seattle Rose Society, and J. B. Pilkington, of Portland. The judges viewed the roses several times and made their individual markings and then made the final markings from the records kept, all scores being under what is known as the Portland system, which shows clearly the value of a new rose for certain qualities.

Portland's the Highest Award.

Park Superintendent C. P. Keyser, in speaking of the 1921 competition in new roses, said: "The great majority of the new roses tested in 1921 were new creations of Captain Thomas and Albert Clarke, as their roses, except one from John Cook, the veteran grower of Baltimore, and C. F. Gersdorff, of Washington, were the only bushes received in 1919, due to the closing of the war, but next year there will be a long list of contenders for the Portland honors. The growers throughout the world are fully awakened to the importance of having their roses tested in Portland, for our garden is the only one where they are tested under the system originated by Jesse A. Currey, of this city. In the other test gardens, such as those of the government at Arlington, the one at Cornell University and the one at Hartford, Conn., they keep markings of old roses as well as new, but Portland is the only city where only new roses are tested scientifically; that is, to determine their disease-resisting qualities, their vigor, their fragrance, length of stem, etc. Therefore, the growers have realized that if their new roses can attain a score of at least eighty-five points under the Portland test, they have a rose which they can recommend to the public for general garden cultivation. The public is also realizing the value of the Portland test, for the garden here gets frequent inquiries as to the score certain new roses have made in Portland. The gardens are also advertising Portland as the rose center, for if you look over the catalogues you will find that roses which have passed the Portland test are especially noted.

"As an illustration of how the test garden is growing in importance in the opinion of the growers is the long list entered for competition next year. During the last week we received a large shipment of new varieties of roses from Hazelwood Bros., of Australia, and also a shipment from Hugh Dickson, of Ireland, and Walter Easlea and Elisha J. Hicks, of England, and we have been notified that Pernet-Ducher is sending here his new yellow rose, Souvenir Claudius Ducher. From this country we have just received for testing, E. G. Hill's new creation, America; also Fred H. Lemon's four new roses, Rotarian, Angelus, Amelia Gude and Freedom, and from Joseph Hill his wonderful red rose, Red Columbia. Jackson & Perkins Co., of New York; Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles; S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, and several others have sent in new roses to be tried here. From Bees, of Liverpool, England, we have received a most important shipment, including the new roses, Macbeth Adonis, Puck, Aerial and Independence Day, and from Thomas N. Cook, of Boston, his latest climber, and several new everblooming roses from Captain Thomas, of Philadelphia."

Describes the Winners.

Jesse A. Currey, of Portland, Pacific coast director of the American Rose Society, in reviewing the awards, said: "It is evident from the detailed report of the judges that the contest in 1921 was extremely keen, there being only a difference of one point between the roses of Captain Thomas and Mr. Clarke, the former making a total score of 94.33 points out of a possible 100, which is an exceedingly high mark. An analysis of the score shows that Captain Thomas's new climber had the advantage practically only in novelty, and it is truly a novelty, not only from a color standpoint, being a rich mixture of cream tints and gold, but because it is a continuous bloomer. One of the bushes in the garden produced a total of 416 blooms in the season, which is remarkable for a 2-year-old plant; at no time from May 26 until October 10 was it without flowers, and June 30 it carried sixty-three fine blooms. Good climbers are scarce and Captain Thomas's production fills a long-felt want. As a decorative rose it is a most welcome addition. It was entered in the test garden as seedling No. 66H, but now that it has won world's honor, getting the highest award possible in the rose world, Captain Thomas has named it in honor of his mother, Mrs. George C. Thomas, one of Philadelphia's best known philanthropists. In addition to this rose, Captain Thomas had several other notable climbers under test, for he started before the war to produce along scientific lines ever-blooming climbing roses and a glance at the scores shows that he has several others almost as good as Mrs. George C. Thomas, but under the rules of the garden, awards can be made in one year only to one rose by a grower, and while under ordinary circumstances Captain Thomas would have received other awards, he can only accept honors for Mrs. George C. Thomas.

"The fact that first honors for the best dwarf or bush rose go to Albert Clarke, of this city, shows that Portland can produce new roses as well as grow existing varieties. Mr. Clarke's rose was named two years ago during the Shriners' convention in Portland, and while as a 1-year-old plant it possessed merit, it has developed into a fine rose, being a rich rosy carmine in color and of most charming form, having a high center and the outer petals gradually opening, giving a full view of the rich rose tones of the center. While it is not so prolific a bloomer as some other roses, it is entirely healthy, showing last year, which was a most striking season, no trace of mildew in any of the three tests. The plants under test produced an average of sixty-two blooms in the season and it is particularly noticeable that the variety had a heavy blooming period in August, producing more flowers in midsummer than at any other time. Mr. Clarke, like Mr. Thomas, had several other good roses in the 1921 test, but, under the rules of the garden, could receive awards only for Imperial Potentate.

Pink Beauty Better Indoors.

"John Cook, of Baltimore, had entered in the competition his new rose, Pink Beauty, which is a good rose, but not quite satisfactory for outdoor cultivation. In the opinion of the judges, it will make a good indoor rose. It is rather heavy in petals and except under an exceedingly hot sun will not open as well as a rose should. In the south and in other places where it is quite warm at night, it will probably show up well in the garden.

"Captain Thomas's rose, Mrs. George C. Thomas, is an offspring resulting from crossing Climbing Caroline Test-out with the climber Moonlight. It is a most interesting combination, for the rose evidently gets its climbing vigor from both parents, while the color of the blooms is a mingling of the best shades in both the pollen and seed parents."

The detailed score, showing just the number of points each rose scored for individual qualities, is given in the table on the preceding page.

these pits, they start on a flat piece of land or on the side of a hill and make a bank anywhere from twenty to forty feet deep. The first marl we get is called gray marl and it will run from five to twenty feet deep. Then the green marl is struck, which is considered to be the best grade. This will run anywhere from twenty to 150 feet deep, but the green marl is taken out in what we call pits. A pit is 8x8x24 feet.

Marl has been dug in New Jersey for 300 years and used as a filler for fertilizer and as a grass and manure cover. It was never satisfactory as a fertilizer. In Sewell we have pits from which millions of tons have been removed and spread over New Jersey and Pennsylvania, but this has not been done in the last fifteen years.

In 1919 I did the drilling for the United States geological survey to locate marl deposits. An analysis of the contents of these deposits showed that this marl contained from six and one-half to nine per cent potash. When the pits were in operation a ton of gray marl sold in the pits for 20 cents per ton. A ton of green or blue marl, as it was known, sold for 40 cents in the pits. These pits are all grown over by forests, except the bottom ones, and they are lakes which make fine fishing ponds. Anyone wishing any of this marl can get all he wants for the digging of it. From a geological standpoint I can tell you just how marl was deposited and its formation. J. L. North.

GERANIUM POISONING.

Perhaps some brother florist has had experience with geranium poisoning and can lend a helping hand to one having such affliction now. I can work with geraniums with perfect safety during the winter months, but as soon as the stronger sunlight of spring comes these plants cause a poisoning of the skin which is, indeed, irritating. The poisoning does not break out in pimples, as is usually the case with other kinds of skin infection, but remains under the skin and shows a bright red.

PLANT IS NOT YUCCA.

Can you tell me what the trouble is with the yucca, a leaf of which is enclosed with this inquiry? This is a plant I have growing in my residence and it has seemed to do better there than it did when it was kept in our greenhouses with a miscellaneous stock of pot plants. Lately it has become affected as shown. I should like to know what it is and how to clean it up.

R. S.—Ill.

The leaf is from Pandanus utilis, commonly called the screw pine, and not from a yucca. The appearance of the leaf forwarded suggests some burning, which may be caused by keeping the plant in a sunny window, in which there may be a square of defective glass. I suggest that you give the plant a little shade from direct sunlight, and also give it a little weak stimulant like diluted cow or sheep manure once in ten days to encourage the growth of new leaves.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

BULBS IN TENNESSEE.

Many Varieties Grown.

In The Review for March 9 there was an article concerning Mr. Lawler's planting of bulbs in Washington. We feel as does Mr. Lawler concerning the bulbs in this country. America should do her part in growing bulbs and America can do her part, as will be shown in future years.

We have grown bulbs for many years and find they are successful. Our planting now includes the following varieties of jonquils:

|------------------------|-----------|
| Sir Watkin .....       | 1,000,000 |
| Leedsli amabilis ..... | 25,000    |
| Emperor .....          | 45,000    |
| Empress .....          | 45,000    |
| Leedsli Diana .....    | 10,000    |
| Princes .....          | 100,000   |

Besides the above list, we have imported a few bulbs of extra fancy varieties this year, which we find are producing wonderful foliage and give promise of handsome flowers. The list includes King Alfred, Glory of Sassenheim, Tresserve and Glory of Leiden.

We are growing tulips and hyacinths in large quantities, but as to their success with us, we are yet to determine. However, last fall we put out over 20,000 tulips of Darwin, cottage and breeder species. We have also put out about 2,500 hyacinths for bedding purposes.

Others Tried.

We have not, however, stopped with narcissi, hyacinths and tulips in the line of bulbous stock. Last year, after some trouble, we succeeded in getting 60,000 Spanish irises from Holland. This stock was of the best Holland-grown and is giving promise of a successful crop of blooms.

We have on hand, too, a large supply of cannas of all the best varieties, which include: City of Portland, Hungaria, Gigantea, King Humbert, President, Richard Wallace, Wyoming, Firebird, Eureka, Austria, etc.

Among our most successful crops, I believe, are peonies, of which we now have 125,000 good plants of the best cut flower varieties. Among them are: President Taft, Baroness Schroeder, Sarah Bernhardt, La Rosiere, Mons. Jules Elie, Asa Gray, Avalanche, Marie Stuart, Meissonier, Golden Harvest, etc. Besides this list of commercial varieties, we have some of the finest type, such as Lieutenant Hobson, Altar Candles, Carl Rosenfield, Archie Brand, La France, Adolphe Rousseau, Lady Alexander Duff, Soulangue and many others. Last year our peonies yielded us many thousand handsome blooms, which found a ready market. Our cutting season extended over a period of six weeks, beginning about April 15. Our peonies are more than twelve inches high and are beginning to show buds.

In regard to marl as a fertilizer I will say that I live in the largest marl belt in the United States. We have what they call marl pits. In opening one of

PLANTS IN PAPER BANDS

PLANTS I'VE GROWN IN BANDS.

By A. W. HARRIS.

Early Tomatoes.

In the article headed, "Plants in Paper Bands," in The Review for February 23, I told of the advantages, and some disadvantages, incident to growing greenhouse plants in paper pots and bands. To add specific details to those general statements, I shall here tell about various kinds of plants I have grown in paper bands and how they were handled.

Earliest tomatoes are started about January 31, but I do not grow many of these. By setting-out time, May 20, they will be large plants in bloom and in fruit and will sell at 25 cents each. The seedlings are transplanted several times, being graded each time to one size, weak ones being discarded. About the middle of April they are placed in 4-inch bands. A later sowing, made about February 20, will take 3-inch bands. March 15 I sow my largest crop. These are transplanted once or twice, depending upon the season, and then in April they are placed in 2-inch bands. These sell at from 40 to 50 cents per dozen. Another sowing is made about March 31, and the strong plants are placed directly in the 1½-inch bands, and sell at from 25 to 35 cents a dozen, depending upon the season. Last year the season was early and a great number of my plants were too large. March and April were warm and sunny and the plants grew rapidly under the glass.

Cabbage, Cauliflower and Kohl-Rabi.

Early cabbage, cauliflower and kohlrabi are started in February for the earliest plants and, by being grown cold, they are held back. Stocky plants are produced, which are transplanted and graded several times and are finally planted in 2-inch bands the last of March or the first of April, depending upon the season. If these plants are grown warm, they are apt to make heads in the bands. They should sell at from 35 to 50 cents, depending upon the market. I make my main sowing of late cauliflower and kohlrabi about March 15, transplanting and grading them once or twice and placing them in 1½-inch bands in April. These sell at from 25 to 35 cents a dozen, but the flats go considerably cheaper. Sometimes a later sowing is made, the plants being transplanted direct to the bands. I have had some demand for late cabbage in bands, which are started about March 31 and transplanted once to flats, from which they are sold. Grow all of the above-mentioned plants as cool as possible, giving them at all times plenty of air, and your customers will come back for more.

Eggplants and Peppers.

Eggplants and peppers are started in February and are handled the same as tomatoes. They are graded to two sizes, which are placed in 3-inch bands early in April. These plants do not make the rapid growth that tomatoes do, but should be grown warm and kept as close to the glass as possible. One year I had a number of pepper plants, part of which were in bands and part in 2½-inch pots. These were on a shelf close to the glass. The evaporation was rapid in late April and May, and, although these plants were the same size when started, those in bands more than doubled the size of those in pots by May 20.

Pansies are started January 1, and grown much like cabbage, except that they are placed in 2-inch bands in March. If they get too much heat, they are liable to string out. They should also be pinched back at first.

Melons and Cucumbers.

Melons and cucumbers are sown several seeds in 3-inch and 4-inch bands or pots about April 15. These must be kept warm and, as soon as they come up, are placed where they will get plenty of sun. Special care must be taken in watering, as the ground should not be kept soggy or the plants are likely to damp off. When the plants are from two to three inches high, all but two or three of the strongest are removed.

Sweet peas are sown in 2-inch bands and handled like cucumbers, except that they are started about April 1 and grown colder.

The earliest asters are started about March 1, handled like tomatoes and placed in 2-inch bands in April. Later plantings, from March 15 to April 15, are made in 2-inch or 1½-inch bands. There are a number of other seedlings, such as antirrhinums and a lot of annuals, that can be grown in bands, but the same general directions will cover their care, if the nature of the plant is kept in mind.

It must be remembered that the dates mentioned are for the latitude of southern Minnesota.

Plants from Cuttings.

Last year I had a number of carnation and chrysanthemum cuttings in bands. The carnations were placed in 1¾-inch bands in December, January and February, and when transplanted to the field in May were in better shape and more easily handled than the ones I had in 2½-inch clay pots, and they did not require one-half the space needed by 2½-inch pot plants in the bench. The chrysanthemums were placed in 2-inch bands in March, pinched back in April and benched in June. They made some of the best plants I have ever had. The carnations were in the bands several months, and the bands were still in good condition when the plants were set out. The work of transplanting was much faster than that of the pot plants. I also started several hundred vincas in 1¾-inch bands in January and February, planting these in the field in May. The bands remained in good condition and the plants handled perfectly. Last season I grew a good many Mme. Saleroi geraniums in 2-inch and 3-inch bands, placing the cuttings in the bands direct from the cutting bench, and grading the cuttings to two sizes. These were good plants when sold in May and June.

Proper Spacing Necessary.

There are a number of other cuttings which I have grown successfully, such as coleus, daisies, feverfew, sweet alysum, etc. The main point to bear in mind is not to have these plants in the bands so long that either the top growth smothers part of the plants or the roots grow together. Some slow-growing plants, such as vincas, can be kept in the bands longer than the fast-growing ones, such as the coleus or daisies. Sometimes, if the season is early and if the plants have made too heavy a top growth, it will be advisable to remove them from the flats and to space them so as to allow more air circulation. This can be done if they are to be disposed of within two weeks.

Pansy in Paper Pot.

Tomato in Paper Pot.

Only a few plants of those I have tried did not do better in bands than in clay pots. Geraniums in 3-inch and 4-inch pots did not do well. They could not be grown in flats because their tops were too large and, when the plants were spaced so as to give more room, only a few weeks were necessary for the roots to spread in the cinders, thus causing a setback when moved. Geraniums direct from the cutting bench in 2-inch bands did well when sold promptly. The roots of the Bellis perennis are so penetrating that they grew through the paper, and when it came time to remove them the plants were so interlocked that it was nearly impossible to separate them.

Reducing Labor and Shipping Costs.

One of the best features of bands is their adaptability to the wholesale growing and shipping of 2-inch and 2½-inch pot plants. Twice as many plants can be grown, with less work, in bands than in clay pots. The work of preparing for shipment is indeed small; it is only necessary to nail an upright at the corner on each end of the flat, with a piece across the top, and then nail a top and sides to these. With pot plants there is the work of removing them from the pots, wrapping each individual plant and cleating them in the boxes.

Plants crated do not suffer from the lack of air. They are handled with more care by the expressmen than when placed in tight boxes, which do not reveal their contents, and arrive at the destination in much better shape. When received they should be watered and shaded for two or three days and then placed in the sun or replanted, as desired. These plants will be found to have less of a setback than the ones from clay pots.

There is, of course, a slightly increased cost of shipping, as bands contain more earth than pots of a given size, but plants grown in bands can be sold cheaper, and this fact, in addition to their better shape on arrival, will more than offset the higher shipping cost.

Another feature of the band is that it can be used as a cutworm guard. After placing the plants in the field, put either a 2-inch or 3-inch band over the plant and bank it up slightly with earth to anchor it.

Now, again I wish to emphasize the importance of watching the watering carefully. It is almost impossible to overwater chrysanthemum cuttings in bands, as their leaf area is so great that they will handle all of the moisture the soil absorbs; but with weaker seedlings, especially in cold, cloudy weather, examine the soil carefully before watering.

Batavia, N. Y.—The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. has the contract to erect one greenhouse, 37x150, for Louis C. Stroh & Son. Work is to begin the first part of February.

OBITUARY

Alexander Waldbart.

Alexander Waldbart, a pioneer florist of St. Louis, Mo., died at his home, 5859 Etzel avenue, March 14, after a lingering illness. He was 77 years of age.

Mr. Waldbart, who was born at Baden, Germany, had been a resident of St. Louis for fifty-six years. He had been identified with the florists' business since 1872. At that time he built a range of seven greenhouses in the west end of the city, where he prospered. In 1884 he moved to Hamilton avenue and Horton place, where his business was situated at the time of his death. The business will be continued by the sons under the present name of Alexander Waldbart & Sons.

He was a charter member of the S. A. F. He helped organize the St. Louis Florists' Club in 1886 and was its president in 1894 and 1895.

Surviving the deceased are his children, Alexander F., Eugene J., Lee A., Emilie and Anna, and a brother, George Waldbart.

The funeral took place March 17 from the late residence and burial was in Calvary cemetery. There were many beautiful floral offerings. J. J. B.

John Leshyn.

John Leshyn was found dead in bed March 10 at his home, at 5329 South Rockwell street, Chicago. Formerly gardener for Mrs. Pullman, at her home at Nineteenth street and Prairie avenue, he went into business for himself about fifteen years ago at 5329 South Rockwell street, where he grew pot plants for the Chicago retail stores.

He was an expert grower of these plants and built up a thriving business. The greenhouses at his death comprised about 30,000 feet of glass and his residence adjoining is a handsome one.

He had been attending to business the day before his death and the end came without warning. He was 44 years of age. His widow and four children, all in school, survive him. Mrs. Leshyn may continue to operate the greenhouses, although she will sell them if she receives a suitable offer.

William K. Tipton.

William K. Tipton, 85 years of age, founder of the Tipton Nurseries, Inc., Little Rock, Ark., died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Flora T. Potts, of that city, March 4. Death was caused by burns received when his night clothing was ignited by a gas stove.

Mr. Tipton had been engaged in the nursery business practically all his life. Raised on a farm where fruit growing received much attention, he early became interested in the business. Soon after the Civil war he started a small nursery, later adding greenhouses and seeds to the business. He went to Little Rock in 1879 and started a nursery, growing fruits and vegetables for the home and northern markets. He later discontinued the growing of vegetables, but continued the nursery and fruit growing business.

Mr. Tipton was a member of the Ohio State Horticultural Society and served as one of its officers several years. He was one of the organizers of the Eastern Ohio Horticultural Society and was its secretary until he moved to Arkansas. He was one of the ten charter members of the Arkansas State Horticultural Society and served as its secretary eighteen years.

He is survived by three sons, D. M. Tipton, Harry B. Tipton and Roy Tipton, all of Little Rock; also three daughters, Mrs. Potts, with whom he made his home; Mrs. M. B. Burns, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mrs. F. J. Bennett, of Walla Walla, Wash.

Mrs. Stella Johnston.

After a week's illness with a severe attack of pneumonia, Mrs. Stella Johnston, proprietor of the Chickashaw Greenhouse, Chickashaw, Okla., died February 26.

The deceased was a pioneer florist of Oklahoma, having been in business for twenty years. She had a strictly retail trade and had built up a splendid business, starting with but a few plants and one small greenhouse. Regardless of the fact that Mrs. Johnston was permanently crippled by an automobile seven years ago, she stayed with her business.

Mrs. Johnston is survived by her husband, D. M. Johnston, manager of the business, and one daughter, Mrs. Joseph Dews. These two will continue the business.

Charles M. Hermann.

Charles Hermann, senior in the firm of C. Hermann & Son, Frederick, Md., died at his home March 11 after a lingering illness. The deceased was over 79 years of age.

Born in Germany October 3, 1842, Mr. Hermann came to this country in 1866, making his home at Quincy, Ill. Later he moved to Baltimore, Md., and in 1876 went to Frederick, where he successfully carried on his business until February 3 of this year, when he retired. It was in 1889 that Mr. Hermann first entered the florists' business.

Mr. Hermann was one of the industrious and thrifty men of the old school and his death, although momentarily expected for some days, came as a shock to his many acquaintances and friends. He was a member of the Evangelical Reformed church and, prior to the disbanding of the St. John's Reformed church, served that congregation for many years as an elder. He was also a member of the S. A. F. and of the Baltimore Florists' Club.

Besides his widow, who before marriage was Miss Elizabeth Diehl, he is survived by the following children: Mrs. Henry Raabe, Charles A. and Miss Elizabeth Hermann, and Reverend Edward A. G. Hermann, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, Mercersburg, Pa. One brother, Richard Hermann; one sister, Miss Marie Hermann, and two grandchildren also survive.

Harry A. Barnard.

A cable from England has brought the regrettable tidings that Harry A. Barnard, of Winchmere Hill, London, England, is no more. The deceased was 75 years of age. Described as "unique among salesmen," he had been with one firm, Stuart Low & Co., of Bushhill Park, England, for more than half a century and previous to that with Hugh Low & Co.

Mr. Barnard had made numerous trips to America for his firm. Submarines operating did not halt him, but when quarantine 37 went into effect his welcome visits stopped. Miss Eileen Low taking his place. He was well, aye, affectionately, known to many in the trade and on private estates in America; these were always glad to have a visit from him and will sincerely regret his passing.

Some time ago Mr. Barnard celebrated his fiftieth anniversary with Stuart Low & Co. and received many congratulations. Although long past the allotted milestone of life, he was hale and hearty until almost the last. Many of his friends received cards from him only last Christmas. There was no traveling representative who had more friends and his memory will remain fresh in their minds. W. N. C.

John Page.

John Page, one of the most noted men of the British trade, died March 7, after a severe illness. Mr. Page had been connected with the florists' trade for upwards of forty years. For twenty-one years he had been associated with his brother Edward, as J. & E. Page, as salesmen in Covent Garden, London. Endowed with a strong personality and wonderful business ability, he will be greatly missed by all who are connected with the Covent Garden industry.

Mr. Page was 63 years of age and the second son of Matthew Henry Page, who practically founded the flower-growing industry in the Hampton district. The funeral took place March 11 at All Saints' church, Hampton, and interment was at Teddington cemetery.

Leopold B. Stoll.

Leopold B. Stoll, of Baltimore, Md., son of the late Adolph and Louise Stoll, died at his home at the age of 56. Mr. Stoll spent his entire life in the florists' business. His greenhouses were located at 3643 Culver street, near the old Frederick road. He is survived by three brothers, Adolph F., Frederick C. and Joseph Stoll, and three sisters, Sophia, Anne and Mary. Mr. Stoll was a member of the Baltimore Florists' Club.

Charles M. Loring.

Charles M. Loring, one of the builders of Minneapolis, often called the father of the park system, died March 18, at his home in Minneapolis. Loring park, Loring cascades in Glenwood park, the Victory memorial drive and the trees on the two boulevards from Minneapolis to Excelsior are memorials of his work.

Mr. Loring was born in Portland, Me., November 13, 1832. His father was a sea captain and Mr. Loring made many trips with him. He later became a mate on his father's ship. In 1856 he started west and spent four years in Chicago. A part of that time he was a partner of B. P. Hutchinson. In 1860 he removed to Minneapolis.

In 1868 he entered the milling industry and from that time until his retirement a few years ago he had been connected with the milling industry in an influential way. Mr. Loring was influential in bringing the North American Telegraph Co. to Minneapolis, and served as its president in the early days. He was always interested in fruits and flowers. He promoted many of the early flower and fruit shows. He was a life member of the State Horticultural Society and always attended its meetings and shows. The Loring plum is named in his honor. Perhaps his greatest work along horticultural lines was in encouraging the planting of trees. He collected a fine set of slides and often gave talks throughout the state on tree planting. He personally paid for setting the trees on the Minnetonka boulevards and provided for their care with a sum of money.

Mr. Loring laid the foundation for the great park system of Minneapolis. He was also active in establishing a park and the planting of trees in Riverside, Cal., during his residence there. He is survived by his widow, one son, two grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. L. C.

NICOTINE-BURNED MUMS.

What is the trouble with the leaves sent you from our stock mum plants? Could it be caused by a too strong application of nicotine? W. E. S.—N. Y.

These chrysanthemum leaves are burned by using a nicotine spraying liquid too strong. When spraying in the future, cut down the strength of the nicotine to, as near as possible, the directions that come with the liquid, about forty parts of water to one part of nicotine. M. P.

THE STAR SALESMAN.

Good salesmen are scarce and there is no question that the trade appreciates the good ones it has. Like this:

Please discontinue our advertisement of Asparagus plumosus seedlings, as we were sold out with one insertion. You can hold to our credit the payment made for the unneeded insertions. Was there ever before such a star salesman as The Review?—Mumma's Greenhouses, Leesburg, O., February, 16, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

The Review brings results.

ALL ABOARD for Indianapolis!

It's not too early to take orders from your customers for planting about their homes when the weather becomes suitable.

SHAMROCKS evidently are not the national flower of the Irish Free State. There were far too many for the demand March 17.

IF Congress is going to give the ex-soldiers a bonus in the form of a land-grant, why shouldn't it send them some free seeds?

WHEN you buy your ticket for Indianapolis ask for a certificate. Get it validated at the show and you'll save half your return fare.

EASTER is three weeks away. Then four weeks to Mothers' day, and two weeks later Memorial day. A busy two months are ahead!

Now that the railroads are out looking for business, we may get better service even if the interstate commerce commission is slow in lowering the costs.

IT is interesting to note that Bassett & Washburn have abandoned the plan of planting out under slat shade at their huge palm factory in California. In future the plants will be kept continuously in plunged pots, shifting as growth progresses.

"It isn't the sum involved," writes a gladiolus grower, "but them birds who substitute 'something just as good' without mentioning the fact when they are sold out of the variety ordered—they are the birds who kill the bulb business." We agree "them birds" should be shown the error of their way.

LESS disturbance of mind than usual is felt by the public regarding the threatened coal miners' strike. The proximity of warm weather, the large supplies in storage and the absence of demand because of shut-down factories are partly responsible for this sentiment, but more important is the lack of sympathy with workers who would maintain war-time wages at a time when many others would be glad to get any wages at all. The railroad employees demonstrated that no strike could be successful in the face of such lack of sympathy, and the miners are striking at an even worse time.

BRITISH growers are going to form a national daffodil society. That's one we haven't here yet.

FOR Lent, business keeps up surprisingly. Despite complaints of dullness in other industries, florists continue to enjoy a satisfactory trade at profitable prices.

THE 13,000 members of the trade who now subscribe for The Review constitute a fairly sizable audience, but there must be a few desirable subscribers who have not yet enrolled themselves. Help us find them out.

COSTS of collection letters and collectors' fees mount so rapidly that discerning business men find more profit in refusing to extend credit to customers whose habits swell these expenses to a noticeable degree.

LARGE-SCALE production today creates need of greenhouse managers—men who can direct large growing establishments for corporations or for florists who are without sons in the business and who are too old to continue. Many a fine range goes downhill through lack of a capable successor to the man who has built it up.

HITTING ON HIGH.

Again high records!

This issue of The Review is the largest regular number ever printed—196 pages and cover, an even total of 200 pages.

The Classified ads fill thirty-two pages this week. This is a gain of ten per cent over the largest preceding total, last week's, and a gain of more than twenty per cent over last season's high mark.

These records are attained because those who want the trade's business use The Review to reach the largest circulation a florists' periodical has ever built up and because they are able to do so at a lower rate per thousand readers than any other publication in this field affords.

MAKING US LOOK LIKE PIKERS.

Independent canners of Hawaiian pineapple have arranged to launch a $250,000 advertising campaign to exploit grated pineapple of the coming pack. Realizing what publicity has done for sliced packs, canners are anxious to develop the field for grated pineapple, which, in its own province, they believe has many latent possibilities.

Alongside this appropriation for one kind of canned fruit, our national publicity campaign for all kinds of flowers does not look so large!

HOOVER TO HELP.

Our national organizations, such as the growers', which have discussed the collection of trade statistics for members, will find interest in the announcement that Secretary of Commerce Hoover will hold a conference in Washington with representatives of trade associations the activities of which are national or interstate in their scope, in room 704, Department of Commerce building, April 12, at 10 a. m., for the following purposes: (1) To secure a list of trade associations that will furnish voluntarily to the Department of Commerce statistics of production and distribution in their respective fields; (2) to discuss and consider means and methods that may be best adapted for collecting and forwarding to the Secretary of Commerce, for dissemination, this statistical information; (3) to discuss the manner in which such reports of the statistical officer of the associations are to be filed with the Department of Commerce, and the manner and method of distributing the information therein to the members of the associations and to the public.

GLASS COMPANIES INDICTED.

The American Window Glass Co., the Johnston Brokerage Co., more than 100 window glass manufacturers, and heads of three labor unions in the industry were indicted by the federal grand jury March 17 for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The American Window Glass Co. was described by federal officials as the "machine-made window glass trust," and the Johnston Brokerage Co. was accused of having acted as a common selling agent for many of the glass factories scattered throughout the country.

The labor leaders are charged with having illegally used the membership of their unions to curtail production, by working only one-third of each year, thus enabling arbitrary and excessive prices to be charged for the product. These acts, federal officials declared, had advanced prices from 10 cents a pane for ordinary window glass a foot square to more than 30 cents.

GIVE YOUR VIEWS.

At the plant conference to be held at Washington, D. C., May 15, the committee on tariff and legislation of the S. A. F. wants to present to the federal horticultural board a constructive program showing what the florists' trade wants and requires. If you will not be there yourself, you can at least express your views through this committee. Are you for or against quarantine 37? What changes in quarantine 37 do you suggest? On which plant products do you wish the quarantine lifted? What additional items do you want quarantined? This committee will welcome any constructive suggestions if addressed to me, at 95 Chambers street, New York.

James McHutchison, Chairman.

GOOD, BETTER, BEST.

There has been a steady increase in the circulation of The Review ever since it was established, many years ago, with the result that each season it is able to serve the trade better than it was before. Even in times when the demand in general shows no gain, those who use The Review as their sales medium find business continues to increase. Like this:

You may discontinue our advertisement on carnation cuttings. We want to thank The Review for disposing of more cuttings for us this year than in any other year.—Wiltgen & Son, Evanston, Ill., March 16, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

W. B. C., Ky.—Only communications which bear full signature and address of subscriber are answered.

A. F. C., S. C.—Seems to be Strelitzia parvifolia juncea.

B. B. & Co., B. C.—A species of crassula, probably quadrifida.

BALTIMORE, MD.*The Market.

Market conditions have improved and the supply is about equal to the demand. There is a good supply of all seasonable flowers. Carnations have taken a slight jump. Other prices remain about the same as last week. In the retail stores funeral work has first place. Everyone is busy getting new stock and cleaning up the old in preparation for the Easter rush.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Baltimore Florists' Club was called to order by President Merritt. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved, the president called for reports of the various committees. Charles F. Feast, chairman of the general F. T. D. committee, read his report and recommendations to the club. Mr. Feast's report was accepted and he was assured of the hearty support of the entire membership. The chairman of the entertainment committee, Robert W. Johnston, was then called upon to make his report. He spoke of the meeting held in February and then gave the committee's plans for the meeting in April. At this meeting J. Horace McFarland will give an illustrated talk. His subject will be "The Rose in America." There is no one in our country better qualified to give a talk on this subject than Mr. McFarland, because of his long experience in making photographs of roses for the Rose Annual, of which he is editor. A supper will be given in honor of Mr. McFarland at the Hotel Rennert, at 6 p. m. Club members and their wives will be present. It will also be ladies' night at the club and refreshments will be served. A vote of thanks was extended to the members of the entertainment committee who worked out such a splendid and interesting program for the last meeting.

James Glass exhibited some of his famous snapdragons and a great deal of favorable comment was heard from those members present.

After the question box was passed, the meeting adjourned.

Various Notes.

The following attended the New York show: H. I. Moss, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Graham, Jr., Miss Margaret Graham, Robert W. Johnston and Richard Vincent.

The following are planning to attend the Indianapolis show: I. H. Moss, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Graham, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. William J. Johnston.

Among the obituary notices will be found the accounts of the deaths of two members of our business, Charles M. Hermann and Leopold B. Stoll.

Visitors to the city last week were J. J. Goudy, of Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa., and M. Adler, New York.

Kramer Bros., of Hanover, Pa., have a fine lot of hydrangeas and lilies for the Easter market.

R. W. J.

William F. Ekas has opened a wholesale store, which he will conduct himself, doing a general commission business. He will handle both cut flowers and pot plants, and not specialize on the latter, as was reported in error. Mr. Ekas is widely known among the trade here and has already demonstrated his capacity in the wholesale business as manager, until lately, of the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co.

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.*The Market.

This section was swept by a rain and sleet storm March 17, which made travel unpleasant for several days, besides doing some damage to trees and shrubs. The local seed dealers report a good business. Easter stock is in good condition, although apparently short in some lines. A considerable amount of entertaining is being done, in spite of Lent.

Florists Meet.

The State Florists' Association held its March meeting in the biology building at the University of Minnesota, March 16. About fifty members were present. After a short business meeting, the members visited the museum and saw two reels of animal and bird life. Dr. T. S. Roberts gave an interesting talk as the films were being shown. This museum contains one of the finest caribou groups in the world; it was furnished at a cost of some $3,000 by private subscription. There are also five groups of deer, beaver and birds. F. F. Farrar, of White Bear, was elected to membership.

Various Notes.

Robert Spero, a New York business man, has been trying to interest the officials of the two cities in a more fitting observance of Mothers' day. He advocates the wearing of any flower on that day, not its observance with carnations exclusively.

Rice Bros. recently bought the Nelson greenhouses, near Brooklyn Center. They expect to enlarge the range, thus enabling them to grow a portion of the stock for their trade.

The different committees for the coming flower festival, to be held in Minneapolis, November 11 to 16, have been busy making the necessary arrangements. The publicity committee met at the St. Paul Athletic Club, March 17, and arranged for the publicity work of the show.

A. M. Brand, of the Brand Nursery, Faribault, Minn., was in town on business last week. He then attended the meeting of the committee which is arranging for the iris show, to be held in St. Paul, and the peony show, to be held in Minneapolis.

The Ramsey County Garden Club is to hold a fruit, flower and vegetable show in St. Paul the latter part of August. Nearly $200 in prizes for gladioli alone are promised. The annual auditorium meeting of this club will be held April 12 this year. W. F. Therikildson, of Chicago, will address the assembly and moving pictures will be shown. Over 3,000 people attended this meeting last year. Frank B. Daniels, the Long Lake nurseryman, addressed the members at the club meeting, March 15, on everbearing strawberries for the home. This club has a membership of over 300 now.

The Minneapolis park board is soon to begin work for the summer. This work will require about 600 men.

One of the best iris catalogues we have seen this year has just been put out by Rainbow Gardens, of St. Paul. It has thirty-five pages and is well illustrated.

CHICAGO.*The Market.

For Lent, business is remarkably good. Large quantities of stock are being moved at prices which, while not high by any standards, are good for the time of year and compare satisfactorily with those of last season. The market has been kept quite clean during the week since last report. Shipping demand continues steady in good volume and there are days when the local buyers find they have to bid up to get the stock they want.

Perhaps the most noteworthy feature of the present supply is the special quality of the Premier and Russell roses, the former predominating. The demand this season has been strongest within a limited price range and most of the growers have avoided too great a proportion of long stems, but now several of them are cutting considerable quantities of these two varieties with stems over thirty-six inches. These are the best roses of the season to date; indeed, finer roses seldom have been seen on this market, famous for its roses. Unfortunately, the demand for these special roses has not increased in proportion to the supply and the shorts and mediums bring better prices, all things considered. Roses can be sold above 25 cents only in limited quantity and it means little that an occasional sale is made at 50 cents.

It has been noted that the call for carnations from the south is large and steady. The market has been kept so clean that special offers no longer are necessary and prices have been working higher at a season they usually fall.

Sweet peas have suffered, in quality and quantity, because of several consecutive days without sun. Violets begin to show the approach of the end of their season. Paper Whites and Purity freesia have practically disappeared and the supply of early tulips is on the down grade. On the other hand, Darwins are more plentiful than ever before, coming to market from more growers. The market has many callas and quite a few precocious Easter lilies. Small quantities of Spanish irises are seen, presumably from bulbs grown in America. They sell for double the pre-quarantine price.

Easter Prospects.

There is general confidence of a good Easter business, at prices in keeping with the times. Also, there is confidence that the supply will be adequate, except of lilies. There will not be so many lilies as other years, as far as the Chicago market is concerned, and it is believed the same condition will prevail in most other centers. Those who have lilies in pots are asking 30 cents per bud for them, while advance orders for cut lilies can not be placed below 25 cents if the best quality of lilies is wanted.

Collections Slowing Up.

"Why is it an increasing number of retail florists are falling behind with their payments?" It is a question wholesalers are asking each other and outside people who might have ideas on the subject. During the last few weeks it has been thought necessary by some of the wholesalers to cut off the credit of some old and valued customers, both in the city and in the country, and it seems that the trade's average ability to pay is ebbing steadily.

The search for the reason for this undesirable condition reveals the opinion that in only a few cases are retailers actually losing money, but that large numbers of them have considerable capital tied up in charge accounts, neglected during the easy times and now not possible of quick collection because of the changed situation of the debtors.

There is again talk of organizing the wholesalers in Chicago along the lines of the successful New York city credit association.

Growers' Meeting.

The principal topics of discussion at the meeting of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago at the Hotel Randolph, Thursday evening, March 16, were the flower show at the West Town Exposition, the week beginning March 27, and the taking over of the local publicity campaign by the growers.

In presenting his report as chairman exhibits for the west side show. A space 10x130 feet has been allotted for the flower display and other space will be available if exhibits are too numerous to be confined to this area. The west side merchants have engaged a publicity agent, who has already obtained much city-wide advertising for the project, including the insertion of pictures of flowers in various growers' greenhouses on the pictorial pages of the leading Chicago dailies. The publicity agent has received instructions to feature flowers, and other arrangement has been made to favor the florists' interests. All that the growers need supply is the flowers and plants. Mr. Weiss thought these would be forthcoming in ample numbers.

Otto Amling read the proposed amendments to the by-laws of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois, necessary for the direction of the organization by the growers. The changes planned are chiefly matters of detail, in order to permit three growers to take the places of the three retailers who retire from the board of directors. These amendments will be voted upon at a meeting of members of the Allied Florists' Association to be held next month.

The meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, at Urbana, the two preceding days was reported on by Joseph Kohout, who had been reelected president of the state organization. Mr. Kohout referred to the valuable papers presented at the meeting, which were published in last week's issue of The Review, and he described some of the interesting experiments being carried on at the state university.

In the absence of W. J. Keimel, who is chairman of the committee on Chicago day at the national flower show at Indianapolis, Joseph Kohout told of the preparations to make this a big event. He particularly appealed to the growers to send exhibits, since it would be necessary for the Chicago market to make a big showing to maintain its reputation as the leading flower center of the country. Since Cleveland and St. Louis are expected each to send two carloads of plants and flowers, he believed that Chicago growers ought to exceed, or at any rate equal, this showing.

Some of the liquid glazing compounds on the market, their composition and their qualities, good or bad, were described by H. G. Frey, manager of the greenhouse supplies department of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh. He concluded his remarks by speaking on the local advertising campaigns undertaken by florists in various communities and referred to the opportunities of the Chicago growers in the local campaign.

Discussion of the proposed change in the local publicity campaign led off with a report from A. Setterberg, who is doing some field work among the growers at present. He stated that he had found those he visited strongly in favor of the growers' assuming direction of the local advertising. He asserted that, as a rule, the growers he met voluntarily expressed their approval of the increase in their contribution from one-half to one per cent. There followed some interchange of opinion as to the methods to be pursued in making the change most effective. It seemed the ultimate opinion that the executive board was making satisfactory progress in the right direction.

Since Otto Amling's term on the board of directors of the Allied Florists' Association expires this month and three additional growers are required to fill the places to be vacated by the retailers, nominations were made to fill four seats. The names proposed were Otto Amling, A. H. Schneider, Henry Wehrman, George Harrer, E. H. Blameuser and Rudolph Ellsworth. Balloting resulted in the selection of Otto Amling, A. H. Schneider and Henry Wehrman and in a tie between George Harrer and Rudolph Ellsworth, which was settled by the latter withdrawing in favor of Mr. Harrer. These names, therefore, will be presented for the positions of directors at the coming meeting of the Allied Florists' Association.

Secretary Amling read a letter from J. F. Amling, secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association, in which he called to the growers' attention a preparation which had been found exceedingly useful in his greenhouses and in those of other growers in his vicinity. It is the Golden State brand prepared casein spreader, manufactured by the California Central Creameries, San Francisco, and sold by leading dealers throughout the country. Primarily intended for mixture with fruit tree sprays, Mr. Ammann had found it useful to mix with Bordeaux or arsenate of lead for greenhouse spraying.

To celebrate the completion of the third year of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, it was decided to hold a dinner-dance in connection with the annual meeting of the organization in June.

Chicago Day at Indianapolis.

At 5:30 p. m. next Sunday, March 26, the Chicago party to the national flower show will leave for Indianapolis. There are various estimates of the number who will be on board when the train pulls out of Dearborn station, but it is safe to say it will be a large party. Chairman W. J. Keimel states that 10,000 roses will be taken along, 1,500 having been donated by each of two concerns, 1,000 by each of three wholesalers and lots of 500 by each of eight others. It will help to advertise Chicago as the great rose market of the country.

Of course many Chicagoans, having exhibits, will precede the main Chicago day party.

Various Notes.

Otto Goerisch's interests have been with Zech & Mann since March 20.

August Jurgens sent the first outdoor irises to market, from his Mississippi farm, March 18. The southern jonquils are about gone for this season.

H. B. Kennicott has returned to Clearwater, Fla., to bring home his wife and their car. They will be here before Easter.

Frank Oechslein will drive the new Single Six roadster to Indianapolis for Chicago day at the national flower show.

With the primaries close at hand, several members of the trade are devoting considerable attention to politics. Peter M. Hoffman, our present coroner, is a candidate for nomination for

John Michal had the formal opening of his new store on Stony Island avenue, near Sixty-seventh street, March 22. He has a classy layout and a loca-

A vase of Carnation Betty Jane has attracted much attention this week, in the window of the American Bulb Co. It is Ward shade of pink and is an excellent shipper. The blooms came from A. C. L. Washburn states that grossly exaggerated reports of the frost damage at the Bassett & Washburn place at Sierra Madre, Cal., keep coming to his ears. As a matter of fact, the loss was small. About 100 large plants were damaged and so were 14,000 plants just planted out from 2-inch pots. These will be thrown out. The loss of 14,000 plants might seem large to some, but there were 258,000 plants under that slat shed, which is on a slope; the damaged plants were on the lower side.

put up. Saturday night and Sunday George Wittbold had crews at Field's, Mandel's, Stevens' and the Boston Store. A number of wholesale-house employees were used to supply the necessary increase in man power.

Visitors.

Morris H. Levine, New York ribbon merchant, was here last week, on his way to Indianapolis and the show. He says business is good with florists almost everywhere and that a satisfactory Easter and spring trade seems assured.

Robert Miller, of Farmington and Salt Lake City, Utah, has been here for a few days, the guest of Guy French, on his way to the Indianapolis show, where he will be a judge.

Among last week's visitors was Mr. Hurst, of Tipton & Hurst, Little Rock, Ark. Business is good down there and when Mr. Hurst went home he was accompanied by George Bates, a well known retail store man recently with Holm & Olson, St. Paul, and J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland.

T. P. McElroy, of Grand Forks, N. D., was here for several days last week.

Fred Henoch, of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind., was at his company's Chicago office March 20 for a conference with salesmen.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The supply of flowers for the week ending with Sheelah's day was large. Barring roses only, everything was plentiful. Much of the stock was good, prices were moderate, sales were heavy. The two closing days of the week, those favored by St. Patrick and his chosen one, were the finest and the busiest of the six, a reminder that white carnations advanced from $6 to $8 per hundred, influenced by those who had thoughtfully provided themselves with green dye. Enchantress did not share in the advance. The excellence of the stock and the moderate prices stimulate the demand, which is surprising when the dullness in many lines of business is considered. The really heavy trading is in sweet peas, carnations and daffodils, with everything plentiful and a wide range of quality. It is generally possible to make up a good assortment for all shades of purchasers.

Beauties are steadily increasing in numbers. Coupled with this fact, comes the good news that the three principal sources of supply will all increase their planting of Beauties this season. Even orchids and gardenias are now classed as plentiful, while snapdragon is in its glory.

Easter Plants.

"A rose should have from four to eight blooms at Easter. That's why we grow Magna Charta; it makes such a showy Easter plant." The speaker, one of the firm of Aschmann Bros., was in one of the rose houses that contained a fine lot of thrifty plants in 6-inch pots—Magna Charta, Beauties, which they also do exceptionally well; Baby Tausendschoen and Ellen Poulsen.

The hydrangeas were good. Mme. Chautard, Lilie Mouillere and Trophee are all well budded, with lots of healthy foliage.

There are 4,000 lilies, all giganteum, that will make Easter nicely, without hurrying. A house of primroses,

The supply of flowers continues in abundance in all of the seasonable lines.

BEAUTIES—The supply is increasing. The quality is better than we generally have at this time of the year.

ROSES—There are plenty of Roses to take care of the demand. We also can furnish you plenty of Hadley, Russell, good Double White Killarney, etc. You will find our Roses of very good quality.

In CARNATIONS, you will find it difficult to find another supply like ours. Our Carnation growers confine themselves to the best known varieties, and varieties that have the best keeping qualities, such as Mrs. C. W. Ward, Matchless, Enchantress Supreme, Washburn and Laddie.

The Best VALLEY can now be bought at $6.00 per 100. A good grade at $5.00 per 100. We can furnish you almost any quantity on short notice.

CATTLEYAS—They are quite plentiful now, and we always have them on hand, and on a few hours' notice we can furnish you several hundred of them.

Primula obconica, was a charming sight, with their many colors and shades of colors just developing.

There is a nice lot of genistas, some sturdy ferns and any quantity of hyacinths in pots and in pans, with some Narcissus Von Sion, by way of variety, to make up an assortment. The place looks well.

Our Club.

Those of us who are members of the Florists' Club became members for one of three reasons: To meet our best men, to see the exhibits, or to hear the discussions; possibly, for all three reasons combined. A majority of our club members are growers, as a matter of course. They come from our largest group and are most vitally affected by the questions that come up from time to time. The wholesalers form the most influential, though the smallest, body of our members. Their knowledge of business conditions gives great weight to their opinion in our councils. Though numerically of fair proportions, the retailers form the least active body of our members. When a question arises that interests them, the club, as a whole, benefits enormously. The Florists' Club at Philadelphia is today doing better work than at any time during the thirty-six years of its history of usefulness. Formed to entertain an S. A. F. convention, kept alive by amusements and social intercourse far more than by business interests, it is today meeting the needs of a rapidly expanding profession and meeting them most satisfactorily. To the members of the present administration high praise is due. At considerable personal sacrifice, purely from motives of altruism, they are giving freely of their best ability for the common weal. That this will bring results in elevating our profession, in broadening our ideas, in making us more human, none can doubt.

The Lily King.

Alfred M. Campbell has 35,000 pots of lilies at Strafford. There is one lot of 10,000 pots that are selected as belonging in class A, section 1. They are as nearly perfect as you could wish to see. A house of the new French hydrangea, Trophee, is a gem. The plants are sturdy, uniform and a mass of well advanced buds that assure fine, select flowers. The feature of his carnation house is Laddie. There are four long benches bearing the finest flowers. These Laddie plants have been carried over in old soil. Just think of it! Geranium Beaute de Poitevine in bloom for Easter is a pretty sight.

For the Holiday.

Probably never in its long history has the Godfrey Aschmann place, on Ontario street, housed a prettier lot of Easter plants. French hydrangeas, lilies, roses are all good, and clean and healthy throughout. There is a beautiful house of ferns in tiptop condition. The foliage specialties are Dracaena fragrans, Pandanus Veitchii and Asplenium Nidus-avis. A charming touch of color was found in one of the houses by a little advance growth of bulbs in full bloom, just to show what the army that will follow in three weeks will look like. They promise to be fine.

Various Notes.

Robert A. Craig says that the Easter plants of the Robert Craig Co. are so well in hand that they will be properly timed, even with unfavorable weather.

is safe to say that business in Lent was never better and growers and retailers seem unable to account for it. Certain, however, it is that, while many other industries are having hard times, the flower business in this section has had the best winter in its history. Customarily in Lent we expect bad gluts and low prices, but this season we have had none of these. No doubt, the formation of the new Florists' Alliance and the gradual elimination of jealousies in the various trade elements have done much to put business on a better basis.

Roses are arriving in steadily increasing numbers and are now at top-notch quality. Efforts are necessary to make complete clearances on some days, but so far there have been no gluts. Premier is forging ahead in favor and some growers find it much better than Columbia, just as Mme. Butterfly is displacing Ophelia. Red roses are coming in somewhat more freely. White remains the hardest color to move. There are not many American Beauties and a merely nominal demand exists for them. Carnations had their customary St. Patrick's day boom, advancing to $6 to $8 per hundred, which prices were well maintained to the end of the week. The usual quantities of whites were dyed and many were rendered worthless in the process. Most of the stores featured these doctored flowers, also showing other colored flowers suitable for the day.

Violets are abundant and the quality is now on the wane. Sweet peas are good and fancy large-stemmed flowers are now sold at $2 to $2.50 per hundred. Bulbous material holds up surprisingly well in price, with single trumpet daffodils at $5 to $6, double being somewhat lower. Not many tulips are offered, compared with former years. There are still some freesias, but of rather inferior quality. Callas and lilies are both abundant and sold out fairly well last week. Marguerites are of better quality and more plentiful; so are calendas and bachelor's buttons. There are still good supplies of pansies, double daisies, blue marguerites, wallflowers and mignonette. Occasional spikes of hardy larkspur are seen and good cut acacias, clivias and hippeastrums.

The orchid market is not robust. Some good Cattleya Mossiae and Schroederæ are seen; also odontoglossums and cymbidiums. Valley has been selling fairly well of late.

Pot plant trade has been good, with bulbous plants, roses and hydrangeas the leaders.

Large quantities of well grown shamrocks were sold for St. Patrick's day, but the supply heavily exceeded the demand and thousands were thrown away. Retailers made special window displays appropriate for the day.

New England Florists' Alliance.

There will be a meeting of the New England Florists' Alliance at the City Club April 1. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock. Any members not desiring to come to the dinner will be welcomed to the after-meeting. The by-laws and proposed amendments to the same will come up for discussion and adoption. Secretary Eugene M. Naukam feels much encouraged over his reception by all elements in the trade and feels that the new alliance is going to be a big winner. Nearly all the largest growers and retailers have signed up and accessions are being steadily received. A big, enthusiastic ratification gathering is desired April 1, and every grower, retailer, salesman and wholesaler should plan to be on hand. It means better business for everyone in the trade and there should be no laggards.

Various Notes.

There will be a large party from here to the Indianapolis show. Most of those going will leave March 23, but some will go later. The carnation men plan to take along some worth-while exhibits.

Edward F. Norberg, of North Cambridge, has a splendid lot of stock for Easter. He operates the establishments formerly known as the John McKenzie and H. L. Cameron places, his brother managing one establishment and E. F. Cameron the other. Splendid lots of hydrangeas, Tausendschoen and other roses, lilies, genistas and other plants are to be seen. Bedding geraniums are a great specialty here. About 100,000 are grown, chiefly Nutt, Ricard and Poitevine, and the demand for these will be unusually strong this season.

Many local growers are interested to know that the Fisher Florists' Co., of Providence, will open a flower store April 1, at 355 Westminster street. It will be the largest and most sumptuous store in Providence.

A. H. Hews & Co., of North Cambridge, report good business in flower pots. They have a much improved stand and show cases at the Boston Flower Exchange, where the veteran salesman, Thomas J. Benwell, can usually be found. Rubber hose has been added to the firm's offerings. Lawrence Hemenway is now vice-president and Dunbar Lockwood is treasurer of O'Donnell is a courteous, efficient and popular young man, who is bound to make good in his new position, where much high-grade stock, in both plants and cut flowers, is handled.

News of the death of Harry A. Barnard, of London, England, the well known and popular representative of Stuart Low & Co., received here March 16, caused many expressions of regret. Mr. Barnard had many good friends here, who keenly regret his passing. He was a fine type of man and a credit to any firm. His demise is reported on the obituary page.

S. Michael, the well known Haymarket florist, has opened a fine new flower store at the corner of Canal and Causeway streets. He reports good business.

Horticulturally, this is a busy week in Boston. While a considerable number of local men will go to Indianapolis for the national show, the spring bulb show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, running from March 23 to 26, will attract many others. Then, the lectures on bulbs, March 25 and 26, by Chester Jay Hunt; the conference of the National Association of Gardeners and Kewites, March 24, and the club meeting, March 21, will provide horticultural food for everybody.

R. Popkin, well known in the trade locally, will open a fine flower store June 1, in the new palatial Biltmore hotel, Providence.

W. N. Craig spoke at Nashua, N. H., March 16, at the formation of the new Nashua Horticultural Society. George E. Buxton, the well known Nashua florist, is one of those actively interested in the new society.

After being balmy for half its duration, March suddenly showed its teeth and we had bitter winds, severe frost and hard frozen ground for several days. Some venturesome spirits had already started to do a little planting of vegetable seeds.

Fire in the potting shed and men's quarters on the Mrs. C. G. Weld estate, Brookline, March 14, where William C. Rust has charge, did damage to the amount of $1,400 before it was extinguished.

HUMUS FROM CORN COBS.

We have sent you a sample of humus resulting from five years' decomposition of corn cobs. Outside of its value, what would you recommend it for? What do you think of it for roses? Do you know of any nursery plants that would be especially benefited by its use?

F. A. D.—Ill.

I should hesitate to use the humus, a sample of which was received, on roses or any other indoor-grown plants. Applied as a top-dressing outdoors and sweetened with lime, it would be of undoubted value. Land planted with nursery stock, herbaceous perennials and fruit trees might all be treated with this humus.

FOR SALE

A place in one of the finest suburbs of Chicago that can safely be called one of the best establishments in the country doing a retail and wholesale florists' business, is to be sold. A sound, successful business that has thrived for forty years, serving a high-class retail trade and doing wholesale business with Chicago's leading florists.

Everything is new and in the best of condition, the entire place having been rebuilt recently and new equipment installed. There are eight new and modern Moninger iron-truss greenhouses covering 30,000 square feet, equipped with a new heating plant and devoted to a general line of pot plants. The spacious store is equipped along modern lines with new fixtures and is connected to the greenhouses by a large, well arranged service building. At the rear of the range is a fine 10-room residence and a heated garage big enough for six cars. There are three motor trucks and all other necessary equipment. In addition there are thirteen 50-foot city lots next to the store and greenhouses.

It is situated on a busy thoroughfare that divides two large suburbs of Chicago that are populated with the flower-buying class of people. It is not far from several very large cemeteries, there are railroads, Chicago elevated railroads and trolley lines and many other things that make for an ideal location. The amount of business that can be done is limited only by production, for there is a ready market for all that could be produced in a place two or three times larger.

Offering for sale a florists' business of as high standing as this one is not a common occurrence, and it presents a rare opportunity to a person who has enough capital and knows the florists' business. This is a big proposition and will require a large amount of cash. Replies are wanted only from persons who command a good amount of capital, and such persons will be supplied with full particulars on request.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Eagle Rock, Cal.—James Grant, who started the Eagle Rock Nursery here some time ago, has now a more attractive place, in which he grows stock for retailing and for use in his rapidly increasing landscape business. Mr. Grant is certainly to be congratulated on the progress he has made in so short a time.

PLANNING A LATH HOUSE.

I am considering building a lath house, 20x30 feet. In regard to this, how high should the roof be? What style of roof should be employed and what space should be left between the laths? What is the best vine to grow for shade? Is the cinnamon vine all right and does it grow fast enough the first season to cover? The climate here is quite dry and the temperature approaches 110 degrees in hot weather, but we have plenty of water for irrigation.

W. A. S.—Ariz.

The height of your lath house will depend entirely upon what you intend to grow in it. If it is to be for dwarf plants, it is only necessary to have sufficient height to allow plenty of head room, say seven feet. But if plumosus strings, smilax or large palms are to be grown, the height, of course, must be greater. In your sunny climate there is an additional advantage in having a higher house, in that the laths may be spaced closer and plants are not so likely to burn, as in a lower house. In California it has long been the custom to leave the width of a lath between laths, but lately growers of greens, ferns, palms and other stock are spacing the laths much closer. In some cases laths are spaced the thickness of a lath and then cross-lathed or "double-lathed," as it is termed. This makes an ideal shade and in such a house shade of vines would not be necessary. For utility the usual flat roof is all that is required, but dome-shaped roofs with arched doorways and other architectural effects are used on private places. This is entirely a matter for individual taste.

The cinnamon vine is not at all suited to the hot, dry climate of Arizona, and the foliage would be sure to burn badly. A far better vine is Passiflora edulis. This grows freely, makes fine shade and when well established produces handsome flowers followed by edible fruit in great abundance. It may be grown from seed and stands heat and bright sunshine well. The chayote is a quick-growing vine, producing much fruit that may be cooked in a variety of ways, but this vine dies down in winter. It grows easily from last season's fruits, which should be started in pots and planted out after all danger of cold weather is past.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

With the better weather, outdoor flowers are improving daily and there is an abundant supply of almost everything in choice stock. Roses are arriving in fine order. Indoor carnations are good, while orchids, valley, gardenias, indoor sweet peas and violets are all more plentiful and of better quality. Heather is still being sent in by some growers, but the stock is only a travesty on this beautiful plant. This has been one of the worst seasons ever known for heather; the hot winds, followed by heavy rain and killing frosts, proved too much even for this hardy plant. There is still a scarcity of good outdoor carnations, and this is always a bad thing for wholesalers and shippers, as these are one of the leaders for long-distance work. The slump in business in some of the territories served by this market also has a bad effect upon the wholesalers' business, and it cannot be described as good. Retailers, on the other hand, have no kick coming. They are all busy, and this in spite of their increasing numbers. Funeral work has been abundant and the amount of transient trade is increasing all the time.

Various Notes.

J. Dieterich is planning a trip to Europe in May. He will visit his home in Switzerland, and other European countries.

W. F. Van der Schoot, of Hillegom, Holland, is in the city on his annual visit and reports a good business in Dutch bulbs.

At the store of Herbert Bateman, Inc., the camellia has been made a good drawing card of late. Although so well known, the artistic possibilities of this flower are not always so well brought out as here, and it has led to a big demand. Mr. Bateman says, too, that they have been extremely busy with decorating work. The number of fine blooms of various kinds now to be had, help out materially along this line. The telegraph business has also been brisk. The separate colors of the dahlia-flowered zinnia, according to John C. Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., will be grown in quantity by them this year and will be ready for distribution in 1923. The writer has had the opportunity of seeing these wonderful varieties growing and the florists may be assured that there is a great treat in store for them. But growers should remember that this firm does not sell to florists and that they should obtain their seed from their local seedsmen. This action will save a good deal of unnecessary correspondence and delay. It may be noted in passing that these separate varieties would have been sent out before, but the rigid roguing practiced on the Bodger seed farms cuts down the amount of seed and insures those retained to be true to name. The mixed varieties already in commerce are becoming popular, as evidenced by the large amount of seed sold this year. Friends of J. J. Reeves, the well known superintendent and manager of the Beverly Hills Nursery, will regret to hear that he is seriously ill at his home.

John Finken is going still more heavily into the trained fruit tree business this year, having found an increasing demand for such stock. Heather for cutting is to be another specialty at his new place.

Roy F. Wileox & Co. have lately gone in somewhat heavily for gardenias and a splendid cut of excellent flowers, surrounded by deep green, glossy foliage, is now being sent in, several hundred per day. The rose cut is also fine and the nursery business brisk.

C. E. Morton, of Phoenix, Ariz., is in the city on a short visit en route to San Francisco.

F. Royston, of Walter Armacost & Co., was in San Diego last week.

A splendid show is made in the large windows of Howard & Smith.

Dan MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco, is visting the south for a few days. Mr. MacRorie has been on the sick list and hopes to benefit from the sunshine.

shown by one or two firms and Dorothy Perkins will be in sometime before Easter. Violets are in their prime and, in addition to being good, are plentiful and reasonable in price. Cut Easter lilies are arriving and there are good crops of carnations and plenty of flowering sprays, especially ornamental quince, almond and peach. The second crop of Chinese lilies and freesias is in. Good crops of snapdragons and sweet peas are being cut and anemones are arriving. More gardenias will be cut in the next few days. At present they are scarce. There is a shortage of Darwin tulips, owing to the fact that those grown under glass have been cut and the outdoor stock has not put in its appearance. Lilies of the valley are plentiful. Orchids are off crop.

Various Notes.

A new florist's store was opened, March 15, at 2140 Mission street, under the firm name of the H. A. Dunlap Floral Co. The proprietor, H. A. Dunlap, was until recently a clerk with Pelicano, Rossi & Co., and at the Kearny street headquarters of that firm everyone was wishing Mr. Dunlap good luck in his new venture. "We were sorry to lose Mr. Dunlap," said Frank D. Pelicano, "but we realize that he wanted to start out for himself." The store is in a busy district of the Mission. It is not a large establishment, but is a neat and attractive flower shop.

H. D. Schiller, one of the leading florists of Chicago, has been at the St. Francis hotel for several days and has visited the members of the trade, some of whom are acquainted with him through having called at his store in Chicago. Mr. Schiller came from Los Angeles in the course of a western tour.

Adrian J. Schoorl is selling pompon dahlia bulbs for the cut flower trade. He says he has been successful both with these bulbs and with garden seeds, the results having been achieved largely through advertisements in The Review, which brought him orders from all over the country. Mr. Schoorl is featuring seeds for fourteen varieties of statice, the Statice Suworowii, or Russian statice, being especially adapted for florists' purposes.

B. Joseph has procured several thousand of the neat and pretty slips sent out by Vincent Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, asking "Which is your Birthday Flower?" "These slips are sent out free by Mr. Gorly, who is a florist himself, and has for years advocated the cultivation of birthday flowers," said Mr. Joseph. "If growers had sufficient demand, they would always keep each month's birthday flowers in mind, to meet the need for them." Mr. Joseph is sending the slips out to members of the San Francisco trade to see if a birthday sentiment can be worked up. There is no advertising of any kind on the slips.

Nearly every florist's store in San Francisco featured green carnations, daffodils, etc., in commemorating St. Patrick's day. F. W. Davis, of the C. Kooyman Co., outdid his contemporaries with a vivid emerald he produced. This led to inquiries for the dye used, and a brisk dye trade resulted. Mr. Davis pointed out that the St. Patrick's day dye can be used for garments, etc., as well as for flowers. The C. Kooyman Co. is about to begin cutting Emperor daffodils, which have been unusually late this year. Narcissus incomparabilis, which usually comes in with Emperor, has been ahead of the big daffodil this year.

J. A. Axell summed up the situation by saying, "There is plenty of stock, and the demand is good, but if we had more business we could take care of it." Mr. Axell, who makes a practice of visiting his growers and knowing just what stock is coming along, says that he expects a large supply of Dutch iris for Easter. He has already handled some early flowers of this iris and says that it is exceptionally fine. Mr. Axell continues to be enthusiastic over the present violet crop.

Mrs. Darbee, who is a violet grower herself, said, "I read what Mr. Axell said of the violet crop, and I certainly agree with him that it is a pity that there is a good demand from the east for violets before they are at their best, and that this demand falls off when violets are really in their prime. At present they are in splendid condition and will continue to be so until the middle of April." Darbee's has been kept busy, especially with funeral work. One of several palls had a background of solid pink and white carnations, with a great spray of phalænopsis and catleyas. Mrs. Darbee has been shipping Japanese quince and peach sprays as far as Washington, D. C.

"Business is about on a normal basis, but St. Patrick's day has brought good orders and we anticipate a heavy Easter business."

well known theatrical stars at Tait's cafe. Everything was in spring flowers.

The California Floral Co. has had several bouquets for the weddings of couples who have not permitted Lent to deter them from getting married. All the bridal bouquets were in orchids and lilies of the valley. M. M.

PASADENA, CAL.

The many fine stores and interesting nurseries in Pasadena are certainly worth more than passing mention. In traveling west on Colorado street the writer noted a fine new lath house, and the name Pegg's Nurseries above the door prompted a call. Here our old friend Pegg was found, having moved over from the nursery on Mentor avenue to a more attractive location. Both Mr. Pegg and his son were busy, of course, as moving a nursery is no light job, and the place is being arranged on modern lines. They are certainly fortunate in having secured so fine a location and, doubtless, an increased business will result. Already a decided increase in transient trade has been noted by Mr. Pegg.

Coolidge's Rose Plant Gardens are always interesting and, despite heavy losses by the recent frost, friend Coolidge is smiling as ever, and one of the busiest men in California. Some fine stocks of heather in many varieties were noted, with many choice things in the way of flowering shrubs. Mr. Coolidge looks forward to an exceptionally good season's business, which, he says, has started remarkably well.

At the Orchid, Mr. Jaeger and Mr. Wolfskill were both up to their eyes in work, and this has been the condition right along. The store has been entirely remodeled and redecorated in a novel manner. The color of the walls is a warm reddish tint and on this mirrors and panels of various sizes are shown. The panels are of various flowers and birds beautifully done, the orchid panel and a panel of poinsettias being especially fine. In fact, it would be difficult not to praise any of them, while the effect as a whole is distinctly good. Unfortunately, the light and arrangement do not lend themselves well to photographing; therefore a picture could not be obtained. The funeral work here is of a high order, as, in fact, is all the work carried out here, and the partners in the business are to be heartily congratulated on their up-to-date business methods, which have led to their great success.

The Market.

Business conditions last week have been up to the previous standard. Stock is not rolling in plentifully, on account of the cloudy weather we have had since the cold snap arrived a few weeks ago. The later daffodils are still in good demand, and this year there seems to be a good stock of Van Waveren's Giant, which we know to be of fine quality, and these find a ready sale in every store. Darwins in pot and cut are showing up in the market and soon will take the place of the early tulips. Hydrangeas are coming in and will add to the variety of potted plants.

Various Notes.

An invitation will be extended by Samuel Lancaster to President Harding to visit the 1922 rose festival, which will be held next June.

The Holden Floral Co. cut the first Darwin tulips this season and, no doubt, this firm can be proud of supplying the market at this time of the season. This firm will come in with a fine lot of potted hyacinths for Easter and reports that it is away behind in filling orders for Laddie cuttings, of which a good stock can be seen at any time during the season.

Rahn & Herbert, of Clackamas, are bringing in some fine hydrangeas of the French type, which find a good sale. Their Easter lilies are coming along as well as expected.

Preparations are being made by the florists and nurserymen for the June rose festival, and, no doubt, it will be a big success.

The Wilson-Crout-Gehr Co. is getting a number of inquiries for bedding stock from our neighboring state, California.

Clarke Bros. still have some fine azaleas in their retail store, and can be proud of having such valuable property on hand. They are making a shipment of rooted Manetti stock to the state of California. They were successful this season with their grafting of young rose stocks at their Hillsboro place.
